-FIRE ALARM. -About noon Monday Dec. 27th, the house occupied by John Gallant of O'Leary was seen to be on fire. There was a very ready response by the neighbors. Dr. A. S. Palmer had his water system in action at once and supplied an abundance of water. The fire had not very much headway and was quickly overcome. Mr. Gallant's mother, who has been bedfast for many years, lives with him and for a time was in danger of being overcome with the smoke. Preparations were made for her removal but fortunately this had not to be done. Quite an amount of damage was done to the house and furniture.

LARGE HORNED OWLS PREY ON MUSKRATS

QUESNEL, B. C., Jan. 3. -A total of 155 horned owls have been killed by Gordon Farwell of the Musquash Muskrat Farms at Swan Lake, near here, during the past six months. The last three owls, caught were of the Arctic variety, being almost pure white.

Question is Settled

It has always been a more or less continuous question as to whether or not horned owls preyed on muskrats. But now, so far as the Musquash people are concerned, the question has been definitely settled, and they will continue to make war upon owls and other predatory animals. Examination of the captured owls showed that the insides of many would equal 20 mile an hour drivers were filled with the carcasses of muskrats—bones, hide, skull and all.

Caught in Trap

The owls are caught with a steel trap, un baited, set on the top of a post imbedded on the lake shore, or in a meadow. Some years ago the Provincial Government placed a bounty on horned owls, but the sacks full of horns and claws which soon began to deluge the Government offices, threatened to bankrupt the Province and the bounty was taken off.

A SAD DEATH.

Wm. T. Rielly, farmer and carpenter, an honored resident of Haliburton, Prince County, was to be married on Wednesday last. He boarded with Mrs. Michael MacPherson and worked around his own home, which was quite near. On Tuesday he had his breakfast then went over to his home. Falling to return at noon, Peter MacPherson went across to find out why he was delayed. On entering his house he was shocked by finding him on the floor dead. C. F. Morrisey, coroner, was summoned by telephone from Tignish to hold an inquest. The jury consisted of George Mathew, foreman; John P. Rielly, P. J. Bulger, W. T. Rielly, Bernard Rielly, Lawrence Rielly and Matthew Howatt. After examining the witnesses they returned a verdict "that death was due to natural causes."

On the Religious Memory of Mrs. W. P. Bradshaw, Bedouque (nee Maude Rome, this city) My Christian Friend, Deceased, August 4th, 1926.

"When Faith, and Love, which parted from thee never, Had ripened thy just soul to dwell with God, Meekly thou didst resign this earthly load Of death, called life which us from life does sever. Thy work and aims, and all thy good endeavor, Stayed not behind, nor in the grave were trod; But, as Faith pointed with her golden rod, Followed thee up to joy and bliss for ever. Love led them on; and Faith who knew them best Thy handmaids, clad them o'er with purple beams And azure wings, that up they took us to dress. And speak the truth of thee O glorious themes Before the Judge, who henceforth bid thee rest, And drink thy fill of pure immortal streams." -R. E. B.

"OH BOTHER, there's that tiresome old woman again. Just because I sympathized with her once— Then like an arrow came a strange thought. The office girl's gaze went past the shabby dress, the hopeless coat, and rested on the seamed face with the wistful eyes from which fear looked out—the fear that dwells with the aged poor. The girl knew her story. Once young of course, and thoughtless, happy with a husband and a home. Then came hard times. Luckless speculations swept away what little they had. The husband died at the wrong time, and left her unprovided for. The widow drifted here and there... finally to this... selling pencils to people who didn't want them. So, to the office girl came these drumming questions that would not down—"could this happen to me? Could it? Old, helpless forlorn... no money... unwanted. What can I do to make sure I will never come to this?" For the first step in protecting YOUR old age, send in the coupon to-day.

IN MEMORIAM

WILLIAM J. YEO

The following is taken from a Calgary paper: Funeral services held at Wesley United Church on Tuesday afternoon, for the late William J. Yeo, were attended by a large number of friends gathered to pay their last respects. Rev. W. E. MacNiven officiated, assisted by the Rev. Canon James, Mr. J. W. Quinney sang "Crossing the Bar," accompanied by Mr. Harvey Rimmer on the organ. The late Mr. Yeo, was born at Higgins road, P. E. I., and came west some twenty years ago, settling in Edmonton, where he started the firm of W. J. Yeo and Co., in 1916. Two years later he moved to Calgary, to be more centrally located in relation to the mining industry, as his firm acted as manufacturers agents, supplying mine and power plant equipment. In 1913 he married Miss Annabelle Mussetman. He took an active interest in church work, being on the boards of stewards of Wesley church at the time of his death. He was taken ill in February of this year, and after spending some time in hospital in Calgary, he went for a trip to the coast, in the hope that it would add his recovery. However, upon his return he had a relapse, and in order to be in the hands of the doctor who had ministered to him a number of years ago, he went to the hospital at Lamont, Alta., where he passed away on December 4. Miss Catherine Yeo, a graduate of the New England hospital, Boston, came west in April to nurse her brother, and was with him at the time of his death, as were also Mrs. Yeo and Mrs. R. E. Harrison (a sister of Mrs. Yeo's) and Mr. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison reside at Lamont. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and son, Donald, and four sisters and our brothers. The large number of floral tributes bespoke the high esteem in which he was held. The remains were laid to rest in Burnside cemetery.

G. A. MCINNIS

G. A. McInnis on Nov. 26th, ult. He was around as usual on the day before, retiring about 10 o'clock. He got out of bed during the night and started a fire. His daughter, Mrs. McDonald hearing him at the stove quickly got up and came to see what was wrong. He said he felt his feet very cold. She gave him some stimulant and in a short while he said he felt quite comfortable and went back to bed. She stayed around a little longer and before retiring went to see her father. It was a sudden and unexpected shock to her to find that he was drawing his last breath when she came to his bedside. He was one of the oldest residents of North Lake, being in his 85th year. His kindness of heart and genial manner made for him many friends. He was particularly fond of children and many happy moments they spent in his company. He had a large family of his own—thirteen, some of whom are dead and the others, except his daughter, Margaret, who was living with him on the old homestead, live in different parts of the U. S. Five of his sons are in the employ of the N. E. Telephone Co., since they left the old home many years ago. Still, they regularly wander back and spend a few happy days among the scenes of their childhood. Two of his daughters trained as nurses in American hospitals; one, Annie, married to Mr. Murphy of Lockport, Maine, died suddenly about one year ago. The other, Florence, is married to Mr. Alfred Rose, formerly of Priest Pond, but now with the N. Y. and N. H. and H. bridge constructors. His son, Frank, arrived home Sunday morning in time to be at his father's funeral. To do so, they had to motor from Charlottetown over an almost impassable road, occasioned by previous heavy rains. It took eleven hours to reach their objective. Frank is very grateful to A. P. McPhee, engine-cleaner of Elmira, who went to meet him for doing what he, mile after mile, predicted impossible. A large gathering of both young and old, followed his remains to St. Columba Church, where the requiem services at the Church and the grave were performed by the parish priest, Rev. R. J. MacDonald. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Plus MacAulay, Columbia J. MacDonald, Daniel J. Campbell, Laughlin A. MacDonald, Marcellus MacInnis, and Joseph MacInnis. The deceased was a brother of the late Joseph F. MacInnis, painter of Charlottetown. (Other papers please copy.)

parts is simple. Put kerosene on the piston. It will work down and help free the frozen surfaces. When the engine has cooled, try to turn the engine over gently with the hand crank. Never allow a piston to remain frozen.

THIS WORK REQUIRES CARE

Radiator leaks that occur frequently in Winter often are small enough to tempt car owners to repair them themselves. Cellular radiators can leak only at the ends of the tubes or around the edges of the core and these seem so simple to remedy that anyone could do the work. A little solder, applied at the right spot, will stop such leaks. It is a ticklish job, however, because of the danger of melting the solder already present, thus causing greater leakage.

EITHER NAME IS RIGHT

"Wrist pin" or "piston pin"? Which is correct? Both are being used a great deal these days. Either is correct, but piston pin seems more accurate.

IF YOU STORE THE CAR

Should you decide to lay the car up for the Winter, don't forget the battery. If the storage is in your own garage, remember to charge the battery every two weeks by the Musquash people are concerned, the question has been definitely settled, and they will continue to make war upon owls and other predatory animals.

WHEN USING BENZOL FUELS

Motorists who turn to benzol fuels should have the carburetor of their cars set at a leaner adjustment than for ordinary gasoline if they would get a maximum mileage.

SAVE THE THIRTY PER CENT

Thirty per cent of the heat value of the fuel used is wasted by the average automobile, tests by the United States Bureau of Mines reveal. The incomplete combustion products are carbon monoxide, hydrogen and methane. Improper carburetor adjustment is responsible for a large part of this waste. The carburetor set for maximum power and efficiency will show in the car's operation costs.

WHEN A PISTON FREEZES

Paradoxical as it sounds, heat causes pistons to "freeze" and more often in Winter than in Summer. A piston, allowed to run without sufficient lubricant, becomes abnormally hot and sticks fast to the cylinder wall. The engine stops under such circumstances. The remedy for freeing the affected operation costs.

BE THOROUGH IN THIS

When draining the water from the cooling system that is equipped with a thermostatic device, do not forget that the automatic valve interferes with the release of the water. When the engine is cool, the valve is closed and much of the water is trapped. Means are provided for opening the valve by hand when draining is necessary. If this operation is forgotten, it may mean part of the cooling solution will freeze in spite of your precautions. (Copyright by the Ullman Feature Service.)

NEW ZEALAND IN 7 DAYS

FLIGHT PLANNED BY PILOT

LONDON, Jan. 3. -Captain Courtney, well-known air pilot, is elaborating plans for the most ambitious long distance flight yet conceived—an aerial voyage from this country to New Zealand by flying boat in about 7 days. He intends to fly day and night over stages of about 1,500 miles each, stopping only long enough at the end of each stage to refuel. The machine to be used for the flight would be probably a large twin-engine British flying boat, built to carry a heavy load with a cruising speed of between 90 and 100 miles an hour. On fine days Capt. Courtney hopes to do no more than a 1,500 mile stage, but perhaps a stage and a half. When fires occurred recently in the studios of Gloria Swanson and Charlie Chaplin, camera men made "shots" of the flames for possible use in future productions.
