LETTER OF SYMPATHY TO
MRS. HUGH GILLIS.
 Dear Mrs. Gillis—The members of the Eldon W. M. S. wish to extend their deep sympathy to you in the death of your sister Mrs. A.
 Matheson.
 God in His wisdom sends to all joy and sorrow. A great loss is adjusted to soften the first shock and the head thus bowed is raised again.
 We know too, that this rich and glorious life has more significance than as a preliminary of death. May God's Grace be sufficient for you in your sorrow.
 Signed on behalf of the Eldon Woman's Missionary Society, Eldon March 28th 1921

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED
 BY JANE PHELPS

DARKEST JUST BEFORE DAWN
 Chapter 126

In the morning the postman brought Dick a thick letter.
 His big serial had been accepted, and a check of such dimensions as made us gasp was his reward.
 "Don't you see, Dick, that you never needed Juanita or anyone else to make you a success? In fact, I rather think she put you back about a year." I remarked casually as we planned what we would do with the money. "It was perfectly lovely for her to wait to help you along. I wanted awfully to myself. But I felt I would only hinder, so I never offered."
 "Just as though you had not helped! Why, Nan, had it not been for you I never could have written anything. You financed the family until I got on my feet." It had been a long, long time since Dick had said anything like that to me. My eyes moistened yet I would not let him see how childish I was.

 "Let us go over and tell Juanita of your success," I suggested.
 Frequently I urged Dick to go over there with me. It gave him less excuse to go alone. Yet I knew that he did go; that her hold was still strong enough to make him long for her, and seek her society.
 Mary, Juanita's old servant who had been with her for many years, was in her confidence to an extent not often seen between maid and mistress. When we first met Juanita she had told me that she never had any secrets from this old woman who had been with her since her childhood.

 "She knows all my goodness and all my badness," she had said laughingly. "I can be quite myself with her."
 I never had liked the old woman, although I could give no reason for my dislike. She was inoffensive, almost servile toward Juanita's guests, but there was something almost sty about her.
 The parlor maid admitted as she said she would tell Juanita we were there. After a bit she came back and said her mistress was not in, and asked us to wait as she was sure she would soon return.
 We sat in the living room, the windows of which opened upon the porch. About 15 minutes had passed when we heard voices. Juanita and Mary had paused on the porch, and the windows being raised we heard distinctly. It was Dick's name uttered by Juanita that caught our attention—that kept us silent. Then,
 "New, Mary, you know it won't do any good to urge me."
 "But Miss Juanita," Mary's voice was stinging, "Master Williams ain't fitten to make you act like you do. He ain't nothin' but a poor writer man with a wife that he'd have to git rid of before he could marry you and—"
 "Marry me? That's rich! I don't want to marry him, Mary."
 "Then what do you want of him, Honey?"
 "I want to make him get rid of her! I want to show her I can!
 She thinks he cares for her, the ordinary little thing. Why he has been crazy over me since the first day I met him."
 "And you likes to show your power over him same as you have with the others don't you? But Honey, never mind worritin' about this writer man—let his wife have him."
 I listened to the old woman pleading for me with curiously mixed feelings. I couldn't have spoken to save my life. So it was to show her power over him that Juanita wanted to take Dick from me, not because she loved him.
 "I tell you Mary, I will not give up. I'll make him—make him say he wants me to go away with him.
 He is the first man who has ever resisted me so long. I'll prove to you that I can take him from her, the plain, unattractive working woman."
 "But you won't marry him, you never does Mrs. Williams ain't ever done nothing to hurt you.
 Just let him go, Honey. It ain't love you has for him else I wouldn't be a teasing you. It's only that gettin' them to love you, and then huffs at them. You ain't had Honey—only that way."
 "I won't let her have him!" Dick's hand was on my arm now, the pressure and his glance demanded silence. "Not until I have proven I can take him away from her." Juanita stamped her foot.
 "I tell you she's going to be at my feet where he belongs!" Dick opened the door and still holding my arm, drew me out upon the porch with him.
 "You have just said, Juanita, that Nan thought I cared for her.
 Well—I do! You see we have heard all you have said. We should have stopped you perhaps when we heard ourselves discussed. But well, we have proved the old adage that listeners never hear good of themselves."
 "I don't care if you did hear!
 Juanita was white with passion.
 "Mary is right! You are too common a man for me to bother with.
 A man who makes love to a woman and then tells his wife about

Make Us Prove It!

The leading magazines contain an intensely interesting interview with Mr. Edison, which you should read. He says:

"I am very glad that the records of all the principal talking machine companies can be played on the New Edison with the best possible results."

We shall be glad to prove Mr. Edison's statement. Lateral cut (needle machine) records sound better on the new Edison than they do on the talking machines for which they were made. Don't forget we are anxious to prove this to you.

Understand, please, they will not sound like Edison RE-CREATIONS, but they will sound better than you ever heard them sound before.

The NEW EDISON

"THE PHONOGRAPH WITH A SOUL"

Would you like to know Mr. Edison's favorite tunes? Ask us for a copy of "What Edison Likes in Music." Would you be interested in the favorite music of other great American men and women? We are running a straw ballot to determine the men and women in whose tastes the people are most interested. Will you vote? If so we will give you a Portrait Etching of Thomas A. Edison drawn by Franklin Booth, the celebrated American artist, who has also made famous etchings of Lincoln and Roosevelt. Size 12 1/2 x 19. Suited to framing.

A Quick Relief for Headache
 A headache is frequently caused by badly digested food, the gases and acids resulting therefrom are absorbed by the blood which in turn irritates the nerves and causes painful symptoms called headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc. A drop of Mother Selge's Syrup will correct faulty digestion and afford relief.
