CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

Shirley Temple Gives Outstanding Performance At Capitol, Summerside

After two years away from the screen, Shirley Temple returns to the Capitol in her new picture "Kathleen" which opened last night at the Capitol Theatre.
Those who have been waiting to see what she has done to little Shirley will not be disappointed. She is her same spirited self; the blonde curls have turned to chestnut brown, but the smile is still there, the unerring ability to project emotion is unchanged, and the sparkle and vivacity that make Shirley one of the most prominent figures in the entertainment world, is anything given added stature.
Because of the child's reputation, the picture is being advertised as a feminine psychologic is brought into the case, and it is she who ultimately drives the unwelcome other woman from the house and brings about an affectionate understanding between Kathleen and her father.

Discerning Direction
Harold S. Bucquet's direction neatly interlards humor with the dramatic touches and shapes the various sequences of the story into a building climax.
Herbert Marshall, as the father so given over to his private life as to neglect the demands of his child, gives one of the finest performances of his career. Laraine Day, as the psychologic officer, an honest, forthright portrayal, and Gail Patrick is expertly cast as the schemer who attempts in vain to win over Kathleen's affections. Also outstanding is the veteran character actor, Felix Bressart, playing a kindly junk dealer, the only person whom the lonely child can turn to for understanding.
But the picture is chiefly Shirley Temple's, who once again demonstrates herself to be a front-rank actress as well as a fascinating personality.

Hollanders Not "Collaborating" With Nazi Masters

Hollanders are not "collaborating" with the Nazi armies as enthusiastically as Hitler expected, and the German leader has ordered compulsory labor for the Netherlands, so reports Ernest G. Fischer, back home after internment in Germany.
By Ernest G. Fischer
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, June 5 (AP)—Hitler's big-brother attitude toward Holland after the five-day blitzkrieg of May, 1940, definitely has changed to bulldozing. And the Netherlands are going to have to work for Hitler.
The reason the Germans give is that Hollanders have not responded to "collaboration" with the Nazis new order as they were expected to. One of the first overtures on the part of the Reich was the release of Netherlands prisoners of war to clean up the bombing wreckage in Rotterdam and other cities in Holland, and the Germans argued, at least had the privilege of remaining in the homeland, but the Nazi-controlled press did not consider the Dutch appreciative.

"The saddest thing about the 'Holland problem,'" wrote the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger, "is that a people of Germanic origin, of our own flesh and blood, through the fault of movement of the historic events of the last 300 years, since the unfortunate peace of Westphalia of 1648, not only stood aside, but lay under western and northern German influences to a frightful degree."
But the Reich, so the writer intimated, would be willing to let bygones be bygones and would accept this "wayward child" into the "new order."
Still Hollanders did not show any great desire for collaboration with the conqueror. Executions for sabotage and for harboring enemy aliens didn't help matters much.

It is not inconceivable that Hitler was disappointed when the East Indies fell so easily into Japanese hands, in spite of the provisions of the three-power pact, under which Germany recognized Japan's sphere of influence in Eastern Asia, the East Indies represented the future of the Reich, and the conquest of the motherland, should have fallen into Hitler's lap—at least it was the hope in many Nazi circles that the conquest of Holland had given the Reich at least a legal claim to the Dutch colonies.

In Holland the Reich's commissioner has sent orders from Berlin for all unemployed persons to register as the first step for compulsory labor for the Netherlands. Workers who cannot find employment in the homeland will be sent elsewhere to work.
"A stagnation of labor power cannot be tolerated today," was the Wilhelmstrasse's view of the situation. This supports the view that labor definitely constitutes a bottleneck in Germany's war economy.
Out of the 2,100,000 foreigners employed in greater Germany during the latter part of 1940, there were 93,000 laborers from Holland.
In addition to the Dutch workers brought to Germany, there were approximately 50,000 additional persons employed in the Reich's industries in Holland herself. The nature of their employment was not revealed by the German statisticians, but it is a safe assumption that there are armament plants in the Netherlands.

There were another 100,000 Hollanders who remained unemployed and had elected to remain at home and take the weekly dole in preference to working for Hitler. German sources gave the pre-war unemployment as 369,000.
While Holland popularly is pictured as a land of tulips and milk cows, it should be remembered that approximately 40 per cent of the population is engaged in industry, 1 per cent in commerce and only about 20 per cent in farming and fishing. Some 60 per cent of her exports were industrial.

Career Ends In Penitentiary For George Cross Winner
LONDON, June 5 (CP Cable)—Capt. Robert Davies, awarded the George Cross in 1940 for removing a time bomb from St. Paul's Cathedral, today was sentenced to be cashiered from the army and to serve two years in prison.
Sentence was passed by court martial at St. Paul's Cathedral, today was sentenced to be cashiered from the army and to serve two years in prison.
Davies, who once lived in St. Catharines, Ont., was convicted on seven charges of improperly receiving funds from a business firm. He was acquitted on six counts and had pleaded guilty to 14 others, mainly of having issued cheques without having sufficient funds in the bank to meet them.
These propositions will be forwarded to the auxiliary war services committee at Ottawa for their consideration. Mr. Holman submitted a very interesting paper on blueberry cultivation in this Province. After some discussion on minor matters the meeting adjourned.—S.

O'Leary Man Acquitted On Arson Charge

The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" yesterday afternoon in the arson case wherein George W. Ellis was on trial charged with setting fire last fall to a barn owned by his brother, Harry Ellis at O'Leary. The jury was out about half an hour before bringing in the verdict.
When the court opened for the morning session, Mr. H. F. MacPhee addressed the jury for the defence, concluding at 11.45. Hon. Thane A. Campbell, Attorney-General then addressed the jury for the crown, concluding his address after recess.
His Lordship complimented the counsel for their able addresses and in conclusion stressed the fact to the jury that if they had an honest doubt as to the guilt of the prisoner they must give him the benefit of that doubt.
After the jury had returned their verdict of "not guilty" the court adjourned until June 16th when the case of the King vs. William Moses Arsenault charged with perjury will be heard.—S.

Lively Debate
Lively debate this afternoon followed presentation by Rev. Arthur Organ, Saint John, of the report on the fact that the government of Canada has taken no effective action in response to the request of the representatives of the Protestant and Catholic churches and other national organizations that the abolition of the advertising and the curtailment of the sale of liquor, which last year, it is estimated, cost the government claims to be necessary for a total government effort, and urge our governments to take immediate action and our people to create an intelligent and patriotic opinion which will lead to the elimination of this waste in men and materials which is, in effect, seriously sabotaging our program of national war service.
