CANADA TO STAND OR FALL WITH ALL BRITISH EMPIRE

MONTREAL, July 9.—"However we may feel about the attitude of the Motherland towards Canada in days gone by, let us realize that in the crisis that hangs over us now the interests of Canada and the Motherland are one and indivisible. Stand together or fall together."
In these words the Hon. Arthur Meighan, the guest of honor at today's luncheon of the Liberal-Conservative Association concluded an eloquent appeal to all parties and races in Canada to stand together during the troublous times of war. The speaker was introduced by Huntly Drummond.
Mr. Meighan announced that he had no special mission and no special message on his present tour of Eastern Canada, which is "half-holiday, half sight-seeing, and altogether to make me a better Canadian." He traced the great problems that had faced the Conservative party in Canada, beginning with Confederation and ending with the war. Canada, he said, had failed under a Conservative Government. At a time when the problems of nationhood had assumed unwonted magnitude.
The speaker criticized the attitude of the Opposition, in attacking the Government, while it was engaged in solving problems of the gravest magnitude.
"Many Liberal papers have adhered with reasonable strictness to the pledge of the leader of the Opposition and ending with the war. Can be hampered by unreasonable criticism," he said.
"But as a whole the leaders of Liberalism in Canada have not proved true to that pledge. By their course they shall be judged."
"Whatever charges may be brought against the Government, it can never be said that we upheld any way transgressions against the rights of the people. There sits in Ottawa today the former Chief Justice of this province, a man unassailed and unassailable, a court of inquiry to whom any citizen may go with a complaint."
"There are still some matters under review for which we are attacked in pulpits and in the press, but all the old scandals are dead. What old accusations have been rebuked, has become of the boot scandal? If there ever was an exploded scandal that is one. One after another the accusations have gone by the board. In some cases wrong has been brought home to men near the Government. In each case the leader of the Government has been the first to shield the honor of the people of Canada. He has set a standard of statesmanship that will inaugurate a new era in politics."
Uttering a plea for the unification of the people of Canada in the present crisis Mr. Meighan said that crises had always had the effect of uniting Canadians. Confederation had been made a success because there had come a famine in Nova Scotia, and the people of other provinces rushed to her assistance. Later an attempt in the United States to annex the Dominion further strengthened the Canadian bond.
"Today there is a peril about us transcending all, we have previously passed through," said the speaker. "It behooves the people of Canada to be united now. The crisis is bound to mean this if we are sensible and patriotic. It will mean much to the peoples who inhabit this country that in Europe the Wolfes and Montcalms are fighting side by side against a common foe."

TROUSERS 100 YEARS OLD
Long trousers are 100 years old this year. It was just a century ago that a London tailor, one bright spring morning walked jauntily down Bond street in London clad in the odd loose breeches that hung to his toes. He was a great curiosity and his "freak" apparel created no small stir. The wits of our day who ply their pens vigorously on the subject of women's dress were far outdone by the joke-smiths of a century ago when trousers were first worn. But the valiant tailor persisted, was the butt of London down, and thereby gave to modern man the clothing for his nether limbs. It is hard at this distance of time to realize the storm of disapproval that attended the transition from knee breeches to trousers. The jaunty tailor was assaulted by a mob and was arrested for indecency. The Duke of Wellington, fresh from his laurels at Waterloo, was later impressed with the greater convenience of the new garment and determined to popularize long trousers. So he had pairs made and wore them to a ball. Despite his high standing as a popular hero, he was turned away with the ultimatum. "The guests at this ball must be dressed." But slowly and surely the fashion of long trousers displaced that of breeches, stockings and buckles. The real reason was economy of time in dressing. Chauncy Depew, referring to this saving said: "A century of ten minutes saved each day by countless millions invents machinery, accumulates fortunes and fills libraries."

CONVENTIN OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

The general meetings of the convention were continued on Friday evening where a greatly augmented congregation came together to hear the sermon in connection with the Christian Women's Board of Missions. The preacher Pastor R. L. Buseberger of Maine himself a former missionary of the C. W. B. M. took for his text Luke 22:44-46 his subject being "Our forgotten Lord" No one likes to be forgotten yet how soon we forget those who have gone before how soon we forget our Lord absorbed as we are in our griefs, ambitions and interests yet in times of trial we are glad to remember Him. Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth while the evil days come not.
The moderator then introduced to the audience the Rev. W. D. Wilson of the Temperance Alliance. Mr. Wilson traced the origin of the Alliance to the time when Mr. Lord of the Christian Church in company with himself, at Montague resolved to save some of the men around who were slaves to drink. He defended the part taken by ministers in this movement. Israel of old prospered when her King were guided by the counsels of the prophets and the best things in public life today have been brought about by those who are nearest Christ. It was not a political dodge, they were against every man who broke the prohibition laws, whatever his politics. Having described how the troubles of the Alliance began and giving instances in which he saw the guilty had not been punished, he contended that the great aim of the Alliance and of the Church was the true Christian freedom of every individual from the slavery of drink, and moral slavery of every other kind.
