GIVING SACRAMENT BEFORE THE BATTLE

Hundreds of Soldiers Gathered in Strange Solmen Scene Before Going into Action

Lachlan Maclean Watt, the Highland mystic, preacher and chaplain, narrates his experience in giving the sacrament to Scottish soldiers preparing for action, and continues: "It only needed the simplest words to seal that sacrament. And next morning, in the grey light, the men who had been touched by the thought of home and the dear ones there, and the big throbbing thought of consecration, were marching off to grip the very hand of death in sacrifice, like Christ's, for others. The scene was repeated with a difference at another spot, where in a big manor the soldiers of the Y.M.C.A. had been getting tea and coffee. "We are going off tomorrow," said a fine lad from Cheeshire. "Give us communion that we may remember when we go that high ideals call us." It was a difficult thing, just for a moment, to decide whether in that tent where men were so lately eating and drinking at the counter it should be held, or in some place apart. Instinctively I said: "Yes, Here."

Amidst the Clatter So a rude communion table was made of boxes heaped together as our fathers would heap stones together in the moonlight and with a white linen cloth, we laid upon that table the little chalice of silver, with the flagon of red wine, and the bread upon its platter, expecting eight men to partake. But the tent filled and hushed, and filled to overflowing; and even outside men stood and peered in through the seams. And we began, as ever, with the twenty-third psalm of consecrated memory. Again and again, and again, the chalice and platter came back for replenishing. Men raised their drooping heads and stretched out their hands for the sacred symbols. A way up in the trenches, and about the region of La Bassee, red blood, as red as Christ's was enriching the soil of France; and the hearts that were beating here might soon be still, in the long graves yonder. A breath of mystery seemed to sway them that sat, and still that quiet urgency for more came up, until over three hundred men, whose faces to-morrow would be set toward the battle, had partaken of the sacrament of sacrifice that linked us to God and our homes across the sea.

Real Church Union

Talk of your churches, your sects, your quarrelsome divisions! When men are face to face with the things as we are out there, these things are forgotten as the dust that blew last year over the remotest sand heap into the Atlantic. Brotherhood in the divine lifting of a great imperial call, and the love of a uniting Christ, bind, as with a golden grid, all our hopes, our fears and fears and link them to the Highest.

CECIL ON THE BLOCKADE

Difficulties and Triumphs of Navalmen Are Frankly Discussed

Interviewed by a Paris newspaper, Lord Robert Cecil, "Blockade Minister," said: "It is the intention of the allies to destroy Germany's commerce and cut off her food supplies from abroad. In my opinion we have already accomplished a great deal in this direction. We have absolutely paralyzed the German export trade, German credit abroad is rapidly sinking and her imports are decreasing. As you know, Germany is forced to rely upon neutral neighboring countries for her food supplies from abroad at a time when she cannot possibly produce enough food at home. The great difficulty we meet is to distinguish between the imports which are intended for consumption in the neutral countries and those which by devious ways are smuggled into the enemy's country. Whether we adopt what is known as a regular blockade or continue to strengthen the measures which we have already taken, this difficulty remains the same. "You will probably agree that while we are justified in destroying the commerce of Germany, it is equally true that we must respect the rights of all neutral countries, if we do not want to sink perilously near to the level of Germany in the eyes of the civilized world. Without losing sight of the fact that we are fighting for our national existence, we also remember that we are also fighting for the existence of civilization, and we may, while exercising our rights as belligerents, very well apply the principles of international law in the fashion rendered necessary by modern conditions to ensure the efficiency of the measures we have taken."

LLOYD-GEORGE'S LIFE

Busy Minister of Munitions in New Quarters

He doesn't say as much as formerly, but there is no member of the Cabinet who puts in so many hours work as Mr. Lloyd-George. He has removed with his personal staff to the new quarters in the offices of the Ministry of Munitions in Whitehall Place. These offices include the premises known as Armament Buildings, and those formerly occupied by the Hotel Metropole. Considerable alterations have been made inside the hotel, and luxury has given place to business furniture. Mr. Lloyd-George has selected for his own use a singularly modest room on the second floor. In his room the Minister of Munitions still uses his novel inkstand, which consists of a shell case, in which holes have been pierced so that pens may be inserted.

Successful Picnic At Experiment Farm

The farmers of King's County had their inlings at the Experimental Farm Wednesday. About 600 people, men, women and children were present at the big picnic, almost every institute in the eastern part of the Island being represented.

After dinner, a short programme of speech making followed. Addresses were delivered by His Honor Lieutenant Governor McDonnell, Hon. Murdoch McKinnon, Commissioner of Agriculture, Hon. W. A. Pierce, American Consul, Professors McCready, Tennant and Murphy.

His Honor extended a hearty welcome to the visitors, and spoke of the great value of such gatherings to the farmers of the province. Hon. Mr. McKinnon dealt mainly with the benefits of co-operation. Hon. Mr. Pierce gave a characteristic eloquent and inspiring address, dwelling in fitting language upon the beauty and fertility of this fair Island.

Prof. McCready spoke of the educational value of a visit to the Farm and also dwelt on the need of improving the surroundings and equipment of our schools.

Prof. Tennant told of what was being done with respect to short courses and judging classes. He also stated that good progress had been made in the co-operative selling of wool, the value of 16,000 lbs at present stored in the Arena Rink, where it is being graded. Prices are good and he expected that a sale would be made shortly.

Prof. Murphy, Plant Pathologist, described the work which he is carrying on at the Farm, along the lines of investigating diseases of plants, particularly of potatoes and turnips. The visitors were then shown around the Farm where the various features were fully explained by Superintendent Clark and others. Hundreds of the visitors were treated to automobile rides by Messrs. C. H. B. Longworth, J. R. Dinns, W. K. Rogers, Fred Gaudet and others. There was a great rush to get on board the autos, and one set, supposed to have a seating capacity of five had at times as many as fourteen on board.

At 3:15 p. m., the special train left Charlottetown and stopped at the Farm, taking the crowd on board. A visit was made on the homeward trip, to the Dunstaffnage Creamery. The train was stopped at the end of a lane which led to the factory, about 500 yards from the track. The creamery which does the largest business of any of the kind on the island receiving cream by rail from many parts of the province proved of great interest to the visitors, who were duly impressed with the splendid plant (now in process of enlargement) the mammoth churn, the vats, and other equipment. The absolute cleanliness of everything connected with the creamery soon caught the eye.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of J. C. Atkinson In Use For Over Thirty Years CASTORIA. The programme of the afternoon included addresses delivered by Mr. W. J. Gibson, President of the Creamery Company, who extended a welcome to the visitors, Mr. G. H. Barr, Chief of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, Rev. Dr. Gauthier, Mr. Andrew McRae and others.

Mr. Barr pointed out that the creamery was being enlarged. This means the manufacture of more butter. It will be necessary this season to seek new markets and a considerable quantity will likely be shipped to Montreal. Here the Island butter will come into competition with the best in Canada, including that made in the Eastern Townships of Quebec. This butter is made from separated cream, generally gathered from small creameries, graded and pasteurized. There is also the butter from Alberta and Saskatchewan to compete against. This butter is equal to the best New Zealand product, and it has displaced the eastern butter in the British Columbia market. The Ontario butter is about the same quality as "Prince Edward Island" butter, in Ontario the cream is gathered from long distances, and it is not graded or pasteurized. In Alberta 9670 and in Saskatchewan 9870, in Manitoba 6170, of the cream is graded and pasteurized. Under such conditions, and with such a formidable competition to meet, the need of improving the quality of the Island butter is quite obvious.

Our array of the famous French and Japanese china is most complete, and so rich in good designs, and marked at such conservative prices, that you are sure to find here a good addition to your collection—or a most acceptable gift for a friend.

Mr. Barr emphasized the absolute necessity of having the cream sweet and of good flavor. He was glad to learn that grading had been started in the Dunstaffnage Creamery, and said that a price should be paid according to the grade. In Quebec the law requires that all the cream sold must be graded, and arrangements are completed to have this law fully enforced.

Mr. Barr then gave a number of valuable pointers as to care of cream, and answered questions which were fired at him. He said that before the full benefits of pasteurization can be secured that grading must first be generally adopted. Rev. Dr. Gauthier took as his text "Co-operation," dealing eloquently and effectively with his favorite theme. He also spoke on the need of bettering the condition of our schools.

Mr. Andrew McRae spoke mainly along the lines of feeding and caring for calves. Shortly after five o'clock the crowd left the grounds and proceeded to the railway track where they boarded the special for home. The rain which began about 2:30 and continued during the evening caught
