BIBLE FOR ALL NATIONS

It would be fair to say that a writer may be regarded as a national figure and his influence as nation-wide when the books he has written have become common property; and in this sense the Bible is a book not for one nation alone but for all nations. It claims to be the book of the whole world, and the claim can be substantiated. It has been translated as a whole or in part into all the major languages of the earth and most of the minor ones, and in each and all of these languages it has exercised a real influence. The Bible is the only book that may be said to belong to all men and all nations.

The P. E. I. Auxiliary or Branch needs your help as it shares in the great cause of the Bible Society.

Col. Strong Continues Draft Address Debate

Following is a continuation of the report of the address of Lt. Col. E.H. Strong, M.C., Fifth Prince, in the Draft Address debate in the Legislature on Thursday:

Mr. Strong pointed out that if a serviceman was discharged before Aug. 1, 1943, he received little or no clothing allowance. This was a Federal matter, but the Provincial Government should at least lodge protest against such acts of discrimination.

Farmers and fishermen should be protected with floor prices not only during the transition period between war and peace, as provided for by Federal legislation, but for years thereafter in order to stabilize these basic industries, Mr. Strong said. The other Federal Acts mentioned in the Throne Speech were so complicated that they were of very little use in their present form.

He instanced the matter of soldiers' insurance, stating that United States legislation was far in advance of the practice in Canada, which permits of soldiers and their families being exploited by insurance agents.

He emphasized the growing menace of wild mustard and other noxious weeds; also the acute labor shortage, caused chiefly by the Mobilization Board denuding the essential manpower of the Province. "Those boys who do remain on the farm are so nagged at that their lives are made miserable," he said. "The men sitting on this Board have every modern convenience in their homes, yet they expect every farmer's wife to help around the farm as well as do all the housework unassisted."

Exceptions were made with men who "had a little pull." There was no equality of sacrifice. "We have on these boards men not in sympathy with the farming community and who know nothing about farming; men who represent the old blue blood and who are antagonistic to democracy."

He said the Province should be getting revenue from the thousands of dollars of Probate fees now going to the presiding judge without any accounting being made.

Mr. Strong cited figures showing gross inequality in payment of farm income taxes. The figures showed that the whole province of New Brunswick, with palatial farms owned by men who had become millionaires out of the potato business, paid less than one-third of the farm income taxes paid in Prince Edward Island.

He denounced autocratic practices with regard to succession duties, involving the holding up of estates for long periods.

Fox Ranchers Penalized

"If a fox rancher produced pelts in 1943 but did not sell them until 1944, he is not only taxed on those pelts but also on his pelts or live foxes produced and sold in 1944 — all as income of that year," Mr. Strong said. "He is not allowed, as against his proceeds of the 1943 pelts, his expenses involved in producing them during that year. He is not allowed depreciation on his ranch buildings, pens or equipment, but only their replacement value when required to be replaced; and he might be out of business or dead by that time. Ranchers should be allowed depreciation annualy, and any reasonable expense in respect to repairs.

"Some ranchers have been put out of business by arbitrary assessments made by some little former hardware clerk, or such-like in our Income Tax departments. Country merchants and produce dealers are also being forced out of business or put in bankruptcy by the same means.

"Sometimes the tax officials go back three or four years, make arbitrary assessments with interest at 8 per cent, and if the person taxed does not appeal from the assessment within thirty days it is final. Even if the taxpayer does appeal he must put up $400 as security for costs before he can move further in the matter.

"These abuses should cease. Assessments should be made promptly and accurately. They should be final as far as the Government is concerned except in cases of fraud, and there should be an end to arbitrary assessments, to the discretionary powers of officials, and to penalties and interest charges due to departmental delays."

In reply to a question Mr. Strong stated his belief that cumbersome wartime controls could with benefit be removed altogether.

Farm Machinery

"As nearly as I can learn, there has not been one returned soldier re-established on land in Prince County to date," Mr. Strong said.

Hon. Mr. Barbour: "I think they are having difficulty to buy land at a price they can pay. Land is worth more up there."

Farmers in Prince County, Mr. Strong continued, were seriously handicapped by the rationing and allocation of farm implements. It was difficult for small dealers to get supplies. Yet he was informed that three large firms in Charlottetown had been able to procure several carloads of machinery which had come in under the cloak of soldiers' settlement. One firm had sixty pairs of spring tooth harrows "frozen" in their basement; another had to rent a large warehouse to accommodate this machinery, while a third had sixteen grain binders, which is more than they had sold in the past six years. There will not likely be more than ten farmers settled on the Island under this plan this season, and possibly not more than six, and all the surplus machinery will be released for civilian use in April.

Mr. Strong instanced a firm in Summerside which was building 78 potato sprayers, but only 38 of these were allocated to Prince Edward Island; the rest had to go to New Brunswick, notwithstanding that our own farmers are going to be seriously handicapped for sprayers this year.

Carpenters needed to build farm houses were being taken back by construction companies and allowed to do labor work because they were barred by selective service officials from working at their own trade, Mr. Strong complained. These officials dictated to employers as to what they should pay, and showed favoritism to certain individuals or employers who were "bluffing their essentiality." They had even given permits to boys of fifteen to work for contractors in Summerside, in violation of the Public School Act which says a boy up to this age must attend school every day.

Pullorum

Mr. Strong took exception to the claim made in the Speech from the Throne that pullorum disease among poultry had been practically wiped out as a result of testing in the provincial laboratory. "Go to the express office," he said, "and see the baby chicks that are coming into the Province. You can clean up this Province one year, and next year conditions will be worse than ever on account of these importations."

He instanced a case of three inspectors calling at one poultry farm on Dec. 29 last to cull and collect blood samples from the flock for pullorum test. One inspector was from the Provincial Department of Agriculture and the other two were from the Livestock Division. When they arrived the owner noted their working clothes were dirty and on inquiry was informed that they had been working on other flocks before visiting his. During the day they collected 1150 blood samples from his flock, and throughout the whole of this operation no disinfectant of any kind was used. One of the inspectors occasionally wiped the knife on his dirty coat. The other two used a small piece of cotton wool to wipe the knife with, but as the day wore on the wool became so dirty as to act as a reservoir for any infection that might be present.

This disease, Mr. Strong said, could easily be carried from one flock to another and spread through flocks by the use of a dirty knife in puncturing the wing vein to collect the blood.

He also referred to ravages caused by rope in fox feed, an infection which, like pullorum, can be spread far and wide by carelessness.

"You can test until you are a thousand years old and if you allow such practices as I have instanced to go on you will always have pullorum in the poultry yard," he said.

Hon. Mr. Stewart: "Would you tell me the name of the person who made that accusation against the officials?"

Mr. Strong: "Dr. Cunningham, in Summerside."

Mr. Stewart: "Was he present?"

Mr. Strong: "He was present and he had two other witnesses."

Premier Jones: "He was the man who gave you the information."

Mr. Strong: "And why shouldn't he? He is a highly qualified man."

Mr. MacKinnon: "Does the member know of any pullorum disease last summer?"

Mr. Strong: "The point is that if you are shipping chicks into the Province and using careless methods in blood collecting you will have it back again. The authorities have recommended two inspections, one in the fall and one early in the spring."

Premier Jones: "We have continual inspection of the flocks that provide eggs to the hatcheries."

Mr. MacKinnon: "A year ago last summer the chicks all through the Province died. Last summer I don't know where there was any loss at all."

Mr. Strong: "I am informed that this disease goes in cycles."

Premier Jones: "Is that Dr. Cunningham's opinion?"

Mr. Strong: "Yes, and it is the opinion of the Canadian Journal of Comparative Medicine and the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association."

Premier Jones: "Call it to the attention of the Poultry Association."

Mr Strong: "As a member of this Legislature I am calling it to the attention of your Department of Agriculture. I would be glad to call it to their attention too."

Premier Jones: "I would like you and Dr. Cunningham to appear before the Association."

Mr. Strong: "We shall be glad to do so."

Hon Mr. Stewart: "In the case of anybody that finds any officials that are negligent in the course of their duties, we would like them to report it directly to the Department".

"The Great Betrayer"

Continuing, Mr. Strong said great credit had been given by the Premier to the leadership of Prime Minister Mackenzie King. "Brushing aside all the skullduggery in which the Prime Minister has been indulging," he added, "one clear cold fact emerges. The Prime Minister has at last been caught in the trap of his own setting. To any other title he may receive he has added one well earned —"the great Betrayer))'

"Where does the blame lie for the disunity in Canada over conscription today? Not on the people of Quebec whom Mackenzie King repeatedly misled, misguided and deceived. Not on the indignation of the people of the other eight provinces who to their credit could not and did not conceive that such double dealing was possible.

"Let us go to our own County of Prince. He betrayed his best friend, Mr. A.E. McLean, M.P., who died regretting that he ever was in politics. He betrayed his friend Senator McArthur, who became a Conservative before he died. He betrayed Judge Saunders, who also died a Conservative after being a Liberal Premier of this Province. Then, as his final act of betrayal, he stabbed Colonel J.L. Ralston in the back—one of his very best men.

"Then he comes down to Queen's County, and betrays the people of Queens in respect to the only airport they had. All over Canada you can find evidences of his betrayels. Is it any wonder that the cry is today: King and his Government must go."

BREAKS ALL RECORDS

Mr. Hughes: "I am anticipating the unfinished month by saying that the deficit will be in the vicinity of $400,000."

"When we come to the new year the estimated ordinary revenue is $2,898,683. That is approximately $40,000 less than the estimate for the current year. Revenue from a few items has increased but reduction is accounted for by the estimated reduction in the profits of the sale of alcoholic liquor of $75,000. The other items have come up to $35,000 and the difference is the $40.000 that we are down.

"The estimate of ordinary expenditure is $3,087,309. That will give an estimated deficit of $588,626.

"The estimated capital revenue for the new year is $199,000 and the estimated capital expenditure is $498,000.

"The two big items in capital expenditure are the completion of highway projects, $125,000, and the Provincial Sanatorium, $100,000."

Mr. McPhee: "Before we pass from those figures, you gave us the picture on ordinary expenditure for the current year. Have you got the over-all figures for the current year?"

Mr. Hughes: "I just haven't got that on this sheet. For the current year the estimated capital revenue was $265,000 and the estimated capital expenditure appears to be the same as this year, $498,000."

Mr. McPhee: "But the actual capital revenue?"

Mr. Hughes: "No, I haven't got that with me here."

Change Anticipated

As soon as more competent help could be obtained, it was hoped to inaugurate an improvement in the present system as between the work of the Treasurer and the Auditor, Mr. Hughes said.

"I don't think I have anything more to say," he added. "The affairs of the Treasury Department are before you. You have the items of revenue and expenditure for the past year. The estimated expenditure for the present year and the actual expenditure for eleven months of the present year. And you have the items of revenue and expenditure for the incoming year or new year. I could keep repeating these figures, but it would not enlighten the House very much."

Dr. McMillan: "That is four sets of figures."

Mr. Hughes: "There are figures for three consecutive years."

Dr. McMillan: "And there will be three sets of figures next year?"

Mr. Hughes: "Perhaps in perpetuity."

Dr. McMillan: "It is a wonderful change."

Mr. Hughes: "I am glad the leader of the Opposition appreciates it. If any of the members of the House in speaking have any objection to the issuing of the Public Accounts prior to their being tabled in the House, I would like them to express their approval or disapproval."

Public Welfare

Mr. Hughes also tabled the following details of activities in the Public Welfare Department:

School Work: 210 schools inspected by Nursing Division: 7961 children physically examined; 361 classroom Health Talks; 5592 Home Visits by Nursing Division

Smallpox Vaccinations: 168 schools visited by Deputy Minister; 1493 school children vaccinated; 1062 pre-school children vaccinated; 2550 vaccinations performed.

Diphtheria Immunization: 57 schools visited by Doctor and Nurse; 503 school children protected; 651 pre-school children protected. Total immunizations: 1157.

Venereal Disease Clinics (2): Patients visits to Clinics 1895; home visits by nurse 900.

Dental Clinics: 4 clinics held; 11 schools given service; 335 school children treated; 1575 treatments given.

Well Baby Conferences: 129 conferences; 876 baby visits to conferences.

Whooping Cough Immunizations: 208 pre-school children protected; 27 school children protected; 235 children protected.

Lectures given to P. W. C. students, on positive health from January to end of May, in Teacher Training classes by Deputy Minister of Health.

Referring to the new Sanatorium wing which he described as "the biggest thing during the current year", Mr. Hughes said it was hoped to have this building opened by midsummer. Up to about a week ago, the expenditure on the building amounted to $180,000.

Fishermen's relief, he announced, has been discontinued. Needy fishermen will henceforth be dealt with under the direct relief grant.

He directed attention to the fact that the Public Accounts now show the total money each government official receives by way of salary.

MR. H. F. McPHEE

Mr. McPhee said the Budget Speech had dealt "in a very very brief and very very general way" with the important and numerous matters which are before us for consideration now. The traditional character of the Budget speech is that, in relation to the various items of revenue and expenditure, the House is given detailed information as to the efforts the Government has made in obtaining revenue, the sources of the revenue, the success which has attended its efforts in this direction, the reason for failure or success, and finally the outlook for the future. The same applied to the items of expenditure. It is necessary to consider all these estimates against the broad background of the conditions of the time, the Government's promises as reflected in the estimates, and its failure or success to live within them.

"If the Provincial Treasurer has succeeded in compressing all that within the modest scope of seven minutes, I think he has done a remarkably good job," Mr. McPhee commented drily.

"When the date of the fiscal year was changed last year I suggested that certain grave disadvantages would arise. It would seem that these disadvantages have become apparent to this House. The Provincial Treasurer found it necessary to refer to three or four different sets of accounts; the public accounts just tabled, in reference to the period ending March 31, 1944; the accounts for the current period which will be ended on March 31, 1945, and the estimates which we are invited to consider for the year which is approaching.

"In order to deal intelligently with the matters before us it is necessary to consider and understand all these accounts to which the Treasurer referred. Yet he was able to give us only in a very general way what the expenditure on ordinary account will likely be for the current year, while we have no information as to what the over-all picture is for the current period.

Quite Difficult

"You can understand that under those circumstances it is quite difficult from the Opposition point of view—indeed from the point of view of every member of the House—to deal intelligently with these important matters.

"We have submitted to us estimates of expenditure totalling over three and a half million dollars. That is not a trivial matter; it is something which we should approach with a full appreciation of its magnitude. That is particularly true when the figures reveal an anticipated deficit of some $600,000 on ordinary expenditure and of some $900,000, or almost a million dollars, in regard to the over-all picture.

"The seriousness of the situation is further emphasized when we realize that no hope is held out to us for the future. The Treasurer has told us that there is going to be this deficit, but he has not given us any intimation of any kind as to how the deficit is to be met.

Adjourns Debate

"We were promised in the Speech from the Throne that we would be supplied with interim reports. I presume these were represented to some extent by the sheets to which the Provincial Treasurer referred, and which were distributed while he spoke. I presume that the other interim reports will be made available while this debate is on.

"Because we have not these reports before us, and for the other reasons I have mentioned, I do not think it would be fair to expect the Opposition to continue this debate at this particular time. I would therefore ask your permission to adjourn the debate."

The motion was carried, and the debate adjourned to an indefinite date.
