Mission Band Concert Of Baptist Church

The closing of the Mission Band of the Baptist Church, Summerside, was marked by a charmingly arranged program, which was under the direction of Mrs. (Rev.) Wilson, the leader of the band. Unfortunately, Mrs. Wilson was called to her home in Truro on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. Cox, and was not able to be present. The concert was held on Friday afternoon in the church hall and was attended by parents and friends of the children. Mrs. Manson had charge of the program, which opened with the hymn "Jesus Loves Me." The Scripture reading, "The I am's of Christ" was taken part in by Miss Edith Dodds and Miss Anita Huestis. The Lord's Prayer in unison closed the devotional part of the evening. This was followed by the story period.

Difficult Reading Here is a person whose reading matter is "foggy." He has noticed the condition for some time. It seems to be increasing. He finds it necessary to hold his paper farther from his eyes. His distant vision is fine. What shall he do about it? This is to console him. Everyone has a like experience and a competent service corrects it. G. F. NUTCHESON OPTOMETRIST

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom, to which a large number of guests were invited. In the evening, a reception was held in honour of the bride and groom, which concluded with a dance. Music for the dance was furnished by Mr. Alfred Gallant, brother of the groom, assisted by Miss Rena Arsenault, of Summerside, at the organ. Mr. and Mrs. Gallant are a very popular young couple and were the recipients of some lovely presents. They will make their home in St. Gilbert, where their many friends wish them every happiness. —S.

—COMMUNITY CLUB AT TRAVELLERS REST—This Community Club has been very active during the winter months and there has been an attendance of from thirty to forty members every week. Miss Margaret Pillman is the president and has arranged some very good programs along educational, science and other advanced lines, for the benefit of the club. Some very interesting debates have been taken part in. This week a debate on whether a Domestic Science Course or a business course is better for girls will be staged and should prove interesting. A concert is under rehearsal for funds for a new horse shed for the church and hall. The club is to be congratulated upon their efforts in the past and all should look forward to greater achievement in the future. S.

ST. ANDREW'S W. L. The regular monthly meeting of the St. Andrew's Women's Institute was held at the home of Miss Mabel Griffin on Wednesday evening, May 2nd, with eleven members and three visitors in attendance. Meeting opened with the Creed, and the roll call was answered by each member singing a hymn. The minutes of the previous meeting were read, approved and signed by the President. The reports of committees were then given and new ones appointed as follows: Sick Committee, Mrs. G. D. McKenzie and Miss Amelia Egan; School Committee, Miss Joanna McIntyre and Mrs. Frank McIntyre; Entertainment Committee, Mrs. J. P. McIntyre and Miss Amelia Egan. New hand books received by the Secretary were distributed among the members. After the business part of the meeting concluded the following programme was carried out. A solo, entitled, "Barney Came Home," by Misses Lucy and Frances MacKenzie; a reading, by Miss Mary Donovan; a contest, put on by Miss Mary Donovan, won by Miss Joanna McIntyre; also Violin and Guitar selections. Mrs. J. P. McIntyre invited the members to her home for the June meeting, which is to be opened with the Creed and singing the Institute Carol and roll call to be answered with a nickel. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Misses Amelia Egan and Mary Macdonald. The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

Ambassadors Of Understanding A great deal of publicity has been given recently to that vital and most appealing figure, the physically handicapped child, and to the measures necessary for his education, or, at least, his adjustment to the community. Attention has also been directed to the valuable work of the under-nourished, the crippled, the sick and the neglected children in Canada, which is being carried out by voluntary groups. One of these, the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire by its personal service, sympathy and generous financial contributions for "blessed human springtime" may claim to have earned the title given it by a government official in Child Welfare work—"Ambassadors of Understanding."

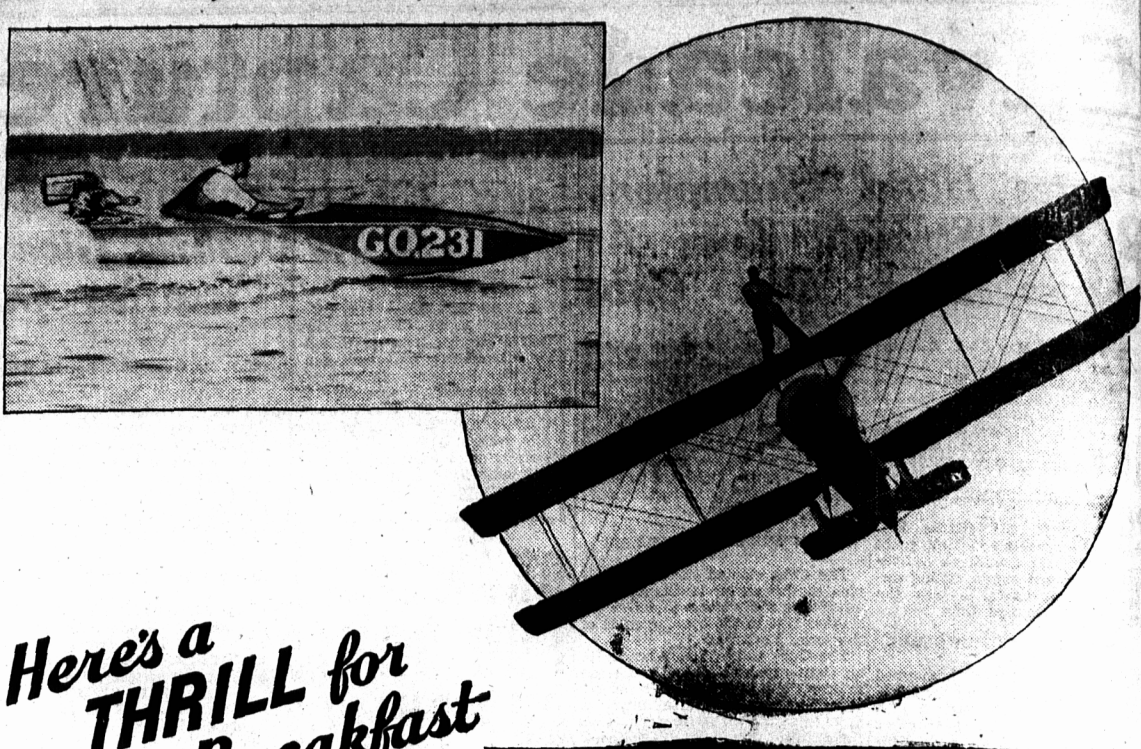

Each year the Order expends approximately the sum of $100,000 in this phase of its work in addition to the large sums which have been devoted by the Chapters in each Province in establishing Free, Fresh-air Camps, Clinics, a Dental Car and other remedial developments, all of which have had the effect of enriching physically and mentally the lives of crippled, sick and under-privileged children. In this particular service to the youth of Canada, the members of the Chapters carry out one of their pledges to the Order. "To forward every good work for the betterment of the country and people."

The extent of the Child Welfare work undertaken by the Order can hardly be estimated, especially that maintained during the past few years of unemployment and consequent financial difficulties. In the reports from Chapters in every Province are records of supplies of thousands of quarts of milk for children of all ages, hot lunches to school children daily, provision for immunization against children's diseases, personal service given in connection with the Chapters' clinics, follow-up work for hospital and preventoria cases and for children attending the Chapters' summer camps, the providing of health nurses for isolated centres to mention only a small part of the work accomplished.

It is interesting to note that the Daughters of the Empire in 1915 instituted for the benefit of children the first annual "Tag Day" to be held in Canada. This is known as Alexandra Rose Day and was begun as a method of raising money for the I. O. D. E. Preventorium in Toronto. As the roses sold each year are made by crippled children in England, this movement is a popular Empire gesture. After the first year, it was decided by the Order that the generous returns from Rose Day should be shared with children's organizations, and for some years this appeal under the aegis of the Order has become Dominion-wide.

The twenty thousand members of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in Canada are giving time and understanding as well as money to this dearest of their projects. Their service and unflinching interest in the welfare of the under-privileged children is a concern in the importance of restoring the health and also the hope and courage of children who are feeling the serious effects of lack of medical care, poor nutrition, inadequate housing and clothing as well as the haunting shadow of insecurity which unemployment brings to the domestic scene.

The Man Who Discovered Kerosene The Toronto historian, Mr. Fred Williams, writes: Nova Scotia, that province of so many first things in Canadian history was the home of the inventor, or discoverer if you like of kerosene, and so put light into millions of homes. Born at Cornwalls May 2 1797, the son of Harry Gesner, a Loyalist, he went to London to study medicine and graduated with honors. Returning to Halifax in 1824 he did not pursue the practice of medicine, but turned his attention to geology and mineralogy, and wrote a treatise which is the basis of all provincial information on these two subjects. He then took up the development of artificial illuminants. In 1851 he experimented with Trinidad asphalt and obtained from it an illuminating oil. One experiment led to another. In course of time he discovered an oil suitable for burning in lamps from canal coal and bituminous shale. He named his product Keroselin, from the Greek, but later shortened it to Kerosene. In 1853 he went to New York, took out several patents for the manufacture of Kerosene, but he did not derive much pecuniary benefit from his discovery which revolutionized the lighting of homes and shops all over the world. He sold his patents to a New York company, but his royalties did not last long. The discovery of petroleum in Pennsylvania and in Southwestern Ontario lessened the value of his process, but could not take from him the honor of his discovery. His later years were devoted to literary work at Halifax, where he died April 29, 1864. He was buried in Camp Hill cemetery. For nearly 70 years his grave was unmarked, but last year that neglect was remedied. Dr. W. H. Piers, curator of the Nova Scotia museum, called the attention of E. S. Shafford, former Nova Scotia manager for Imperial Oil to the ignoring of the great scientist. The latter at once brought the matter to the attention of the directors of Imperial Oil who under the inspiration, on the late Victor Ross, grasped the historical importance of the incident and voted sum of money to erect an obelisk of Nova Scotia stone over the Gesner grave. The inscription, after giving dates of birth and death and citing the inspiration, on the late Victor Ross, concludes with "Erected by the Imperial Oil Company as a tribute to his important contributions to the oil industry." Thus did Toronto remedy last year the neglect of Halifax for more than half a century.
