

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it once.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day, although of United States birth is of British origin. It was instituted by the British Puritans in New England in 1621 after the first harvest in the Plymouth Colony had been gathered in.

Later Canadian settlements followed and here also religious service marked the observance. Gradually the religious feature has been undermined by other considerations and we fear the great majority of us today are thankful for the holiday rather than for the bountiful harvest which too many of us think is due rather to our good management than to Providence.

Some years ago in Canada, on the recommendation of the Commercial Travellers' Association the Thursday holiday was changed to Monday in order to enable those who happened to be away from home to spend the week-end with their families. Two years ago it was decided by Act of Parliament that the Monday of the week in which Armistice Day occurs be observed as Thanksgiving Day.

Nevertheless the day will be observed by very many with feelings of profound gratitude and thankfulness. And there is much to be thankful for, the bountiful harvest, the world's peace, the growing prosperity of our country, the passing of the famine and starvation and misery in many European countries and the promise of settlement of the many threatening situations in Europe.

May the day be a profitable one to all, profitable in all that is worth while, in enjoyment and in thankfulness.

A STEP FORWARD

The prompt action taken by the Stewart Government in connection with Immigration and Colonization, on the threshold of its tenure in office, is most gratifying and encouraging. The call for immigrants has been heard in this Province for many years. There was a continuous wail over our exodus; everybody recognized that our declining population must be made good by an influx of immigrants, but nothing was done.

definite programme. Whether the inducements we have to offer will be sufficient to attract desirable immigrants remains to be proven.

A survey of the farms available for purchase will be made at once and full information will be available in the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture, not only for immigrants, but for any of our own people who may desire to purchase farms. This move will fill a long felt want and, we believe, will do very much to settle many of our vacant farms.

At the interprovincial conference to be held in Ottawa this week to take up the subject of immigration our province will be ably represented by Hon. J. H. Myers, Commissioner of Agriculture. This also is a prudent step. Our only hope for immigrants is co-operation, not competition, with the other provinces.

We need immigrants. This is recognized by all and we trust our people as a whole will give all possible assistance in the efforts now being made to secure them.

DAIRYING

Canada's growth in agricultural development may be measured by the growth of its dairying which is the foundation of all real farming. According to recent statistics the output of dairy butter in the Dominion between the years 1900 and 1922, the output of butter has increased by over three hundred per cent and the value by over six hundred per cent.

The total quantity of creamery butter made in Canada in 1922 was 147,752,774 pounds and the value $51,539,780 being the largest showing in the history of dairying in Canada. The total quantity of cheese in the same year was 136,579,473 pounds, valued at $22,067,106.

This is the strongest possible evidence of the agricultural development of Canada. Milk production is the foundation and the means of agricultural wealth. While producing direct wealth it indirectly adds to soil fertility. While it produces wealth it keeps the source of wealth intact and enables it to increase its production.

Notes By the Way

Lloyd George in his American tour, as stated by his secretary, delivered seventy public addresses and only one of them exceeded forty minutes in the time occupied in its delivery. That was spoken in New York to an audience of 5,000 and heard by radio by many thousands more, on the eve of his sailing on his return to England.

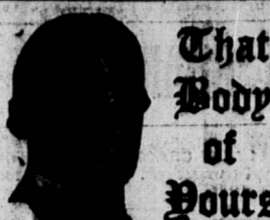

Two public men who sat in the first Dominion Parliament, who were widely known fifty years ago and to whom the writer of these notes has often listened were Thomas D'Arcy McGee and Christopher Dunkin. The latter was the author of a so-called Dunkin Act, the first local option temperance act in Canada. Dunkin was constantly interrupting McGee when the latter was speaking. He was an able lawyer, but small in stature. In one of their collisions McGee retorted, quoting from Moore: There was a little man and he had a little soul.

Just between little you and little I, I, I. The House roared with laughter at the little man, but it did not cure Dunkin. On a later occasion, replying again to his interrupter McGee proposed to recite a nursery rhyme appropriate for the moment. "We have heard that before" said Dunkin. "Oh, no," said McGee; this is a new one: Twinkle, twinkle, little star, How I wonder what you are. And again the House broke into hearty laughter. The incident is recalled by Bystander in the Globe.

Captain Read in his letter printed in The Guardian of Saturday last admits that he was mistaken and owes an apology to the writer of these notes. We accept his apology. Newspaper readers soon grow tired of prolonged controversy, especially when one of the parties there to is an official, rather than an expert in argument, and is obsessed of a desire to place himself perpetually in the limelight. But any way, we accept Captain Read's apology, as we have said, and let it go at that.

Waste and extravagance are reprehensible in any party at any time and never more so than in these days of high taxation. A case in point is that of the late Drury government in Ontario, which shortly before the recent provincial election let a contract for car markers for 1924 at 23 cents a set. The Conservative government now in power cancelled the contract and made a new bargain at a fraction under 14 cents a set, and on an order for 300,000 of these markers which was the number required, effected a saving of nearly thirty thousand dollars. As it was in election times when the first contract was given, the Moncton Times concludes that it would be interesting to learn what contribution to the party funds was expected of the firm that got the contract at the highest price. Also that it would be interesting to know what the Venet government in New Brunswick is paying for car markers!

King George has asked that flag be flown at the mast head on Armistice Day. An American general who served in the late war has made a like request of the people of the United States. This is because in previous celebrations of Armistice Day the practice has varied and some have left the flag at half mast to commemorate the heroic dead and the sufferings caused by the war. These must not be forgotten, but Armistice Day was not established as a day of mourning. Rather than that it was fixed for the joyful celebration of victory, of peace restored and liberty assured. Here in Canada Thanksgiving Day has been made coincident with Armistice Day and the Old Flag at the mast head will fittingly express our gratitude to God and our patriotic joy for victory won by heroic sacrifice.

That Body of Yours

YOUR ASSETS AND LIABILITIES

After listening to the recital of a man's ailments, the physician said to him: "Well is there anything about you, any organ in your body that is really all right?"

The patient brightened up and said: "Well every doctor says I have a strong heart." The physician by a little questioning and examining found that other parts were all right also. He showed him his strong points and his weak points, his assets and his liabilities. Did you ever size yourself up the same way? One of our recent health writers tells of a man of seventy eight who was asked how it was that he was the only member of the family who had lived so long. His brothers had died in their early fifties.

Some people also have no desire to know their weak points as they are afraid they might worry about them and thus make life a burden. But I believe the average common sense man likes to know exactly how he stands, just as he likes to know how his business stands. His assets and liabilities. With this knowledge he can perhaps eat more or less, work more or even less, play more or even less.

American Surgeons Talk About Cancer

Cancer—the disease that is giving the medical and surgical world its hardest battle—engaged the attention of the American College of Surgeons last week in its session at the Congress Hotel. Cancer to-day is the most fatal disease known to medical science, 99 per cent. of cases causing death if allowed to run their course. Only heart disease and tuberculosis outrank cancer as a cause of death, although the majority of its victims are persons over 45 years old. Dr. John Wesley Long, Greensboro, N. C., one of the leading cancer specialists of America, said that cancer can be cured if taken at the beginning. Dr. Long denied various notions regarding cancer in a summary as follows, according to a New York Herald despatch: "Cancer is strictly an individual disease, being neither contagious nor hereditary.

"Cancer is the most fatal disease we know, 99 per cent. of the cases proving fatal if allowed to run their course. "Cancer is a disease of adult life. 85 per cent. of those who die from it being 45 years old or more. Of those reaching 40 years one man in every twelve and one woman in every eight die of cancer. Death Rate Increasing While the death rate from typhoid fever, tuberculosis, malaria, pneumonia and even old age is constantly on the decline, that from cancer is increasing at the rate of 2.5 per cent. annually. For instance, in five of the larger European countries the death rate in 1831 was 44.8 to the 100,000 population, and in 1911 it had risen to 90.4. To come nearer home, the death rate in Massachusetts in 1871 was 39.9 and in 1911 it was 62.0. In the United States as a whole the death rate from cancer is 78.9, which means that 90,000 people die of cancers in the United States every year, or one every six minutes. Cancer slays as many people each year as died from wounds and disease during two years of the world war. Everyone will admit that public opinion upon any subject is largely a matter of education and growth," said Dr. Long. "Why, it has not been generations since we burned witches, even now we burn sexual maniacs at the stake. Well do I remember human slavery and the defence our Christian parents made for it, and we are all familiar with our recent toleration and license of the liquor traffic."

Home Treatment. That old-fashioned home remedies, such as grandmother's "herb tea," are sometimes not so bad, in the case of such an ailment as measles, for example, was admitted by Dr. Long. "The cause of many of the most common diseases have not yet been discovered," he said. "Measles is a good illustration. Yet many a housewife can take her hot herb teas and cure the measles!" Dr. Long even suggested a possible home treatment for an initial cancer, but it was rather a Spartan remedy. "In the list of cancer treatments" he said, "thermo-cautery runs the knife a close second. We should tell the people that thermo-cautery simply means a hot iron. A poker heated in the fire and applied to the local lesion will cure many a case of potential cancer and some actual cancers as well. And how simple it is. But to be effective, it must be used before the lymphatics have carried the cancer cells into the blood stream."

If cancer and other diseases have their home remedies, they also have their home causes, Dr. Long said. Many Causes "A familiar example is the man who habitually holds a short-stem pipe in his mouth, often producing a cancer of the lip," he said. "The irritation here is mechanical, from the stem, and in part chemical, from the nicotine. A broken or rough tooth may do the same thing for the tongue. Eating too hot food is another cause. "In China cancer of the oesophagus is not unusual among the men who eat their rice steaming hot, while the women, who first wait upon the men and do not eat their rice until it is cooled, do not have cancer."

"We hold on tenaciously to moles, warts and lacerations, traveling along through life unconscious of the fact we are carrying a potential cancer around with us all the while. Furthermore, we constantly irritate such abnormal possessions by ill-fitting dress, improper habits unwholesome diet, combs and razors, all of which may be compared to the match of irritation which lights the fire of malignancy. A stick of dynamite in one's vast pocket would be less dangerous."

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea" and the choicest of Red Rose Teas is the ORANGE PEKOE QUALITY unmatched for fragrance and exquisite flavor.

Texas State Medical Association of the whole premises at the time and State chairman of the American Society for Cancer Control, said that exposure to excessive sun and wind in a dry climate also gives rise to cancer. That makes the Texas Pan-handle a place for people with thin skins to avoid, according to Dr. Scott. In this his colleague, Dr. W. Burton Thorning of Houston, agrees with him. If cold cream were found beside the wash basin on every Texas ranch instead of being restricted to milady's boudoir there would be a great decrease of skin cancers in Texas and other dry Western States, these surgeons think.

PROBABLY GOT THE JOB After a ruthless process of rejection there were five applicants for the post of errand boy left for the head of the firm himself to interview. It was one of his flippant mornings, and he sought to amuse himself by asking the eager boys puzzling and quite irrelevant questions to test their general knowledge. "How far away from the earth is the North Star?" was the question he fired at the third shiny-faced youngster. "I'm sorry I cannot give you the exact figure of hand, sir," was the reply, "but on a rough estimate I should say that it is far enough away not to interfere with by running errands."

Tenants May Live Rent Free 15 Years

(By Dominion News Service.) LONDON, Nov. 9.—Of great interest to landlords and tenants was an action brought at Lambeth County Court by a tenant against his landlord for charging him overpaid rent.
