OF SPECIAL INTEREST

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 20 (Special)—Newspapers in Northern Mexico have taken up the demand that John Lind be expelled from Mexico, under the working of article 33, applying to obnoxious foreigners. The movement was started also against Dr. Hale.

Since President Huerta has refused to accept the friendly offers of the United States, the demand for Mr. Lind's expulsion is expected to be even stronger, especially among the papers of the State of Chihuahua, which have been bitter.

General Villa has moved into position to stop the troop train which will leave Juarez Tuesday for Chihuahua. He has broken camp at La Ascencion and has moved south and east. The telegraph line is cut south of the border, indicating the rebel leader's presence on the railroad line.

A truce declared by federal and rebels in and around Torreon, to permit foreign citizens and non-combatants to escape to the border, ended Saturday night. The resulting battle ended in a victory for the federals under command of General Joaquin Tellez. The rebels were forced to retreat because of lack of ammunition.

LONDON, Aug. 14 (Special).—Remarkable developments in the construction of dreadnoughts are embodied in the battleship Queen Elizabeth to be launched at Portsmouth next October. Both speed and armament are superior to those of any battleship afloat. It is built to burn oil fuel only, and adds two knots to any previous dreadnought speed. The space left by freeing the vessel of coal bunkers enables further extension of the double bottom and the height of the protected deck.

The vessel has two skins, the oil fuel being carried between. Her fuel capacity will give her a mach greater steaming radius than could be obtained were she a coal-burning vessel.

VIENNA, Aug. 20 (Special)—An attempt by shooting was made at Agram today to assassinate Baron Skerlecz, the new Royal Commissioner to Croatia, but he escaped with a slight flesh wound in the arm.

His assailant, a youth named Stefan Drejejo, who said he recently came from America, was arrested.

Drejejo told the police authorities that he lived for some time in the neighborhood of Chicago, where he was connected with a socialistic organization. He returned to Agram in October last with the intention, he confessed, according to the police, of attempting the life of Baron E. Cuvaj d'Ivanska, the retiring Royal Commissioner.

Te Deums were sung in most of the churches and a service was held at the cathedral in Agram following the attempt.

DUBLIN, Aug. 26 (Special)—The story of a deformed boy who was exhibited throughout Scotland as an "Irish leprechaun" caught in Wilcoursey Woods has been told to the Tullamore Board of Guardians during consideration of a report on the dirty state of a laborer's cottage.

It was said that the tenant's son was a deformed little creature, and was represented in Scotland as an Irish leprechaun, which had only just been tamed. The father, it was said, received £50 for allowing him to go.

The party reside in Baltimose, Md., but came down to Nova Scotia from Ontario. Then by way of Pictou and the Annapolis Valley, they will return home.

GOLF MEETING.—In the club house at Belvedere Links yesterday morning the annual meeting of the Ladies' Maritime Golf Association was held. There was a large attendance, over which Mrs. Longworth presided. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Mary Bartlett, presented her report, which was adopted. After discussion it was decided to make an effort to get new clubs to join the Maritime Golf League. A resolution was also adopted, to the effect that in future the holder of the championship shall play through the annual tournament instead of only defending the championship from the winner of the tournament. In this respect it may be stated that Mrs. Handsomebody, the winner of this year's tournament gains the championship by reason of the previous holder, Miss Thompson, being in default of defending the title.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.—Miss Penelope Davies will sing Ambrose's Sacred Solo, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," on Sunday evening next at St. James Church.

FOR THE N. S. EXHIBITION.—In more ways than one will Charlottetown, or in fact the Island, be represented at the forthcoming annual exhibition for Nova Scotia which is to be held at Halifax. Besides being represented in the trotting and pacing races, the Island will have some entries in a more important respect still, thanks to the enterprise of Messrs Bruce Stewart & Co., the finest engineering firm in this province. They have despatched four motor marine engines of their noted Imperial type for display at the Exhibition and the engines are of various sizes, being of three, four, five and 15 horse power respectively. They were sent off to Halifax yesterday morning. The Imperial engine has gained an extensive reputation in the Dominion. Messrs Stewart & Co., have just filed orders for engines of this standard that were received from Cape Auglet, Cape Breton, and Port Dufferyn.

THIS FETCHED HIM.—A Cape Breton exchange relates a somewhat amusing incident that occurred during the recent visit of a circus. One of the glib tongued circus orators, selling tickets in front of a show tent door, made a speech in Spanish, then in Arabic, switched off into Italian then warbled into an unknown mid—Europe dialect. He wound up with a challenge in English, to the crowd to ask him a question in any language, agreeing that if he failed to reply correctly, he would present the questioner with two tickets to the show. Capt R. McDonald, a genial Scot who, up to this point, had given little heed to the proceedings, slowly wended his way to the foot of the rostrum, leading two little girls by the hands and in a stentorian tone gave the following in gaelic order. "Thoir dhomh dha chomhariaidhean air dithis caileagan," (which being interpreted means "give me two tickets for two little girls.") The orator seemed perplexed but after the look of pain had faded away and the crowd cheered he plucaily handed over the two tickets.

ACCIDENT TO MRS. HEARTZ.—A regrettable accident befell Mrs. Frank R. Heartz in Charlottetown yesterday morning while driving in Victoria Park. She had a narrow escape from serious injury. It appears that the bridle bit, which was quite a new one, broke and the driver lost control of the horse, which got its head free and broke into a violent pace. In turning a corner of one of the park lanes Mrs. Heartz left the carriage. Whether she was thrown bodily from it or jumped from it in the excitement of the moment, she cannot tell. Luckily for her she fell on the border, which considerably broke her fall. But she was nevertheless badly shaken—in fact was dazed for quite some time, and moreover sustained several severe abrasions on her face, thigh and ankles. Partly unconscious Mrs. Heartz lay on the grass, and in that condition she was found by Miss Carruthess and Mrs. H. Smith who were also driving in that locality at the time. They promptly went to her aid and by their efforts brought her round to consciousness. She was sitting up when Mr. Heartz arrived on the scene. Mrs. Heartz was then put into Miss Carruthers' waggon and taken home, where with medical attention and proper rest she is now very much better and will likely be all well in a few days. While Mrs. Heartz was lying dazed in the park, the horse bolted with the carriage and the groom straight for the stables, which it entered at a run. The carriage jammed at the stable door, the animal broke the traces and ran into its stall, while the coachman by the impact was thrown from the carriage, where he had remained all the time. He escaped unhurt, the carriage was also undamaged, and the horse was unscathed. When the horse with the carriage made for Mr. Heartz's stables, it was seen from the house and Mr. Heartz and some friends who were with him at the time ran down and tried to stop the runaway, but while not doing so, succeeded in getting him to reduce his speed. This explains why there was no smash-up at the stables.

LADY GOLF CHAMPION—An athletic looking lady, of average height, with a very captivating smile, is Mrs. Handsomebody, the champion lady golfer of the Maritime Provinces for this year. Mrs. Handsomebody has the right to the title. The reason of her winning the championship match at the annual tournament of the Ladies Maritime Golf Association first held, and the defaulting of Miss Thompson, the previous holder of the title in not appearing to defend it. This is not Mrs. Handsomebody's first holding of the title of Lady Golf champion for the Maritime Provinces. She won it about four years ago, when she played and defeated Miss Thompson for the championship. On that occasion Mrs. Handsomebody's victory was almost wonderful. She had had on account of the illness of her husband, to sit up throughout the night preceding the match for the championship, yet the next day she played Miss Thompson then in the Zenith of her fame, and succeeded in defeating her. Interviewed by a Guardian representative yesterday, Mrs. Handsomebody was becomingly modest as to her victory. "Of course," she said, "Miss Bauld was the best player of us all, but she was unfortunate to lose in the semi-final yesterday. She evidently was not at her best. Mrs. Handsomebody it may be stated, however, when she defeated Mrs. Maddison—whom it was who defeated Miss Bauld— in the final, and the round of the links in 44, Bogey being 40. "I began playing golf nine years ago," said Mrs. Handsomebody to the newspaperman, "and this is the ninth tournament of the kind I have competed in—I have enjoyed it better than any I have ever been to before. I think these links are beautiful, and far ahead of some links in these provinces This is my first visit to Charlottetown and I have greatly enjoyed it. The meeting has been a very successful one indeed. We cannot thank the Charlottetown people enough; they have been so awfully nice to us."

LONDON, August 26 (Special)—The mascot engagement ring is the latest thing in jewelry. Sometimes it is one which has belonged to some lucky member of the family, and is given to the bride-elect in order to bring her good fortune. Prince Arthur of Connaught has given the Duchess of Fife a delightful old ring which belonged to the family of the Red Prince, to which house his mother belongs.

This jewel has a history. It was given by a forbear of the duchess to her fiance, a soldier prince, when he was going to the wars. It is in the shape of a nine, within which are nine magnificent diamonds taking the form of an anchor, indicative of faith and trustfulness. Good fortune attended the efforts of the recipient, and henceforth it became a massot in the family of the Red Prince.

For years this mascot ring has been in the possession of the Duchess of Connaught.
