FROM FINANCIAL COUNSEL: Close observers of Canadian stock market conditions are presently expressing stocks so far this year and many feel that at last a point of general improvement has been reached. There has been a good improvement in the buying of moderate amount and coupled with a stated to be a continuation of interest being displayed by institutions, trusts, investment and groups. There is also being noted some little revival of interest in a speculative way. Stocks were advanced to some extent before the liquidation of public participation in the window advantage would be carried out to the disadvantage of prices. However, liquidation of such holdings was quickly arrested and in the closing days of last year there was a well advertised and probably last Monday's earnings and profit of the final selling of this amount. But that selling was met with buying of a more important nature and this has since been continued. The present attitude is that stocks have been well liquidated; have passed into strong hands and it will not take a great deal of time to get the market to turn the attention of the more speculative element to the possibilities now being indicated on the stock side.
