COVERS FOR SCHOOL BOOKS.—Messrs. Miller Bros., Music Dealers of this city, are sending out to the school teachers of this Province covers for school books to be given free to the pupils. These covers will fit any school book, and will be the means of keeping the books from becoming soiled. Messrs. Miller Bros., will gladly supply any quantity free of charge, upon receipt of a post card from the teacher or pupils. 7949-3-6-21

CAVENDISH.—Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Toombs, Mayfield, on the arrival, in their home, of a young son (John Merion) on February 24th.—Mr. Barney Womanscott, Hunter River, accompanied by his sister Miss Lillian, were visitors in Mayfield on Sunday last, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Andrew.—The many friends of Mr. (William) Doiron, Mayfield, who has been confined to his home through illness, for the past week, are pleased to see him out again.—Mr. Peter Peters, Rustico, who had the misfortune of getting his foot badly hurt on Saturday last, when driving past Mr. Elieha LePage's store, the loaded sleigh taking a slew, and going right down against a post.—Mr. Fenual Stewart, Cavendish, had the misfortune of losing one of his valuable Guernsey cows recently.

BRACKLEY POINT ROAD.—The sympathy of the whole community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Phillips, in the death of their infant daughter, which occurred in the Prince Edward Island Hospital on Wednesday, Feb. 17th. Mrs. Phillips, who is still in the hospital is doing nicely.—Miss Annie Jones leaves this week to train for a nurse in the Falconwood Hospital. Miss Jones, who for some time previous has been the popular saleslady for Mr. Chas Phillips, has made many friends, who wish her every success in her new undertaking.—Mr. William Robinson who has been visiting friends in the city and at Brackley Point, has returned to his home on Robinson's Island.—We regret the illness of Mrs. John McCallum, one of Harrington's eldest and most highly respected citizens.

TREE-TOP STORIES

GOLD DOLLARS MARJORIE often walked up the path to the top of the hill west of the house. She liked to sit there and sing while the small winds carried the soft words and tunes to the Fairy-people. One evening she saw bright gold dollars heaped there behind the leaves and tree-trunks. When she ran up the hill she found the 'gold dollars' were bits of bright sunset sky shining behind the trees. "That was Sun-gold," laughed Marjorie. "The Fairies wanted to pay me for my songs. Thank you, Fairies, dear. I'll gather an apron-full for my Mother."

In Memoriam

MRS CHARLES McQUARRIE. The death occurred in Winsloe on Friday, Feb. 19th, of Mrs. Charles McQuarrie. Deceased had been in failing health for some time but her death came as a great shock to her friends and relatives. Her cheerfulness and resignation in her hour of illness as she saw death approaching had done much to lessen the grief attending her departure. She leaves to mourn a sorrowing husband, three sons and one daughter, Henry and Bruce, settled in Winsloe, James at home, and Mrs. Percy Yeo of Charlottetown. The funeral, which was held on Sunday was largely attended, showing the esteem in which she was held. To the bereaved ones we extend our sincere sympathy.

SEED AND SOIL INOCULATION AND ITS LIMITATIONS.

(Experimental Farms Note.) With culture of various sorts on the market, both for legume and non-legume inoculation, the farmer is often at a loss to know to what extent the practice of inoculation is based on sound principles, and to what degree he may reasonably expect success. The practice of inoculating the seeds of leguminous plants has been carried on for over twenty years, and has been shown to be of distinct value in a large number of cases. Bacteria developing in the root nodules of leguminous plants are able to utilize nitrogen from the atmosphere, and make it available to the growing plant. Many soils, especially in districts where particular legume are being cultivated for the first time are deficient in nodule bacteria, and adding these bacteria, either by inoculating the seed with culture before sowing, or by introducing soil from a field which has grown the crop successfully, has been proven to be a beneficial practice. Up to the present, however, seed and soil inoculation with other than legume cultures has not been placed on a sound basis, or received support from agricultural scientists. From time to time, cultures under various names have been prepared, claiming to be of value in enriching non-leguminous crops, but so far, none of these have been shown to be of definite value. Experiments conducted on the Experimental Farms with two such cultures, namely "Soligro" and "Soil Vita," have failed to show results which would indicate any practical benefit to be derived from their use. Extensive laboratory tests showed the cultures in question to possess no advantage over ordinary soil, as far as the bacteria contained were concerned, while tests on a variety of crops gave negative results. The reason that little can be learned from such cultures is that the bacteria which play such an indispensable part in the preparation of plant food are, with the possible exception of the legume bacteria, already present in an otherwise good soil. If they are lacking in a soil, soil conditions do not favour their growth, so that adding bacteria, other than legume bacteria, will be superfluous in normal soils, and of little avail in abnormal soils. Legume inoculation is to be encouraged, though it should be noted and that it is only one of the factors concerned in successful legume production. Success will be most probable if the other soil conditions are at their best. Inoculation being, an aid to, but by no means a substitute for, good farming methods. A. G. Loehhead, Dominion Bacteriologist.
