

Unusual Activity In Cakes

Our cake department is kept busy. People realize that it is a great advantage to be able to procure cake such as ours. Our cake department should appeal to you from an economical standpoint also, because our prices are very low considering quality. Let us convince you.

E. J. DesRoches
Sunnyside

GUARDIAN CLASSIFIED ADS.

BOARDERS WANTED

TWO YOUNG MEN, boarders, wanted, near college. Use of Encyclopedia Britannica. Apply at 224 Cumberland St. 12-2143lpd.

TWO BOARDERS, can be comfortably accommodated at Miss Ayer's, 57 Bayfield St. 12-164td.

FEMALE HELP

WANTED, a young girl to assist with housework. Apply at 187 Prince. 12-2246lpd.

WANTED, a girl for general housework in small family. Apply at 40 Kent Street. 12-2243lpd.

WANTED, at once, a girl for general housework, in a small family. Good wages paid. Apply to Mrs. M. A. Allan, 81 Fitzroy Street. 12-224td.

WANTED, a girl for general housework. Apply to Mrs. F. A. Hall, St. Avards. 12-2141wpd.

WANTED, a girl for general housework, at once. Apply to Mrs. R. S. Hogan, 18 Prince St. 12-2041w.

A GIRL capable of making herself generally useful in a store, and who is a competent stenographer and typewriter will find a good position by writing quickly to "Greyhound," Box 492, Charlottetown, giving reference, former position and salary expected. 12-154td.

FOUND

FOUND, on 20th, an extension bracelet. Owner may have same by applying at this office and paying for ad. 12-2243i.

FOUND, on 20th, fountain pen in front of Roger's Hardware store. Owner may have same by applying at this office, and paying for ad. 12-2243i.

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—House No. 36 Longworth St., Spring Park, containing eight rooms with barn and yard in connection. Apply to Mrs. Inman on premises or James Ross, Tryon. 12-2346lpd.

FOR SALE, one child's sleigh, upholstered, Island make. Apply at Guardian. 12-2243lpd.

FOR SALE, a grand upright, Bell piano, as good as new; also, a number of valuable oil paintings and a music cabinet. Apply to 60 Grafton St. 12-2143lpd.

320 HANDSOME mottoes just arrived in time for Xmas. Free exhibition. Simply wonderful. Be sure you call at 170 Queen St. Sabbath School Teachers invited. 12-2045lpd.

AUCTION SALE—There will be sold by public auction, on the market square, in Charlottetown, on Tuesday the 27th day of December, instant, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, one dark brown horse three and one half years old. Dated this 20th December, A. D., 1910. 12-2143lpd.

FOR SALE, the lecture of 28 pages delivered by Rev. W. Harrison before the Theological Union at St. John's on "Unconscious Orthodoxy," can be obtained by addressing 63 Upper Prince St., Charlottetown, at 10c per copy. 12-2143i.

TO LET, Bijou Theatre. Possession given at once. Apply to M. Duffy, 85 Prince St. 12-2143lpd.

TWO HOUSES to let or for sale. Apply to Henry Rackham, City. 12-8td.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, immediately, a first or second class male teacher for the advanced department of the North West School. Supplement $50. Apply to J. T. Godfrey, Sec'y Trustees. 12-2141w.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

WANTED, a teacher for Cavendish school for Jan. 1. M. Robertson, Sec. 12-1042w.

WANTED, ten to twenty live geese, large and fat. Will give good price. F. J. Holman & Co., City. 12-2243i.

EUPHEMISTIC.

The negro on occasion displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words. "Who's the best whitewasher in town?" enquired the new resident. "Ale Ham all a bon'd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered colored patriarch eloquently. "Well, tell him to come down and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow." "Ah don't believe, sah, Oh'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah." "Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?" "Yes sah, a powerful good whitewasher, sah, but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah; mighty queer," Human Life.

CARRYING COALS TO NEWCASTLE.

The joke is on Hon. Geo. P. Graham, who represents the city of Rockville in the House of Commons, and it is on him good and hard. It was while he looked about in the Hudson's Bay Company's store at St. John's, on the Saskatchewan river, while on his recent trip that the joke was hung on him, and he appreciates it all the more because it was put on his so innocently. The Minister of Railways saw some long-sleeved driving gloves that interested him, and he remarked to a friend that it might be a good scheme to buy some to take home to "the boys." Turning to the factor he asked, "Where do these gloves come from?" And the factor answered, "From Brockville."

BEING AGREEABLE.

The true art of being agreeable is to appear well pleased with all the company, and rather to seem well entertained with them than to give entertainment to them. A man thus disposed, perhaps, may not have much learning, nor any wit; but, if he have common sense or something friendly in his behavior, it conciliates men more than the brightest talents without this disposition; and later, a man of such a turn is almost sure to be treated with respect.

IN LATER DAYS.

An old "grad" of the sixties, who happened to see a crowd of new students disporting themselves in a manner which seemed to him to be quite unseemly, was heard to philosophize as follows: When I see a youth with his pants turned up and his beautiful socks on view, And over one eye perched a little round hat with a ribbon of mauve or blue, And fourteen rings and seven pins that he got at his dear prep school, Why, it strikes a chord, and I say "Oh, Lord! was I ever that big a fool?"

When I see a youth with his gloves turned down, and a cigarette stuck in his face, And a loud check coat and a horse cloth vest and a half-inch-wide shoe lace, And a bunch of hair that hides his ears, and a line of senseless drool, Then I paw the sward as I say: "Oh, Lord! was I ever that big a fool?"—Princeton Despatch New York Times.

WOMAN'S CHARACTER.

What a woman should demand of a man in courtship, or after it, is, first, respect for her, as she is a woman; and next to that, to be respected by him above all other women. But let her stand upon her female character, and let the attentions incident to individual preference be so many petty additaments and ornaments—as man, and as fanciful as you please—to that main structure. Let her first lesson be—with sweet Susan Winstanley—to reverence her sex.—Washington Herald.

HEARSE AND CASKET FOR DEAD SPANIEL.

Followed by three carriages, a hearse drew away from the door of a saloon at No 314 Delaware Street. In the hearse rested a tiny white casket containing the body of Tuscon, a cocker spaniel dog, the property and friend of Daniel T. and Mrs. Virgin. In the carriages rode the spaniel's friends.

HEARSE AND CASKET FOR DEAD SPANIEL.

"Tuscon was the best friend I ever had," Mr. Virgin who owns the spaniel said, "and the best funeral I could give him was none too good for him." He never asked for anything, but was always ready to lay down his life for me. How many human friends do we have of whom we can say as much?

Tuscon was two years old and had been raised by Mrs. Virgin, to whom he was given as a puppy. He died of pneumonia.

During the time Tuscon's body lay in the rear room of his saloon his bier was visited by hundreds of men in the North Side who had known him.—Kansas City, (Mo.) corr. Chicago.

CODS' HEADS AS FOOD.

Ever eat a cod's head? If not, try one, and make the acquaintance of sea food worth while. When properly cooked, the epicure will tell you—and there is more than one way to prepare it for the table—a cod's head is a very savory dish, a thing of gastronomic beauty and a joy forever to the stomach of the man who knows how to appreciate and relish good eating. There is a flavor about it that puts away in the background many of the delicate refinements of artistic and decorative cookery of the more pretentious sort. It has a rich glutinous substance that is brought out in the cooking, something of the nature of the gelatine in a calf's head, only finer and more tasty.

"Take, for instance, baked cod's head," says the man of cods' heads. "There's a dish that makes a lasting impression. For cooking the head is first split open, then it is laid in a pan with a little water and placed in a hot oven. When nearly done a sauce of milk and butter slightly thickened with flour is poured over it, and it is allowed to remain in the oven a little longer. When transferred to a hot platter, with the rich dressing of cream sauce, and garnished with sprigs of parsley, it will tempt most any appetite. And its taste is even finer than it looks."

One hotel in Boston makes a specialty of baked cod's head served hot with sauce, but with slices of pork. On Fridays a row of large, white heads are displayed in a glass front refrigerator. Rarely are they left over, for a number of good livers who always dine well are partial to the dish, have that place on their list. They generally manage to be there on the days that baked cod's head is served, and each man goes to the ice box and picks out the head he wants. It is the most popular dish, with certain diners, that goes to the table at that particular hotel.—Boston Globe.

SMALLER DINING TABLE.

For the simple reason that vegetable dishes are not placed on them nowadays small dining tables are by custom also decreed that the roast must be handled by the maid and not placed, as in other days, before the head of the household. A few flowers and a dish of fruit are upon the table, where an empty dish may also repose, but the vegetable dishes are kept from sight of the diners, though the tables are much smaller than are more ornate. Candlesticks are often placed on the table at the corners, four of them being used. Serving tables, aside from the main table, are attractive and can be bought in all kinds of wood.

THEATRE CAPS.

A Paris correspondent, in speaking of the edict that has gone forth in the past year, relative to the abolishment of hats in the Theatres, says that at first it was felt that this would be a crushing blow to the Parisian, whose splendid headgear hason always attracted attention from the stage. But with their natural resourcefulness, no sooner was the hat banished than the cap took its place. Of these caps, the writer says: "They are the most admirable affairs that have as yet been produced, for they are becoming, they may be worn with or without a hat, and they keep in place every stray lock or tress. There are half a dozen shapes, each and every one more charming than the other. Some are veritable little nightcaps, made of the most flimsy lace, always gold and silver. These fit tightly down over the hair, have a band of some stuff, lining passementerie, with a bow and end at the left side, and from under this band a lace ruffle, which falls softly about the face and neck.

A CANADIAN PUNSTER.

Very ingenious was the manner in which the late Alexander Pirie could handle the English language to make a Canadian pun. There was a discussion in the press as to the possibility of a murderer going to heaven

CARE OF A WATCH.

Be careful of your watch; it is too delicate an article to be roughly handled. Never get into the habit of holding the stem and winding the watch; always hold the watch and wind the stem. If you will try both ways you will see what I mean, says an expert, and perhaps find that you have a bad habit to cure yourself of. Moreover, wind the watch as nearly as possible at the same time every day. It is bad for a timepiece to be wound too frequently or to be allowed to run down entirely.

At night either hang the watch up—small watchstands come for the purpose, or a tiny yet firm brass hook on the wall will do as well—or, if you lay it down, see that there is some soft article under it. Above all, do not keep it in a too hot or too cold place.

Do not carry a watch around loose in a bag or pocketbook. If neither job, chateleine nor chain is impossible with the gown you are wearing, pin the watch firmly under your dress. The leather wristband with the watch set into it is likely to bump against everything you touch.

About once a year send your watch to be cleaned and regulated. Handle it carefully otherwise, and it will be a prompt and efficient servant for generations.

BEING AGREEABLE.

The true art of being agreeable is to appear well pleased with all the company, and rather to seem well entertained with them than to give entertainment to them. A man thus disposed, perhaps, may not have much learning, nor any wit; but, if he have common sense or something friendly in his behavior, it conciliates men more than the brightest talents without this disposition; and later, a man of such a turn is almost sure to be treated with respect.

It is true indeed, that he should not disseminate and flatter, in company; but a man may be very agreeable, strictly consistent with truth and sincerity, by a prudent silence when he cannot concur, and a pleasant assent where he can.

Now then you meet with a person so exactly formed to please that he will gain upon every one that hears or beholds him; this disposition is not merely the gift of nature but frequently the effect of much knowledge of the world and a command over the passions.

WOMAN'S CHARACTER.

What a woman should demand of a man in courtship, or after it, is, first, respect for her, as she is a woman; and next to that, to be respected by him above all other women. But let her stand upon her female character, and let the attentions incident to individual preference be so many petty additaments and ornaments—as man, and as fanciful as you please—to that main structure. Let her first lesson be—with sweet Susan Winstanley—to reverence her sex.—Washington Herald.

HEARSE AND CASKET FOR DEAD SPANIEL.

Followed by three carriages, a hearse drew away from the door of a saloon at No 314 Delaware Street. In the hearse rested a tiny white casket containing the body of Tuscon, a cocker spaniel dog, the property and friend of Daniel T. and Mrs. Virgin. In the carriages rode the spaniel's friends.

"Tuscon was the best friend I ever had," Mr. Virgin who owns the spaniel said, "and the best funeral I could give him was none too good for him." He never asked for anything, but was always ready to lay down his life for me. How many human friends do we have of whom we can say as much?

Tuscon was two years old and had been raised by Mrs. Virgin, to whom he was given as a puppy. He died of pneumonia.

During the time Tuscon's body lay in the rear room of his saloon his bier was visited by hundreds of men in the North Side who had known him.—Kansas City, (Mo.) corr. Chicago.

CODS' HEADS AS FOOD.

Ever eat a cod's head? If not, try one, and make the acquaintance of sea food worth while. When properly cooked, the epicure will tell you—and there is more than one way to prepare it for the table—a cod's head is a very savory dish, a thing of gastronomic beauty and a joy forever to the stomach of the man who knows how to appreciate and relish good eating. There is a flavor about it that puts away in the background many of the delicate refinements of artistic and decorative cookery of the more pretentious sort. It has a rich glutinous substance that is brought out in the cooking, something of the nature of the gelatine in a calf's head, only finer and more tasty.

"Take, for instance, baked cod's head," says the man of cods' heads. "There's a dish that makes a lasting impression. For cooking the head is first split open, then it is laid in a pan with a little water and placed in a hot oven. When nearly done a sauce of milk and butter slightly thickened with flour is poured over it, and it is allowed to remain in the oven a little longer. When transferred to a hot platter, with the rich dressing of cream sauce, and garnished with sprigs of parsley, it will tempt most any appetite. And its taste is even finer than it looks."

One hotel in Boston makes a specialty of baked cod's head served hot with sauce, but with slices of pork. On Fridays a row of large, white heads are displayed in a glass front refrigerator. Rarely are they left over, for a number of good livers who always dine well are partial to the dish, have that place on their list. They generally manage to be there on the days that baked cod's head is served, and each man goes to the ice box and picks out the head he wants. It is the most popular dish, with certain diners, that goes to the table at that particular hotel.—Boston Globe.

SMALLER DINING TABLE.

For the simple reason that vegetable dishes are not placed on them nowadays small dining tables are by custom also decreed that the roast must be handled by the maid and not placed, as in other days, before the head of the household. A few flowers and a dish of fruit are upon the table, where an empty dish may also repose, but the vegetable dishes are kept from sight of the diners, though the tables are much smaller than are more ornate. Candlesticks are often placed on the table at the corners, four of them being used. Serving tables, aside from the main table, are attractive and can be bought in all kinds of wood.

THEATRE CAPS.

A Paris correspondent, in speaking of the edict that has gone forth in the past year, relative to the abolishment of hats in the Theatres, says that at first it was felt that this would be a crushing blow to the Parisian, whose splendid headgear hason always attracted attention from the stage. But with their natural resourcefulness, no sooner was the hat banished than the cap took its place. Of these caps, the writer says: "They are the most admirable affairs that have as yet been produced, for they are becoming, they may be worn with or without a hat, and they keep in place every stray lock or tress. There are half a dozen shapes, each and every one more charming than the other. Some are veritable little nightcaps, made of the most flimsy lace, always gold and silver. These fit tightly down over the hair, have a band of some stuff, lining passementerie, with a bow and end at the left side, and from under this band a lace ruffle, which falls softly about the face and neck.

A CANADIAN PUNSTER.

Very ingenious was the manner in which the late Alexander Pirie could handle the English language to make a Canadian pun. There was a discussion in the press as to the possibility of a murderer going to heaven

Some murder sentenced to be hanged had declared that he was going straight to Heaven. Mr. Pirie's comment was a doubt as to whether there exists a next world for men who have the "necks twirled" in this.

His most famous jest was made when the Scott Act was sweeping the counties, and he suggested that the Minister of Agriculture raise a grade of short horns for use in Scott Act counties.

In 1896, when Hugh John Macdonald joined the Tupper Administration, and came to tour Ontario, with his chief, a great deal of fun was poked at Hugh John, who was alleged to be travelling on his father's reputation. Like his father, he has a very large nose, and Liberal newspapers did not hesitate to say that that nose was his chief asset, and the strong reliance of the Conservative party. Mr. Pirie affected to be grieved over those personal references to Hugh John's nose. "It's a disgrace," he wrote. "It's worse than a disgrace. Snoutrage."

EUPHEMISTIC.

The negro on occasion displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words. "Who's the best whitewasher in town?" enquired the new resident. "Ale Ham all a bon'd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered colored patriarch eloquently. "Well, tell him to come down and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow." "Ah don't believe, sah, Oh'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah." "Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?" "Yes sah, a powerful good whitewasher, sah, but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah; mighty queer," Human Life.

CARRYING COALS TO NEWCASTLE.

The joke is on Hon. Geo. P. Graham, who represents the city of Rockville in the House of Commons, and it is on him good and hard. It was while he looked about in the Hudson's Bay Company's store at St. John's, on the Saskatchewan river, while on his recent trip that the joke was hung on him, and he appreciates it all the more because it was put on his so innocently. The Minister of Railways saw some long-sleeved driving gloves that interested him, and he remarked to a friend that it might be a good scheme to buy some to take home to "the boys." Turning to the factor he asked, "Where do these gloves come from?" And the factor answered, "From Brockville."

BEING AGREEABLE.

The true art of being agreeable is to appear well pleased with all the company, and rather to seem well entertained with them than to give entertainment to them. A man thus disposed, perhaps, may not have much learning, nor any wit; but, if he have common sense or something friendly in his behavior, it conciliates men more than the brightest talents without this disposition; and later, a man of such a turn is almost sure to be treated with respect.

IN LATER DAYS.

An old "grad" of the sixties, who happened to see a crowd of new students disporting themselves in a manner which seemed to him to be quite unseemly, was heard to philosophize as follows: When I see a youth with his pants turned up and his beautiful socks on view, And over one eye perched a little round hat with a ribbon of mauve or blue, And fourteen rings and seven pins that he got at his dear prep school, Why, it strikes a chord, and I say "Oh, Lord! was I ever that big a fool?"

When I see a youth with his gloves turned down, and a cigarette stuck in his face, And a loud check coat and a horse cloth vest and a half-inch-wide shoe lace, And a bunch of hair that hides his ears, and a line of senseless drool, Then I paw the sward as I say: "Oh, Lord! was I ever that big a fool?"—Princeton Despatch New York Times.

WOMAN'S CHARACTER.

What a woman should demand of a man in courtship, or after it, is, first, respect for her, as she is a woman; and next to that, to be respected by him above all other women. But let her stand upon her female character, and let the attentions incident to individual preference be so many petty additaments and ornaments—as man, and as fanciful as you please—to that main structure. Let her first lesson be—with sweet Susan Winstanley—to reverence her sex.—Washington Herald.

HEARSE AND CASKET FOR DEAD SPANIEL.

Followed by three carriages, a hearse drew away from the door of a saloon at No 314 Delaware Street. In the hearse rested a tiny white casket containing the body of Tuscon, a cocker spaniel dog, the property and friend of Daniel T. and Mrs. Virgin. In the carriages rode the spaniel's friends.

HEARSE AND CASKET FOR DEAD SPANIEL.

"Tuscon was the best friend I ever had," Mr. Virgin who owns the spaniel said, "and the best funeral I could give him was none too good for him." He never asked for anything, but was always ready to lay down his life for me. How many human friends do we have of whom we can say as much?

Tuscon was two years old and had been raised by Mrs. Virgin, to whom he was given as a puppy. He died of pneumonia.

During the time Tuscon's body lay in the rear room of his saloon his bier was visited by hundreds of men in the North Side who had known him.—Kansas City, (Mo.) corr. Chicago.

CODS' HEADS AS FOOD.

Ever eat a cod's head? If not, try one, and make the acquaintance of sea food worth while. When properly cooked, the epicure will tell you—and there is more than one way to prepare it for the table—a cod's head is a very savory dish, a thing of gastronomic beauty and a joy forever to the stomach of the man who knows how to appreciate and relish good eating. There is a flavor about it that puts away in the background many of the delicate refinements of artistic and decorative cookery of the more pretentious sort. It has a rich glutinous substance that is brought out in the cooking, something of the nature of the gelatine in a calf's head, only finer and more tasty.

"Take, for instance, baked cod's head," says the man of cods' heads. "There's a dish that makes a lasting impression. For cooking the head is first split open, then it is laid in a pan with a little water and placed in a hot oven. When nearly done a sauce of milk and butter slightly thickened with flour is poured over it, and it is allowed to remain in the oven a little longer. When transferred to a hot platter, with the rich dressing of cream sauce, and garnished with sprigs of parsley, it will tempt most any appetite. And its taste is even finer than it looks."

One hotel in Boston makes a specialty of baked cod's head served hot with sauce, but with slices of pork. On Fridays a row of large, white heads are displayed in a glass front refrigerator. Rarely are they left over, for a number of good livers who always dine well are partial to the dish, have that place on their list. They generally manage to be there on the days that baked cod's head is served, and each man goes to the ice box and picks out the head he wants. It is the most popular dish, with certain diners, that goes to the table at that particular hotel.—Boston Globe.

SMALLER DINING TABLE.

For the simple reason that vegetable dishes are not placed on them nowadays small dining tables are by custom also decreed that the roast must be handled by the maid and not placed, as in other days, before the head of the household. A few flowers and a dish of fruit are upon the table, where an empty dish may also repose, but the vegetable dishes are kept from sight of the diners, though the tables are much smaller than are more ornate. Candlesticks are often placed on the table at the corners, four of them being used. Serving tables, aside from the main table, are attractive and can be bought in all kinds of wood.

THEATRE CAPS.

A Paris correspondent, in speaking of the edict that has gone forth in the past year, relative to the abolishment of hats in the Theatres, says that at first it was felt that this would be a crushing blow to the Parisian, whose splendid headgear hason always attracted attention from the stage. But with their natural resourcefulness, no sooner was the hat banished than the cap took its place. Of these caps, the writer says: "They are the most admirable affairs that have as yet been produced, for they are becoming, they may be worn with or without a hat, and they keep in place every stray lock or tress. There are half a dozen shapes, each and every one more charming than the other. Some are veritable little nightcaps, made of the most flimsy lace, always gold and silver. These fit tightly down over the hair, have a band of some stuff, lining passementerie, with a bow and end at the left side, and from under this band a lace ruffle, which falls softly about the face and neck.

A CANADIAN PUNSTER.

Very ingenious was the manner in which the late Alexander Pirie could handle the English language to make a Canadian pun. There was a discussion in the press as to the possibility of a murderer going to heaven

Some murder sentenced to be hanged had declared that he was going straight to Heaven. Mr. Pirie's comment was a doubt as to whether there exists a next world for men who have the "necks twirled" in this.

His most famous jest was made when the Scott Act was sweeping the counties, and he suggested that the Minister of Agriculture raise a grade of short horns for use in Scott Act counties.

In 1896, when Hugh John Macdonald joined the Tupper Administration, and came to tour Ontario, with his chief, a great deal of fun was poked at Hugh John, who was alleged to be travelling on his father's reputation. Like his father, he has a very large nose, and Liberal newspapers did not hesitate to say that that nose was his chief asset, and the strong reliance of the Conservative party. Mr. Pirie affected to be grieved over those personal references to Hugh John's nose. "It's a disgrace," he wrote. "It's worse than a disgrace. Snoutrage."

Very ingenious was the manner in which the late Alexander Pirie could handle the English language to make a Canadian pun. There was a discussion in