CHEAT BRIDEGROOM
OUT OF HONEYMOON.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Matching in Canada—matrimonially speaking—is quite different from matching in New York, as G.C. Irving, a merchant of Winnipeg, who came here on his honeymoon, will readily admit. His matching at home resulted in getting the wife of his choice. His matching in this city with two men he did not know resulted in losing $500, the total amount he had arranged to spend upon his bridal tour.

"You try and make yourself pleasant here," he said to his bride yesterday, "and I will go out and look over the city to note the places that would interest you."

Like a good bridegroom, he went forth in search of "blue prints" of the city's most interesting places. He was stopping at the Hotel Gerard, and he walked to the corner of Broad way.

"Fine day, this," said a stranger, who apparently was waiting for a street car.

Upon a pleasant answer in the affirmative the stranger asked him this question:—

"Where is Grant's Tomb?"

Mr. Irving admitted his ignorance and frankly disclosed his residence. Then the two men got in a car. At the next street a third man entered the car and addressing both asked to be directed to Grant's Tomb. He was immediately made a member of the party, since all were bound in that direction.

Before they had gone two blocks the first man that Mr. Irving met quickly informed him that the third member of the party was worth a million and often carried from $50,000 to $100,000 in his pocket. The car stopped at the next corner and waited several minutes while the traffic in the opposite direction was passing. The third member of the trio suggested that all get off for a drink. In a saloon in the fifties the proposal was made that they match for a dollar a round. Eventually this amount was raised. Five and ten dollars was the stake.

When Mr. Irving left the trio he was $560 loser, and in a way thought he was much wiser. He recounted his experience at the West Forty-seventh Street police station.

But the worst part of the tragedy was when Mr. Irving informed his bride of the circumstances. She became hysterical. He left the apartment hurriedly to the Long Acre drug store for something to quiet her nerves. In the meantime Mr. Irving telegraphed home for money and left for Canada soon after he received it.

And he never saw Grant's Tomb.

"You have seen the fireman's helmet, with its high front and long sweeping lines to the rear—that idea is in some of the new shapes. The new 'Buckley' collar is an illustration—a rough braid, with a standing novelty trimming of flowers, at front, girle of flowers around the crown. The 'Gaby' is another new hat—of shot silk in circuit draped effect, with long silk bow at back; a style that fits snugly over the head. Patons, 4-6dt.

GREAT IS THE AUTO.

One of the very noticeable features of the splendid automobile show at Mechanics' building this year is the remarkable way in which all purses are suited by the manufacturers of the country. The rich man can still pay as much as he likes for the ultra-refinements of automobile luxury; but nowadays the citizen of moderate means can get service, comfort and even quality at prices that a few years ago would have been called impossible.

All this tendency shows, of course, how widely the motor-car is appealing to the people. If anybody ever believed that the automobile was destined to run the short life of a fad or a toy, that belief is now wholly untenable.—Boston Post.

TEACHING CATTLE TO AVOID POISON.

The experiences of Walter Larden on the pampas of Argentina indicate that the avoidance of poisonous herbs is not, as has sometimes been thought, an instinct born in animals. There is a poisonous weed on the pampas called romerilla, which the native-born cattle and sheep have learned to avoid, but imported cattle and horses have to be taught not to eat it. That is done by tying them fast and then burning heads of the weed to the windward of them. The smell of the smoke breeds in them so great a dislike that they do not touch the green weed afterwards.

Ever since Sir Walter Raleigh discovered the soothing qualities of the tobacco leaf men have been developing, mixing and blending it into various mixtures to cater to the public taste. One of the most successful Canadian concerns in this endeavor is the Imperial Tobacco Co., whose immense plant and output enable it to maintain experts whose skill in blending tobacco gives an almost perfect product. One of their choicest brands of plug smoking is "Shamrock", a thoroughly matured American blended leaf, free from extraneous matter and prepared in such a scientific manner that the flavor and soothing qualities are intact and there is an entire absence of "biting" so prevalent in many brands. "Shamrock" is sold in enormous quantities from coast to coast. It is "at home" in the cabin of the Rocky Mountain Mines, the Alaskan gold dredges, and the Montreal Millionaire. Its good sized plug and modest price place this boon within the reach of all classes in Charlotte town. The Mackinnon Drug Co. carry a big supply of it and other Imperial brands and will be pleased to supply all wants.

WAIT MESSAGE FROM DR. FUNK.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Through the death of Dr. Isaac Kauffman Funk, in his home at Montclair, N. J., yesterday, members of the American Society for Psychological Research hope to obtain an authoritative communication from another world. Dr. Funk has made elaborate arrangements to establish communication with a living person on earth following his death, according to a statement he gave before the death in Boston of Professor William James of the department of psychology at Harvard University.

Dr. James had arranged, it was understood, to attempt to communicate with the earth through the medium of his spirit or that of another. Dr. James F. Hyslop, formerly professor of psychology at Columbia University, was designated as the person to whom he would send a message from beyond the grave.

Professor Hyslop has remained reticent concerning the matter, but it was believed in spiritual circles that he had received a message which he attributes as coming from Dr. James.

Following the Dr. James affair Dr. Funk said he had arranged to send messages from the next world, after his death and had completely improved arrangements, basing them on Dr. Hyslop's experience with Dr. James. "We have determined on a certain code of signals which no one on earth knows but the person to whom I will communicate and myself," said Dr. Funk at the time. If he receives one of these signals after my death he will be absolutely certain by it that I have reached him. He will then establish communication with me, either through a designated medium or by some means, which I may find in the next world.

EDWARD ARBELES, EDDIE DEONARD, AND LYDIA BARRY AT B. F. KEITH'S, BOSTON.

What is unquestionably one of the strongest all-star bills ever seen in Boston is promised for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week, headed by Edward Abeles & Co; Eddie Leonard; and Lydia Barry. As the star of Brewster's Millions, Edward Abeles has made thousands in all parts of the country laugh, and in his latest vehicle he has one of the best roles that ever fell to his lot. The comedy is entitled He Tried To Be Nice, and deals with the mishaps that befall a young husband who attempts to be nice to his wife. He begins at breakfast table by showing his wife his series of annual attentions and considerations. The result of this unexpected kindness, however, is that the wife thinks hubby has suddenly gone crazy, and attempts to have him placed under observation. Moral, if you are a married man, don't treat your wife to considerately. The shock may kill her. Eddie Leonard, who last season headed his own big minstrel company, will appear in a new act, assisted by Mabel Russell, As the author of Big Brown Boo-Boo Eyes, Mr. Leonard is already famous, and his latest original songs are said to be even better than his classic. Lydia Barry, comes direct from a long engagement in New York, where she played one of the longest runs on record. Miss Barry has an extensive repertoire of exclusive songs, all new, and she is bound to create even a bigger sensation than she did upon her last appearance here. Other big features will be Walsh, Lynch and Co., in a rural comedy sketch entitled Huckins' Run, "Klass and Bernie, two novelty entertainers; At-ken-Whitman Trio, three wonderful contortionists; Strength Brothers, the muscular marvels, and others.
