What Nuxated Iron Is Made From

Sworn Statement of Composition of Its Formula

It increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time in many instances.

The Board of Directors have authorized the broadest publication of the sworn statement of the composition of Nuxated Iron, one of the most widely used tonic, strength and blood builders in the world, so that the public may examine it for themselves and judge as to its merits.

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over 3,000,000 people annually in America alone. Among those who have used and strongly endorse it are many physicians formerly connected with well-known hospitals, former United States Senators, members of Congress, and former Health Officials.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires such. It is as follows:

Iron Peptonate (Special specific Standard) Quantity given below.
Sodium Glycerophosphates U.S.P. (Monsanto.)
Calcium Glycerophosphates U.S.P. (Monsanto.)
P. E. Nux Vomica U.S.P.
Cascarin Bitter
Magnesium Carbonate
Po. Ginger U.S.P.
Oil Cassia Cinnamon U.S.P.
Calcium Carbonate Precip. U.S.P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate of a special specific standard which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost: but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorous in a state very similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expesive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons, is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron," by the Dae Health Laboratories. Paris, London, and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you. We guarantee satisfaction to every purchaser or your money will be refunded.

In regard to the value of Nuxated Iron, Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says it has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves and strengthening the muscles. Dr. J. W. Armistead, Grove Hill, Ala., graduate of the University of Alabama School of Medicine, Mobile, 1883, says: "In the cases I used Nuxated Iron I have found more beneficial results than from any preparation I have ever used in 34 years' practice." Dr. R. B. Baugh, Pollville, Miss., graduate of the Memphis Hospital College, Memphis, 1898, says: "I always prescribe Nuxated Iron where a reconstructive tonic is indicated." Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron is not recommended for use in cases of acute illness, but only as a tonic, strength and blood builder. (In case of illness always consult your family physician and be guided by his advice.) If in doubt as to whether or not you need a tonic, ask your doctor, as we do not wish to sell you Nuxated Iron if you do not require it. If you should use it and it does not help you, notify us and we will return your money. It is sold by all druggists. Dae Health Laboratories, Detroit, Mich.

Devonshire House Passes

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The sale of Devonshire House, which means, alas, its approaching demolition, will remove one of the landmarks of London most nearly connected with the political, social, and artistic history of the eighteenth century. Its site was originally occupied by Berkeley House, which was purchased from its owner, Lord Berkeley, by the fourth Earl and first Duke of Devonshire in 1697, ust after Princess (afterward Queen) Anne had left it, and was occupied by the Cavendish family till 1733, when a glue-pot left to boil over set fire to the adjoining woodwork, and the whole place was burnt, damage being done to the extent of £30,000. William Kent, fashionable alike as artist, architect and gardener, was at once commissioned to prepare plans for a new building—naturally enough, since the daughter and heiress of Kent's great patron, the Earl of Burlington, married the future fourth Duke of Devonshire.

The house is not, however, quite as Kent left it, since the original entrance was by a horseshoe staircase to the first floor on the main front facing Piccadilly; with the growth of London and of traffic such publicity was found inconvenient, and the staircase was removed in 1840, when the present incongruous portico was added, and what had been the servants' entrance became the front door. A few years later the great semi-circular addition on the garden front was built to contain Wyatt's magnificent circular staircase, with its famous glass balustrade and gilded ironwork; and in 1897 came a final improvement, the piercing of the blank wall looking on to Piccadilly, by the beautiful wrought and gilded iron gates brought after many vicissitudes, from Chiswick House, where they had been hung in 1838.

The Interesting Interior

The interior of the house is, however, far more interesting. It owes most of its art treasures to the third Duke, who added so largely to the collections that Pennant, the antiquary, found the pictures the finest private gallery in England. The interests of the fourth and fifth Dukes lay rather in the direction of politics, notably in the days of the Beautiful Duchess, when the social and political influence of Devonshire House turned the scales more than once in favor of Fox and the Prince Regent.

With a bare reference to the beautifully laid-out gardens, second only to the parks as an example of landscape gardenings in the heart of London, we may now consider the contents of some of the principal rooms, only premising that some of the greatest treasures once kept there have departed, the Liber Veritatis" of Claude Lorraine to Chatsworth, the Shakespeare, and other plays—once the Kemble collection—to America.

The Red Drawing Room, which owes its name to the brocade with which its walls are hung, has a ceiling decorated with painted medallions and delicate classic moldings, which are repeated in more elaborate form on the cornice and over the doors. Among its treasures are a magnificent portrait of a girl either by Velasquez or his son-in-law Mazo; an Innocent X from the same school; a second and very fine papal portrait by Carlo Maratta; a charming picture by Cornelius de Vos representing his little daughter in stiff ruff and formal dress, holding up an apronful of flowers; a striking portrait of an unknown navigator tracing his voyage upon a globe to his sweet young wife; and two noble Rembrants, one of them an old man resting his head on his hand, among the finest things he ever painted.

In the Dining Room

The dining room contains a delightful group, traditionally said to be the family of Sir Thomas Browne, author of the "Religio Medici"; two or three Vandykes, notably the charming Countess of Carlisle and her daughter; Reynolds' portrait of Lord Richard Cavendish, which was being painted when the Gordon riots broke out on June 3, 1780; and a splendid unknown portrait by Frans Hals. In the Great Drawing Room are two noble Salvator Rosas, both, and especially the "Jacob's Dream," above the level of his usual work; a Tintoretto; two early works of Rubens; and some good but not supreme pictures of the Dutch school.

It is the ballroom, however, that the finest pictures are to be found in the finest surroundings, the gilding and decoration on the walls and ceiling being at once lavish and dignified; specially characteristic of Kent's period is the splendid overmantle framing a picture, with its fine detail and typical pediment. A frame still more magnificent is let into the wall round the superb group by Jordaens —probably the finest known example of that artist's work—representing Frederick, Prince of Orange, and his wife, a masterpiece even among such things as Veronese's "Adoration of the Magi"; Rubens' "Holy Family"; Caravaggio's "Guitar and Flute Player," a work of wonderful "bravura"; Andrea del Sarto's "Madonna"; Le Sueur's interesting "Solomon and the Queen of Sheba," a work by a master rare in England; and the small but exquisite version of Poussin's "Shepherds in Arcady"—et ego in Arcadia vixi—better even than the famous picture in the Louvre over which Hazlitt lingers with such love and such regert.

Kent's Masterpiece

Last of the great public rooms comes the Saloon, Kent's masterpiece perhaps, full of carving and chiaroscuro, with its domed ceiling and gorgeous scrolls and wreaths; yet so perfect are its proportions, so refined its detail, that we hardly notice the parts in the splendor of the whole. The few pictures are placed in architectural settings over the doors, the places of honor being occupied by Kneller's portraits of the first Duke and of Lord and Lady Burlington. Everywhere is wonderful furniture and china, great crystal lusters and rare carpets, a contrast indeed to the plain and even severe lines of the house as seen from without, a fit setting, one feels, for the Beautiful Duchess whom Reynolds and Gainsborough have both immortalized in art and Coleridge in verse. Nor was the contrast unappreciated from the first as appears from the prettiest compliment ever paid by a Prime Minister, Sir Robert Walpole called to see the first Duke soon after Devonshire House was finished, but finding him out, wrote and left on the table the following epigram, perfect at once in point and grace:

Ut dominus domus est: non extra fulta columnis
Marmoreis splendet: quot tenet intus habet.

(This house is like its lord, not gay
With marble columns wide
To stun the world without; ah, nay.
Its beauties are inside.)

Like the epigram, Devonshire House will soon be a tradition, but a tradition associated with some of the most interesting episodes in the social life of its day. "Sic transit gloria mundi, Londinii"; and let us who have seen or read of that glory cherish its memory, for we are in, and of, another world.

Smart Styles in Wearing Dresses

Patons Ltd. Make Special Showing to Meet the Requirements of Charlottetown Ladies.

For a stylish afternoon dress or one for semi-evening wear Paton Ltd., are prepared to meet the demands of the most fastidious. Today they are showing a catchy line of dresses, only one of each style, which are just the needed article for the numerous social affairs taking place from day to day. In this showing of smart dresses are included designs modified from the leading extreme American styles and while they are wearable and becoming lose none of that chicness and individuality so much featured by the Americans. Many of the dresses, confections of silk and Georgette, show the silhoutte style featured so much in the past. Others are greatly varied and the waist line is again coming into favor being more closely defined by tiny ruffles or panels artistically draped to give the hoopskirt or hip flare effect.

The colors are blues, browns, taupe in different shades, etc., and one becoming model was of black and white striped silk with black and white ninon, the only trimming being touches of black jet which is decidedly fashionable. Colored bead trimming is seen on almost all dresses in handsome designs.

Among the very smartest street frocks shown, models of navy serge or similar twilled wool fabrics trimmed with a combination or braid and embroidery are exceptionally good. Pleatings are also much used. A frock may have a plain panel at either side with fine pleated front and back sections, or the back and front may be plain panels with decided side flare evolved through the use of panels formed of one, two or three pleated ruffles.

The waist counter has some of the dainties blouses in the city which could not help but beautify the most ordinary costume. To see is to purchase. Several handsome seal and Salts plush coats are exceptional good value, and are ticketed at selling prices worth investigating. Patons invite you to their store.

THE U. S. SENATE'S ACTION DISCUSSED

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The action of the United States Senate on the Peace Treaty, especially with regard to article Ten, receives prominence in some of the London papers whose headlines embody President Wilson's reference to "tearing out the heart of the treaty."

Few of the papers, however, comment editorially. The Daily Chronicle attributes the Senate action "to hostility to President Wilson rather than hostility to Europe" and says: "This in nowise relieves Europe from serious, possibly tragic, embarrassments for which American obstruction is responsible."

The Daily News sees little hope of America entering the League of Nations on the same footing as other nations and says this will be a grave blow to the hopes of the rest of the world, who looked across the Atlantic for full unselfish leadership in the task of re-ordering the world."

The paper, however, does not believe that the Senate today reports what will be in the mind of the American country next year or the year after and adds: "The attitude of the Senate is a misfortune but a misfortune time will remedy."
