The days are filled with fog and wet; the nights, alas, are filled also; and writers on the cigarette papers fill to overflow. The cigarette's deadly tube which ornaments the city tube; but those who wear it in their face are not a credit to their race. I knew a "cig. fiend" years ago, who smoked these coffin nails all day, and when at night to bed he'd go, he'd smell like fire-scattered clover hay. Beware these little paper rolls, with mystery filled from end to end, will make you thin as fishing poles and cause your foot-steps to descend the downward path where smoke is cheap, where Lucifer snuffs all day long with monster bellows—and he'll keep the fire for smokers turned on strong. There's but one cop in Charlottetown, so we are told, and he can't keep his eye when walking up and down—on kids, and separate the sheep from goats who wear the smoker's frown. It's up to "pop" if safe at home, or not so safe in club or lodge, to go and gather in his own dear son, if he has learned to dodge his daddy's eye and smoke the cig. or stinkodoro on the sly; and on his pantlets play a jig: "soak him" then hang him up to dry.

H. M. S. Cornwall was coaled yesterday. Four hundred sailors did the work. Each man carried a basket. The 'phone is being used more and more each year. It is now regarded as a necessity—as one of the greatest inventions of all time. No person can ignore its uses—to do so would be to shut the door to modern progress. Not every person is using a phone now-a-days—just the few people who are prosperous and making money. And "there's a reason why" this is thus. The adv. of The Telephone Co. of P. E. Island, in this issue should be read by everyone.
