PLANS FAST TO DEATH

It is reported from Patna, India, that Mohandas K. Gandhi plans a fast "unto death" unless communal rioting between Hindus and Muslims in Bihar province stops within 24 hours. Food Minister Rajendra Prasad made the announcement.

ACQUITTED OF UNCLE'S MURDER

Deliberating only 20 seconds, a record for Manitoba courts, a Winnipeg jury acquitted Telesphore St. Cyr, 18, seen being embraced by his mother, on a charge of murdering his 47-year-old uncle, Modest St. Cyr.

Children are especially fond of agglutinated markings. One very interesting and simple method is to use the hot-iron press method and mark children's things with small figures. Notion departments have tapes of these and it doesn't take long to mark towels, wash cloths and pillow cases.

It is also possible to make rugs for children's rooms with cut-out felt flowers or abstract motifs applied. The edges must be carefully stitched so that there is no danger of tripping.

NEW YORK—For gals who wear classes, there's a hat today with camouflage.

Walter Florell calls it "bal masque" and it's simply an em-broidered domino set in a clinging face veil worn with a dressy black hat.

It's creator intends it strictly for allure—his models wear it over the naked eye. But he's missing a bet. It's the perfect answer for the near-sighted lovely who can't tell her escort from a potted palm without some window dressing.

The lacy mask is set just right to cover up the tortoise shell, and cut out in the middle, of course, to see through. Only problem we can get off of hand is the spectacle bows, which he hasn't provided cover for.

There's always a pince nez, however, or maybe he could be talked into extending the trick.

The masked ball veils come out ingeniously from under the crowns

KEEP BABY SAFE BY WISE CARE
Fatal accidents among infants are common—and common sense can prevent them. Mrs. Anne H. Barnard, director of the Women's Division of the National Safety Council, knows the hazards and how to avoid them. Here is her advice to young mothers.

Accidents caused 88.9 per cent. of the deaths of children under five last year—the lowest rate on record for this age group. Mrs. Barnard says most child deaths were caused by burns and suffocation. Poisoning, drowning and falling contributed to the total of 7,812 child fatalities occurring in 1944. She says even the safety pin is unsafe because the dangers of pricking a child or of its being swallowed. A mother or so often sets a poor example by holding safety pins in her mouth while changing a diaper. Safety pins should be stuck into the mattress or cake or soap. When not in use the pins should be closed and put out of reach of busy little hands. A safety pin should not be used to fasten a blanket around an infant. This practice, a survey shows, is the principal cause of death by smothering. When placing a baby in its crib, Mrs. Barnard suggests that no pillow, no fuzzy or painted toys, be placed in the bed with him. A mother should be sure the paint on the child's bed does not contain lead, lest the infant's crawling tendencies bring about lead poisoning.

Put Them Away
Insecticides, medicines, sleeping tablets—it takes only one drop and brush are burned during the fall clean-up. When a mother is busy in the kitchen, junior should be placed in a peg or highchair. Many children have been scalded to death alone for too long.

heating. Walkers and creepers because of over-fascination in mother's work. Unprotected wells, cisterns and garden fish ponds are potential hazards. Mainly, Mrs. Barnard says, it's a good idea not to leave a tiny tot alone for too long.

They're all smiles in Ontario's tobacco growing country today. A record minimum price of 36 1-3 cents a pound for flue-cured tobacco means that the average grower will realize as much as $428 per acre for this year's bumper crop. The price hike exceeds last year's price to growers by over two cents a pound. Here is Josephine Rapchak who has good reason to be elated. She has helped her family harvest 64,000 pounds of tobacco this year on their farm near Delhi. "That means at least $23,000," she says. "Canada Savings Bonds have a claim on some of that money." Josephine, framed in stocks of flue-cured tobacco, holds a bunch of green leaf—green gold, as it is appropriately named—with one hand and a fan of Savings Bonds with the other.
