Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and several members of her staff aboard a clipper on July 4 flew from an Eastern Canadian port to England. The plane was in command of Captain Howard M. Cook, Jr., who also commanded the plane which took President Roosevelt to the Casablanca conference. According to Pan American's account, Queen Wilhelmina was accompanied by her husband, Prince Consort, and a number of courtiers. She must have felt a great responsibility to carry the President, Captain Cook is said to have replied: "My responsibility then was no greater than the one I have today." The Queen invited Captain Cook to her table at dinner. Crew members reported that Queen Wilhelmina enjoyed the trip. She signed "short snorter" bills of the "My responsibility then was no greater than the one I have today." From a technical point of view the trip was perfect, and the clipper landed just four minutes after its estimated time of arrival.

Princess Alice walks miles after military establishments and other interests of the war effort with her husband. She has intelligent and interesting comments to make about virtually everything she sees. Appointments start at 11. It may be the head of a war service or of a large women's organization, or it may be some one who has rendered particular service to Canada. Most days there are guests for lunch—always official guests now because there is no purely social entertainment at Government House. Two afternoons a week she makes no appointments. Tuesday and Thursday. When her afternoon engagements permit she likes to walk not in the gardens of Rideau Hall, but along the corridors of hospitals or war factories. She has visited barracks of the R.C.A.F. women's division, and the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service. Princess Alice and the Governor-General seldom have a quiet dinner alone. Usually they are guests for dinner at one of the foreign legations there, or they entertain themselves.

Dorothy Dix Says—

WIVES WEARY OF HOUSEWORK MAKE WAR EXCUSE FOR FLING

Succumb To Brass Buttons, Being Dated, Excitement Of Crowds, Working With Men

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have been happily married for twelve years. I am 30 and my wife is two years my junior. We have a son 8 years of age. I have always provided for my wife and child and have been a good husband. We have our own home which I keep in top shape and I do most of the work myself. My family and home are all that interest me.

When our country entered the war my wife insisted that it was her patriotic duty to get a war job, which she did against my wishes. I felt trouble with us is the fact that she is working in an office where most of the force are officers in uniform, and when she is at home all she talks about is how nice they are to her, and how handsome they are. They take her to lunch, and several times she has called me to say she was being taken out to dinner, and she would not get home until all hours of the night.

Most of my friends and hers are talking about the way she is running about with these officers, and have warned me of what is likely to happen. They tell me she still loves me and that these men do not like her, but they are away from home and lonely and she is just trying to cheer them up, and she calls me a jealous fool because I object.

I have always loved my wife dearly, but have now lost faith in her and respect for her. I would have left her a long time ago with my first warning to her, but hesitated because of my boy. Will do you think of the situation?

WAR BREAKING UP MANY HOMES
ANSWER—I think that without intending it Uncle Sam has become first aid to divorce, and that the war is going to break up about as many homes in this country as bombs are going to break up homes in Germany and Japan.

The war has given all of the restless, dissatisfied wives, who are fed up with domesticity and a little tired of their good, unglamorous husbands, a chance to get away from home and have a little fling, and also to get back into the home fold after they have had a government job as it were, and to tell in the last war.

Maybe these discontented wives had been doing a little wishful thinking about Reno, anyway but they didn't have the nerve to risk what the neighbors would say if they left a perfectly good husband for no reason at all except that they were bored. And so they were restrained by their common sense from voluntarily throwing a good meal ticket into the discard. But working for their country was a Heaven-sent excuse for themselves. And they jumped at it.

And the inevitable has happened. They have succumbed to the glamour of brass buttons, and being dated again as if they were girls, and the excitement of working in crowds and going places and doing things has swept them into a mad love-making, even for those who were married men, sounds good to them after long years of being taken care of. And they are not counting the cost of what they are doing. It is a short life and a merry one, and let the consequences look out for themselves.

Naturally the stay-at-home husbands don't relish the situation. It doesn't thrill them to hear about handsome officers and gay parties. They think it is their wives' duty to serve the country on the home front and rear him to be a good citizen as it is to comfort soldiers. But what the husband is to do about it all isn't so clear.

My advice to my correspondents in this case is not to break up his home at present. Keep some place for the boy where he will feel that he belongs and is secure. Don't turn him out to shift for himself, as his mother has done, and try to be both mother and father to the lad. And perhaps after a while the mother will get tired of wandering and come back home. It is a nice thought, anyway.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband is a swell guy and very nice looking and I love him the way a woman loves but one man who works beside him in a big defense plant, and he said she returned his love and he said that he had fallen in love with a woman who would step out of his way and get a divorce so he could end his happiness with her.

But the next day he told me that he found he had made a mistake and that his home and our little girl meant more to him than the other woman, and he said that this other woman told him he was right to stay with me and that he shouldn't break up his home. She has a husband and a little baby girl, too, but she is thinking of getting a divorce. Now what shall I do?

WIVES FIGHTING FOR MATES PREVENT DIVORCE
ANSWER—Well, I'd say not to be so quick about handing out a divorce. It is no pass the biscuit, Mama. Don't rush out and get a decree like one. He may not really want it, after all. Make him wait for it. Give him time to think it over and decide whether he is really in love with the other woman and wants to ditch you and your little girl for her, or if he merely has a passing fancy for her because she works next to him and makes waves in him.

A lot of divorces could be prevented and many homes saved if wives predatory lady who comes along and casts covetous eyes at them. A wife may think she is acting noble when she tells her husband that she will not stand between him and his happiness, and turns him over to some love thief he is temporarily enamoured of, but, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, she is making him miserable, for generally as soon as he has gotten over his passing infatuation he longs for the old wife to whom he was adjusted in his youth, whose ways and habits he knows, whose cooking he likes, and his heart breaks for the children from whom he is separated.

Mrs. Roosevelt. "Oh, yes, Mr. Freeman," she replied. "I not only saw her but she has just finished changing the baby."

GOERING IN ROME?
LONDON, July 29 — (CP) — A Moscow radio broadcast, recorded by the Soviet Monitor said a Tass news agency dispatch from Geneva reported that Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering was believed to be in Rome.

GERMANS DIG IN
LONDON, July — (CP) — A German report on the Channel Islands says that the Germans have converted land and buildings, converted industries to their own use, provided themselves with libraries, shops, cinemas, and newspapers, and taken over all motor cars, radios and horses. Living & Leisure The Woman's Realm

And how to build a better world? Well, not by chart or plan. Unless we turn to fellowship and to a better man.

For all our dreams no nobler things will meet the same old fate. Unless we turn to fellowship and to a better man.

Because dockers' wives at Liverpool complained that their spouses were losing their wages gambling at work, four men, ring-leaders of a better ring, were fined about $5 each.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE
If you return to a shop to buy a dress you looked at before, ask for the clerk who waited on you before.

Through their numerous household uses and kitchen cooking aids, lemons play a leading role these days for they help to make work lighter for busy war-time homemakers.

Save Lemon Peel! A piece of it in the pot with cauliflower will help to bleach it and prevent yellowing. Also, cook lemon peel out in thin strips with applesauce to enhance the flavor.

Save Vitamins! Pour vitamin-rich vegetable water into a bowl containing unflavored gelatin, stir until dissolved, add a dash of lemon juice and put in refrigerator. A delicious aspic.

To freshen stale or wilted vegetables, soak them for an hour in cold water to which the juice of a lemon has been added.

For Woodwork: Use the juice of one lemon in one quart of water as a rinse when cleaning surfaces of painted or enameled woodwork. This will help to keep that glossy finish.

When watering the vegetable garden do not merely sprinkle but pour the water where it is needed most — at the deepest root. One more benefit to the plants than a dozen sprinklings.

Should the heads of early cabbage show signs of bursting before it is time to harvest them, bend the plants over. This will break some of their feeding roots and check development of the heads.

PLAY CLOTHES ARE EASY TO MAKE
NEW YORK—Thought turns to play clothes, how pretty, how easy they are to make, and how inexpensive to buy. Fifth avenue shops are doing a land-office business in them and season.

Some continue to grow in demand. You may look best in the boyish type with their masculine lines at the waistline, or go in for the more feminine variety, with pleats. Some come with suspended strap and overall.

THE COOK'S CORNER

SAVORY MEAT BALLS

If mixture evaporates too quickly, add a little hot water or tomato juice.

1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 pound ground beef
2 cup milk
1 onion, chopped fine
1-2 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
Shortening or salad oil
1-4 cup Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 cup tomato ketchup
Combine bread crumbs, beef and milk.

Add the onion, salt and pepper and shape mixture as 12 rather flat round cakes.

Brown richly in a little hot shortening or salad oil, then pour off all the fat.

Combine remaining ingredients, pour over meat and cover closely. Cook gently for 15 minutes. Serve very hot.

Develop a Lily Pool or Rock Garden in Your Yard

PRETTY POOL AND GARDEN
What could be lovelier than a cool lily pool set in a pretty rock garden. Like a beautiful mirror in a small room, a lily pool makes the rock garden seem larger. The surface of the water captures the reflection of rocks, ferns and the glowing sunset clouds.

So many think it is difficult to develop a garden like this. But it definitely is not, if you have a love of beauty, patience, and really want a distinctive garden.

Our 32-page booklet will help you to succeed with either a rock garden or a lily pool, whichever you prefer, or maybe you prefer to combine the two. Whatever you do, you can not help having a charming garden, all with the aid of a gardening expert, who gives her points of view in the booklet.

The lily pool and the rock garden have a special appeal for the amateur gardener—the pool because it quickly yields a return in loveliness and the garden because it is a challenge to the gardener's skill.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of How to Make Rock Gardens and Lily Pools to the Charlottetown and St. John's Home Service. Address: By mail to 15 cents in coins or stamps to Needlework Bureau, Charlottetown, Guardian, Needlework Department, Design No. 756.
