—CHORAL SOCIETY ORGANIZED—A meeting was held in the Town Hall, Summerside, on Tuesday evening. Mayor Lidstone presiding, for the purpose of forming a choral society or in other words a musical society from the town. The meeting was addressed by Professor Fowles, organist of the Presbyterian Church, who has had a wide experience in such matters, both in England and Canada. He was a professor of music at Picton Academy for a number of years. In an interesting manner, he outlined the essential points necessary for such an undertaking. The first thing was regular attendance, no musical society could be a success if the members were not regular in their attendance. Mr. Fowles did not think that the public quite understood that the society would be non-sectarian, a society in which every citizen could join regardless of class or creed. There should be at least

Is Amazed At Sargon Results

"My whole system was poisoned from constipation and indigestion and biliousness would nearly 'knock me out.' My back ached; I slept poorly and many a day it was an effort to stay on the job. The results I got from Sargon were amazing. Four bottles ended every ailment I had, I'm full of new strength and energy and my whole system is invigorated. 'Sargon Pills put an end to my constipation and cleared my system of poisons without upsetting me in any way.'—A. R. Holder, 186 Waterloo St., St. John.

fifty members to make the thing a success so that musicales and light operas could be put on for the benefit of the community. Mayor Lidstone expressed himself as very favourably disposed towards the idea, which he considered would make great strides and result in the latent musical talent of Summerside being developed. Rev. Mr. Jeans endorsed the Mayor's opinions and was followed by others who were all in favour of going ahead with the movement right away. Mayor Lidstone was chosen as president of the new society, the nomination being proposed by Mr. Lowell Hancock, moved by Mr. Baker, seconded by Rev. Mr. Jeans and carried unanimously. An executive committee was formed to look after the necessary arrangements for putting the society on a firm basis and getting members. The committee was chosen from the different church choirs and is as follows: Mrs. Colin Stewart, Mrs. Maynard Schurman, Mrs. B. R. Sharp, Hon. Adrian Arsenault, Mrs. W. Forbes and Mr. T. H. S. Jackson. Mr. H. T. Beag gave as his opinion that it should be made known to the citizens that the club is to be a town club and not restricted to the church choirs. The meeting then adjourned until Wednesday, October 15.—S.

FIRST "HELLO" GIRL

Fifty years ago there were in London seven or eight rather bewildered but very proud men. They were the first people to be connected with a telephone exchange, in the days when the telephone was a very new invention.

The exchange was at 36 Coleman street, E.C., the headquarters of the then newly formed Telephone Company, Ltd., (Bell's Patents), and it was London's first exchange. Today London has no fewer than 62,000 telephones.

The first telephone exchange was a simple affair in a little bare room. But Liverpool had an exchange earlier in a barn-like building, in which sat the first "Hello" girl.

By the end of the year two more exchanges had been opened in London—one at 101 Leadenhall street and the other at 3 Palace Chambers, Westminster. The number of subscribers was 200.

By April, 1880, when the rival Edison Company was in the field with 170 subscribers, there were 400 subscribers and seven exchanges.

Few people realize that Queen Victoria gave the telephone a good send-off. In January, 1878, she summoned Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor, and he established communication between Osborne, Isle of Wight, Southampton, and London, and concerts were given. The Queen was presented with a special set of instruments.

In 1887 the United Telephone Company, with its six subsidiary companies, had 219 exchanges and 18,912 subscribers in various parts of England. Later the National Telephone Company gradually merged the smaller company with itself, and in 1912 the Post Office took over the system.

Now it is possible to sit at home and communicate not only with the United States, but with almost every country in Europe. The G.P.O. will arrange for a subscriber to be called at any hour by their alarm service, and will take messages while a subscriber leaves his telephone unattended.

Tests are in progress at sea for telephoning from ships, and recently there was started a "personal trunk call" service, under which the Post Office will inform a subscriber when a person in any part of the country is available for a telephone conversation. This service is to be extended to the Continent.

England has now the third largest number of telephones with 1,759,688. The United States with 13,341,000 and Germany with 2,950,430 are the leading countries.—EX.

EASIER ON BEES

"The long cold winter in most parts of Canada is not so hard on bees as most people imagine," states C. B. Goodrham, bee expert of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The Dominion apiarist in "Wintering Bees in Canada" (Bulletin 74-N. S.) deals with this, the biggest problem in the beekeepers year. As a matter of fact, Mr. Goodrham states wintering bees in Canada is easier than in a milder climate.

The thing which makes wintering under Canadian conditions easier on bees is the fact that because of the steady cold of the Canadian climate bees rest more completely during the winter months instead of wearing themselves out with useless activity, as is the case in warmer climates.

Few conditions are harder on bees than occasional spells of mild weather during the late winter, when they wear themselves out and die by the thousands trying to raise a little brood and flying out to visit the early flowers in chilly and changeable weather.

Throughout the greater part of Canada the winter rest for bees continues until some time in April—Vancouver Island being the only exception. The long rest which the steady winter gives bees throughout the rest of Canada enables them to take advantage of the warm days of late spring and the flower growth which is then available, with the result that colonies build up rapidly in strength for the summer's work.

GRAIN FUTURES SELLING BY FOREIGNERS BANNED to such activities, unduly large short selling as distinguished from hedging may be considered as evidence thereof," the resolution said. While the resolution named no country in particular and could apply to any, it was evident that it was aimed at Russia and traders pointed out the Soviet was the only one to which it applied at this particular time. "It is the conclusion of this board," the resolution stated, "that the selling of futures upon our exchanges by any foreign government is a development of commerce of seriously objectionable character and it must be brought to an end." The action was taken after several days' investigation of charges by Hyde that Russia had driven down American wheat prices and taken millions of dollars from the pockets of American farmers by excessive short selling on the Chicago exchange. A more complete investigation of the charges still was in progress today by the business conduct committee of the board. This committee does not expect to finish its work and make its report earlier than next day. "In formulating their judgement as

Had Eczema For Twenty-Three Years. Healed by Cuticura.

"When I was two years old eczema broke out on my knees, elbows, chin, ears and scalp. It was in small blisters that festered and itched over. My hair became very dull, and was lifeless and dry. When I wore woolen clothing it aggravated the trouble. I had it for 23 years. A friend advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and five boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Edwin Weston, Rt. 2, Hartland, N. B.
