STORY WRITER.-- The Boston Post of November 28th contains an interesting story entitled "John" written by Miss M. Louise McMahon, Boston. Miss McMahon is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McMahon, now of Boston and natives of Charlottetown. Miss McMahon, who is yet in her teens, will have the best wishes of her many Island friends for continued success

MAKING GOOD.—Mrs. W. N. Riggs has returned to Charlottetown from a two-weeks visit through Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. She last visited Sydney, where she arrived just in time to meet her son Joseph before he departed for Bridgewater to take the position of accountant in the Bank of Montreal at that place. This is the fifth promotion for "Joe" since he entered the bank about four years ago, he having worked in Chatham, where he entered. Lunenburg, Woodstock and Sydney. It is plainly evident that he is making good, which will be good news to his many friends in Charlottetown.

THE NORTHUMBERLAND.— The Pictou boat arrived at Charlottetown last evening at half-past five o'clock.

A COMPARISON.--In the Montreal Herald of Monday a list of the prevailing market prices in that city is given, among which appear the quotations on butter, eggs and poultry. In comparison with the prices of the same articles here, it is seen how exorbitant the quotations in the Upper city are. Eggs, there, are selling at 65 to 75c. per doz., while here they go at 25 to 38c. per doz.; a difference of 40 and 37c. Choice butter, in Montreal, is going rapidly at from 30 to 32c. a lb. The dealer here is asking 25 to 28c.; a difference of 5 and 4c. In like manner the prices of poultry—chickens, fowl, geese, ducks, etc.—are far above what the dealer in Charlottetown asks and receives for his produce.

INTERESTING DEBATE. — The Young People's Mutual Improvement Society of Crapaud held its first debate of the year in Lady Fane Hall last Saturday night which was well attended. The subject was very ably discussed by the following speakers, —Dr. Boyer, Mr. John H. Myers, M. L.A., Messrs. Beer, Arding, Fraser, Myers, and Dr. Bell. The next meeting of the Society will be held on Saturday next at 8 p. m. the subject of debate being, "Resolved that the franchise be extended to Women."

CHURCH WORK.— Rev. J. M. Mc Connell of Sydney, formerly of Charlottetown preached last Sabbath evening on The Kind of Church Cape Breton needs. He pointed out that many hundreds of population are living in cheap and unattractiv boarding places—with scarcely an place for them to go for the evenings but out on the streets. The spirit of materialism has increased. The Sabbath is not the day it was. Wor upon the Sabbath day—as carried on in some of the industries is demorali zing. The Life of Cape Breton is col ored altogether today by Industrialism. This is true of the whole province of Nova Scotia. There is a spir it of restlessness and discontent abroad. The high cost of living, the necessity for many of our population crowding together in smalle houses on account of high rentals asked, all this complicates and in tensifies the problem before the Church today. Reference was also made to the growth of socialism with its literature, its agents, etc., also to more or less of antagonism that obtains between classes. "Mr. McConnell went on to point out a remedy by saying that "the church of today must be a Ministering Church. If her Gospel is to have a fair chance she must do more than preach. Her ministration must make the whole community more Christian. That ministry must sweep the whole circle of human needs. Hence the church has a Sociological Mission. In carrying out this mission there are great difference of opinion."

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

On learning that Mr. J. M. Nicholson, Station Agent at Port Hill, had been promoted by the Department of Railways to a position which will necessitate his departure, the residents of Port Hill, Tyne Valley and vicinity met a few nights ago at Mr. Nicholson's residence to show their appreciation of his valuable services as an official and also the esteem in which he and Mrs. Nicholson are held in the community.

After the assemblage had been organized Mr. W. J. Montgomery read a complimentary address setting forth the fact that while pleased with the promotion of Mr. Nicholson to take charge of the new and beautiful station at O'Leary, it was with the deepest regret that the whole community would witness the departing of himself and Mrs. Nicholson. He had been not only a capable and obliging official but a valued citizen and he and his family would be greatly missed. The address closed with suitable good wishes for continued prosperity.

The address was accompanied by two handsome and costly chairs, gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson.

Mr. Nicholson in reply thanked his neighbors for the kindly and altogether unexpected gift. The affair was a complete surprise to him, and, he felt, more than he had deserved. As a public official he had tried to do his duty without fear or favor and for that he considered that he deserved no thanks. For the valuable and beautiful presents he thanked them heartily on behalf of Mrs. Nicholson and himself They would always cherish fond memories of the many kind friends they had made during their residence in Port Hill.

Mr. H. D. Dobie, M.L.A., was called on for a short address. Mr. Dobie in the course of an excellent address referred to the debt of gratitude the community owes to its railway men for their kind and gentlemanly demearor and to the railways for the general efficiency in linking up the different sections of the country and making it great. He paid a glowing tribute to Mr Nicholson as an official and as a citizen.

Mr. A. Montgomery followed in a humorous speech. The other speakers were Dr. Stewart. Messrs George Welsh, W. J. Montgomery and James H. Yeo.

Mrs. (Rev.) J. J Bamford spoke on behalf of the ladies. She could personally testify to the kindness of Mr. Nicholson as an official of the railway and Mrs. Nicholson as beighbors and friends.

After the speechmaking refreshments were served by the ladies and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent in games, music and general merrymaking. Excellent music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. McAusland, the violin blending harmoniously with the skilfully played piano. The function closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

BONNIE BANKS MAY BE NATIONAL PARK

GLASGOW, Dec. 3.—Glasgow is to hae a new park. An' a decent sort o' park at that. Nane o' yer Hailyairds hemmed in wi' dykes, an' wi' the back windows o' tenements lookin' doon on a' body wha walks in them. Nane o' yer "Keep off the grass" notices, or "Protect the trees an' shrubs," or "Open only frae sunrise to sunset." But a haill swatch o' the Hielan's up the way o' Loch Lomond, wi' hills, and valleys, an brows in it. Some folk say it's to be a "national park." Maybe, but the ither day a deputation frae Glasgow Toon Coonncil were awa' up a lookin' at it; or least it is as muckle o it as they would see in a' day an' get hame again at nicht; an' some day we'll be hearin' their opinion on the idea o' turnin' this pairt o' the country into a park.

As to the "national" idea, there is really something in it. For there's a body kept as "the National Trust," which seems to hae been entrusted wi' the sacred duty o' lookin' after "places o' historic interest," an' they've got their eye on the bonnie, bonnie banks o' Loch Lomond, an' they too hae been sendin' deputations to view the scenery. But it will—when it comes— by a Glasgow park, a' the same, for sae lang as Glasgow has a million inhabitants it will use a park at Loch Lomond mair than g' the rest o' the country put together. But Glasgow winna object if the country buys the park an' puts it in trim. That's anither story.

GLASGOW PLANS BOULEVARD

Meantime, Glasgow has ither fish to fry. It is bargainin' wi' a' the ither local authorities concerned, an' wi' a' the lairds wha stan' to gain by the transaction, for as muckle lan' as will make a great, gran' new boulevard frae the west end of the city to Bowling. A Boulevard, mind ye! Nane o' yer common streets, or roads, or drives, or avenues for us. We hae the latest fashions direct frae Paris, an' when we dae things we dae them in style. Glasgow has a great highway to the north an' west in the road that leads through Clydebank an' Dalmuir to Dumbarion an' Helensburgh, an' up Loch Lomondside, but that road is the great avenue o' trade an' general traffic, an' it isna fair to the real gentry that their gran' motor cars maun mix wi' things o' that kind.

Sae we are to get a Boulevard. A great, big, wide Boulevard, stretchin' frae the west end o' Great Western road, across the Forth an' Clyde Canal, an' ower the North British Railway, past Kilbowie, an' inian' frae Dalnuir an' Old Kilpatrick to Bowling. It will gang through new country, an' it will hae trees on each side, an' twa o' the lairds concerned hae promised parks alongside some pairts o' the road for naethin', an' Glasgow will hae a great new way o' reachin' a' the West Hielan's—a' through fine scenery. An'—I nearly lost min' o' this—a' the lan' nearby will gang up in price, an' the lairds will mak a guid thing off it. But that's neither here nor there.
