YESTERDAY MORNING'S SESSION

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. Roy A. Burkhart, speaking on "What Makes a Program Vital," said this was a question not to be treated in an oratorical way—it should be discussed: "What Makes What We Do Right?" was a question he asked and answered, he said. As he met boy after boy and girl after girl who had not found the philosophy of life, he asked himself, "What's wrong with the Churches?"

He told of being in a church where the young men were gathered together for an hour and a quarter and discussed how they could keep from sin. Mr. Burkhart asked: "What Makes a Program Vital?" and said he wished some one to answer. A voice replied: "The heart life of the person who is leading the meeting." The speaker analyzed the answer which was a correct one. Continuing he said he had many problems to solve. For instance he receives many letters from young girls—letters that brought a flush to his face. As an example he told of receiving a letter from a young woman what she should do with an engagement ring which had been purchased with stolen money, and concluding by saying she did not know to whom to go for advice.

He referred to a business man of Portland, a man who did not have the advantage of a college education who as a leader kept in constant touch with everyone in his community. He knew everyone in town; kept a record of every one who called at his place of business as well as a record of what they both talked of. If a man had trouble with his boy this leader noted it and kept track of it. Leaders he said, must have spirit and skill and know how to create it in others, and concluded by saying that programmes must be built around certain objectives.

Rev. Manson Doyle in the course of his address on "Training in Worship," said that religion is more than morality or creed theology. We are religious because we feel there must be meaning and response in the universe. He then discussed the place of music, scriptures, prayer, offerings, and sacrament in respect to worship.

PRIM MINISTER WILL CELEBRATE 64TH. BIRTHDAY

Convinced That Under Genial Atmosphere Which Has Been Created, There Will Be Satisfactory Harvest of Results.

(Special to The Guardian)
NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald settled down in the "city of his adoption" today for a three day stay during which he will celebrate his 64th birthday and review the "harvest of results" from his peace mission.

While Mr. MacDonald made clear that his official conferences were at an end, a series of interviews, dinners and luncheons will afford him the opportunity to elaborate on his conversations with President Hoover, in case he should desire to do so. The Prime Minister and his daughter, Isabel, arrived late yesterday from Washington, coming across the Hudson from Jersey City on a ferry boat that steamed through a lane of din and saluting sirens. The party went immediately to its headquarters at the Hotel Weylin, where MacDonald, although weary granted an interview.

"I am going away," he said, "convinced that under the more genial atmosphere which has thus been created there will be a satisfactory harvest of results, I feel that I have returned to the city of my adoption. I have a family interest in New York now and I feel very proud of it." A newspaperman inquired if MacDonald intended to rest tomorrow and Sunday. "Rest," the Premier said smiling. That is the first time since I landed in America that I have had such a thing suggested to me: "I am glad to meet you, sir."

Premier MacDonald, beginning his New York program, was greeted today by a delegation of American Jews with a plea for British co-operation in the development of Palestine, a Jewish National homeland. The delegation expressed confidence in the British mission appointed to investigate the recent disorders in Palestine. MacDonald received the delegation, which was headed by Felix M. Warburg, the Jewish banker and philanthropist, at his hotel suite.

Price War Ends

Campaign Warming Up In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 11.—"Is the Nova Scotia Temperance Act a form of government control or is it only an occasional interference with bootleg control?" was the question put by Rev. Dr. A. H. Moore, President of Kings College, in an address before the Commercial Club today. Speaking on citizenship and referring to the forthcoming plebiscite on the merits of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, Dr. Moore declared that the basis of all right legislation was the protection of society and not the reformation of the individual. "I protest the itching propensity of some people," he said, "to pass laws controlling and restricting the action of others. To pass a law will never reform the individual; he must work out his own salvation in fear and trembling."

Developments in the campaign today included an address by H. P. Newcombe, Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Sons of Temperance in Nova Scotia, at Walton, in which he urged that in view of Premier Rhodes' promise of a statement relative to the government's course of action should the N.S.T.A. be rejected, the Premier should also outline the government's intentions in the event of the province voting to retain the act. In a statement issued tonight J. H. Winfield, President of the Temperance Reform Association, the advocates of government sale, questioned the accuracy of recent assertions by Rev. Dr. Clarence MacKinnon that a group of five distilleries, two breweries and one soft drink establishment had increased in value from $28,000 to $131,000 during four years of government control. Mr. Winfield declared Rev. Dr. MacKinnon's figures were based on a stock market trading, and he in turn referred to a group of distilleries, the stock of which had dropped from a "high" on the market in 1923 of approximately $161,000,000, to $85,000,000 at the present time. Government control and prohibition were not factors entering into this fluctuation, said Mr. Winfield.

Three inches of snow was reported from Brandon and Qu'Appelle, according to meteorological authorities. Rain fell in parts of Alberta but temperatures were not sufficiently low to effect a change to snow. White River, Ontario, showed a mercury reading of only ten above, the lowest in the western area, while Prince Albert, Sask., was the chilliest spot on the prairies, recording 38 degrees above.

PREM. RHODES OUTLINES POLICY OF CONTROL

In The Event of a Liquor Enforcement Act Being Authorized By The People In The U. S. Plebiscite On October 31.

(Canadian Press)
HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 11.—Towns, cities, and municipalities would be relieved of enforcement responsibility and the first charge on revenue would be the establishment and maintenance of an efficient highly trained constabulary to ensure observance of the law, in the event of a liquor control act being authorized by the people in the plebiscite on October 31st. Provision would be made in a measure for education in temperance, liquor advertising banned, and administration would be in charge of an independent commission. These clauses are contained in a statement issued by Premier E. N. Rhodes today, in which he outlined an act that would "embrace the best features of the control acts in force in other provinces, and in addition such further provisions as would tend toward temperance and to eliminate drunkenness and lawlessness."

The Premier's outline included a statement by Rev. D. K. Grant, chief inspector under the N. S. T. A., that in his judgment the act had been given a reasonably fair trial during the four years of his supervision. The Inspector pointed out he had reason to be grateful for the assistance rendered by the Government, the original enforcement staff having "been more than doubled. He believed the efficiency of the act would be greatly increased by the addition of amendments. The Premier in his statement declared that should the N. S. T. A. be upheld the government would not only stand behind its strict enforcement, but would be prepared to consider any such amendments as might be favorable to strengthen it.

WILL BE ARMED

(Special to The Guardian)
LONDON, Oct. 11.—Despite the wishes of the Labor government to feature the civilian aspect rather than the military in the Armistice Day parade to the cenotaph, the attending troops will be armed. A statement issued from the Home Office explains that while the government is anxious as far as possible to foster the spirit of international peace and goodwill, the occasion is deemed one on which all branches of the service should be represented in full.

ited, by the Dominion Government, it was announced today. It is expected three of the plants, which are three-seater flying boats especially designed for forest patrols, sketching, light transportation and air photography, will be delivered this fall. The balance are scheduled to be delivered to the Department of Civil Government, Air Operations, at Ottawa shortly after navigation opens on the St. Lawrence River next spring.

CAMP BORDEN ABANDONED AS AIR BASE

Stated That The Move Will Be An Impetus To Ontario Aviation.

(Special to The Guardian)
OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—Official confirmation of the choice of Trenton, Ont., as the site for headquarters of the Royal Canadian Flying Force, was announced today at Ottawa. The decision means that Camp Borden will be abandoned as an air base. The field has always been unsuitable for an air field it is contended, as it was not planned with this in view. The buildings are said to be in a bad state of repair and the cost of rehabilitation is said not to warrant its retention. It is urged that Trenton being near the lake is suitable for seaplane as well as aeroplane flying. Steps will be taken to secure a suitable site, it is stated. Local flying men when interviewed, stated that the move will be an impetus to Ontario aviation, as Trenton is situated on one of the main lines of air communication in the province, being on the line from Toronto to Montreal. The local light aeroplane club, however, is disappointed, as it was hoped the government would choose Toronto as the site and representation will be made to Ottawa to see if the plans cannot be changed, it is stated.

Banquet Given Prime Minister

By Foreign Relations Society And Presided Over By Elihu Root In New York—Eloquent Oration By Britain's Labor Leader.

(Special to The Guardian)
NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain was entertained at a banquet this evening by the Foreign Relations Society of New York, presided over by Senator Elihu Root. The chairman, introducing the Premier, stated that it was intended to have a successful policy for disarmament. "Physical disarmament must be preceded by moral disarmament." Premier Ramsay MacDonald taking this as a text for his address delivered an eloquent oration on this subject, asserting that public opinion must be behind any government in pursuing such a policy. He said that a year ago the United States and Great Britain and some fifty other nations had signed a peace pact in Paris. It depended upon how far a reliance could be placed upon these signatures, whether the Pact was worth the paper it was written upon. He could give the assurance, so far as his present government was concerned and he could speak for no other, although he knew that all parties in Great Britain cherished the same ideas of peace. Their signature of the Pact was their bond and would be observed in every particular. Any material success in business or in statecraft must be preceded by dreams and it was the realization of such dreams, the bringing of the ideal to the material that counted for success. In the conversations which the president and he had had upon the subject of disarmament they were endeavouring to materialize their ideals and keep their confidence, and they were going to succeed. The premier proceeded to deal with some of the difficulties and obstacles in the way of reaching the objective, and concluded in an impassioned appeal before the seen and unseen audience to uphold their ends. His faith in the policy both countries were endeavouring to pursue. They would thus tend to bring about speedily and effectively that condition of peace which they were all praying and longing for, in order to restore conditions in Europe especially, and to enable humanity once more to retrace the pathway of progress and the realization of "Peace on earth and good will to men."

Seed Potato Stock For Maine State

(Special to The Guardian)
TORONTO, Oct. 11.—New Brunswick is supplying seed potato stock for the State of Maine potato belt, where a return of prosperous conditions has brought about a strong demand in Aroostook County, for the best seed stock obtainable. One shipment of 5000 barrels of Green Mountain certified seed stock is reported as having gone to Maine from New Mills, Restigouche County, the deal having been made through a local broker and the price being $5.00 per barrel. This shipment is said to have been certified by the government as 99 percent perfect, and was part of a crop of approximately 2000 barrels grown by G. C. Cunningham, a former federal government plant pathologist, who selected New Brunswick's north shore after retiring from pathological service as the best location for embarking upon extensive growing of seed potatoes as a commercial venture.

Fire Destroys Farm Dwelling At Darnley Pt.

Mr. and Mrs. James Champion and family, Darnley Point, had a narrow escape from death Wednesday night when their farm residence caught fire and was burned to the ground. The fire was discovered too late to save any of the furniture and contents of the dwelling. It was only with difficulty that the smaller children were rescued.

Willing neighbours quickly gathered on the scene and it was with their aid and by their strenuous efforts that the barns were saved from destruction, especially as the pump was situated in the house and no water could be obtained therefrom. Mr. Champion's loss is a heavy one particularly at this time of year, and unfortunately there was no insurance. How the flames originated is not known, but Mr. Champion had been tanning some nets in the porch that evening and this may have had some connection in some way with the fire.
