Just how far Canada has fallen in the British bacon and ham market is disclosed in figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In 1930 Great Britain imported 9,191,182 cwt. of bacon and 1,003,026 cwt. of hams of a total value of 46,112,327 pounds sterling, which works out at something around two hundred million dollars.

of bacon and hams, shoulders and sides only amounted to 121,770 cwt. and the total value was $2,914,272. If Canada does secure a real preference in the British market for pork there will of necessity have to be a sufficient to meet the demand. The British consumer demands a certain quantity and quality of pork and if Canadians cannot provide it, Denmark will continue to sell a large portion of the British market. Nevertheless the figures which have been quoted above show what a rich harvest awaits Canadian farmers if they can get a preference on pork and fill the demand for the product.

Denmark's Large Shipments

In that year Denmark supplied to Britain no less than 6,117,866 cwt. of bacon valued at 27,636,724 pounds or about $138,000,000.

Compare this tremendous export figures of bacon to Britain with Canada's puny contribution. In 1930 Canada exported to Britain 99,298 cwt. of hams valued at 488,759 pounds sterling or about $2,400,000. Canada likewise supplied 84,034 cwt. of bacon valued at roughly the same figure.

Imagine Canada's $5,000,000 sales to little Denmark's $138,000,000. Now do Canadian exports to Great Britain in hams and bacon show much improvement in 1931. In that year Canada exported to the Motherland 105,249 cwt. of ham and bacon and the amount she received for these products was only $2,278,616. As a matter of fact in 1931 Canada's total exports

Falls Down On Beef

Canada is as far out of sight in the British beef market as she is in pork. Both Australia and New Zealand lead Canada in sales of beef to Britain but away out in front is the South American republic, Argentina.

Immense quantities of chilled beef are bought by Britain, the 1930 figure showing a total of 9,087,010 cwt. having been imported. The value of which was 23,722,690 pounds. Of the total amount imported 7,177,349 cwt. valued at 20,248,823 pounds came from Argentina. Frozen beef was not bought in such large quantities by Britain, but Australia supplied over half the total with 719,111 cwt. valued at 1,561,342 pounds and New Zealand supplied 230,670 cwt. valued at 496,784 pounds. In this particular type of beef Argentina came third, all the other British Dominions and that includes Canada, supplied only 11,193 cwt. of frozen meat valued at 22,470 pounds.

Its same story in regard to canned beef imported by Britain. Argentina is far in the lead, Uruguay next, while Australia and Canada are scarcely in the picture at all.

Now Australia and South Africa are very anxious to increase their sales of beef to the British market. New Zealand has the mutton business to the Motherland pretty well in hand. Canada and Australia and South Africa have been holding "conversations" at the Imperial Conference on how they might divide the British meat market—if they can get it away from Argentina and Denmark.

Canada Wants Pork Market

It is said that Canada would be willing to leave the chilled and frozen beef market to Australia and the South African Union if these two countries would give her the British pork market. This would be a sort of "sphere of influence" arrangement which if it can be worked out to be satisfactory to the parties to it.

If a mutual arrangement can be arrived at whereby in return for concessions in the markets of the Dominions, Britain gives Australia, Canada and South Africa preference in her markets for their natural products like beef and pork, real progress towards closer Empire trade unity will have been achieved and a brighter day will have arrived for the primary producers in these countries.

Premier R. B. Bennett in his speech at the opening of the conference expressed a desire to aid the primary producers in Canada. He said that "Our natural products have enjoyed little or no fiscal advantages over their foreign competitors in Empire markets. It is now our hope to secure it for them."

Political Fires Still Burning In Germany

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—(A.P.)—Germany still suffered today from election tension. In seven cities there were outbreaks of political violence. Meanwhile spokesmen for both the Government and for Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party denied reports published abroad that negotiations were under way for the purpose of bringing about participation in the government by the Hitlerites.

Many persons were injured in the day's disorders, but there were no fatalities. The outbreaks came on the heels of a warning by Franz Bracht, deputy federal commissioner in the State of Prussia, that severe punishment would be invoked against persons involved in political disturbances.

The Reichsbanner auditorium at Liegnitz was damaged by a hand grenade tossed by a motorist. At Goldberg the home of a county judge was riddled with bullets. Bottles of hydrochloric acid were hurled at the residences of three municipal officers at Marienberg. Fights occurred between Communists and Nazis at Nuremberg, Zirndorf, Schwerin and Memmingen. In each case several persons were wounded.

A government spokesman said he knew nothing about arrangements for a meeting between a Hitler representative and Defense Minister Kurt von Schleicher for the purpose of discussing the conditions for Nazi participation in the government.

N. B. Expects Improvement In Potato Market

FREDERICTON, N. B., Aug. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—Improvements in the market in the United States this year, with enlargement of the buying power of the farmers will stimulate greatly the shipment of certified seed potatoes from New Brunswick to the State of Maine and other sections of the Union.

That purchases of New Brunswick stock by the growers of Aroostook County in Maine would be greater this year than last year, was indicated with the visit here of a large delegation of growers and government officials. The party came here in two automobiles and visited the potato fields around Millville and Burt's Corner on the Keswick Valley and then proceeding to the Dominion Experimental Station here. In the group were Dr. Hunt of Washington, D. C., plant pathologist for Maine; Dr. Gardner, plant pathologist for Pennsylvania; Dr. Walley of Orono, Me., Dr. Newdick of Augusta in charge of seed potato certification in Maine, and Ray Hughes, Presque Isle, representative of the American Fruit Grower's Association.

TORONTO, Aug. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—Mrs. Ada Jane Barber Bond, officer of the Salvation Army for more than 44 years and wife of Col. John Bond of the Salvation Army died suddenly at the summer home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Ham, at Fenelon Falls, in her 64th year. Mrs. Bond was born in London, England, and joined the army there. Shortly after, she went to South Africa, became an officer and rendered valuable service in connection with women's social work in Kimberley and Cape Town. She was married to Adjutant Bond, editor of the South African War Cry, in 1889 and since then has served with her husband in England, Canada, Australia and the United States.

Thirteen months ago she and her husband were honorably retired from the Eastern United States territory, having served 44 years as officer of the Salvation Army in active service. She leaves three children, Mrs. Frank Ham, wife of Major Ham, divisional commander of West Toronto; Mrs. C. Webber, wife of Adjutant Webber of Toronto, and a son John Carter Bond of Grantham, Ont., her husband, two sisters, Mrs. (Commissioner) Estill of New York, Mrs. (Rev.) Robert Brodie of Quebec, and a third sister in London.

Application of the principle of protection involves an equalization of benefits thereunder as between manufactured and natural products, it is the desire of this Government to effect that equalization and to find a way for our exporters into Empire markets by giving the exporters from those markets a way into ours.

There is real hope for Canadian farmers in the words of Mr. Bennett.

Countess Asks Birth Control

BRIGHTON, England, Aug. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—The importance of State or municipally supervised birth control services was urged by the Countess of Limerick in her presidential address to the maternity, child welfare, and school of hygiene section of the annual congress of the Royal Sanitary Institute here.

Referring to the social aspects of birth control, the Countess said that in that field we must guard particularly against sentimentality. "We are having brought home to us increasingly," she said, "the fact that social legislation of recent years has been largely vitiated by sentimentality and false values. Indeed, many of the present problems of eugenics may be traced to the unwisdom and unkindness arising from soft hearts uncontrolled by hard heads."

"One of the first things that strikes a social worker is the amount of avoidable misery found in most poor homes. Most of us believe that a keener sense of responsibility is essential if we are to maintain our pride of citizenship and our efficiency, and most of us believe that the family must remain the social and economic unit. We must concentrate, therefore, on strengthening the sense of parental responsibility from which such qualities spring."

"We must start," declared the Countess, "by placing within the reach of the poorer parents—in this regard our main problem—the necessary knowledge and facilities to enable them to organize their family unit on a basis which, while permitting a normal physical life, will not debar them from obtaining a healthier, more responsible, and free existence as citizens."

"Without such organized help we must undoubtedly face a future in which the haphazard bearing of children by the ignorant and uncontrolled sections of our population, encouraged by our present social legislation, will inflict on posterity the inescapable sentence of racial suicide."

Rich Harvest For Canada In British Pork Market

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—The British meat market is worth capturing. In round figures Great Britain's meat bill amounts to about one hundred million pounds sterling annually. Three quarters of this amount goes to foreign countries—the Argentine and little Denmark getting the lion's share.

New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and Canada have long been casting envious eyes upon the big slices of the business that has been going outside the Empire. For some reason they haven't been able to capture it, but they're making a strong bid for it at the Imperial Conference. If they get it the farmers in their respective countries should look more prosperous and their merchants should be happier.

Canada has been termed the granary of the world but when it comes to producing good bacon hogs for the British market Denmark must be awarded the red ribbon. Ninety five per cent of all the bacon which Britain imported last year came from countries outside the Empire. Denmark supplied 66 per cent of it, although the fields are no greener nor is the corn sweeter there than on Ontario farms.
