STILL ALARM—Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon a still alarm brought the firemen to the residence of Samuel Roseb, Dorchester Street, West, where a burning mattress in a bedroom filled with smoke required their attention and two hand chemicals. This was the only damage.

AT GYRO.—At the weekly Gyro luncheon Monday evening Gyro Clarence Cameron of the Bank of Nova Scotia, was presented with a remembrance on the eve of his departure for other fields of endeavor in his work. The gift was presented by President Gillis of the Club, who expressed in glowing terms the usefulness and popularity in such an organization as this. He also spoke of his ability as a business man and also as a literary man. Mr. Cameron replied fittingly. He regretted to lose the great friendships he had made in Gyro and generally amongst the citizens. After the other business of the meeting, a splendid address was given by Lieut.-Col. Full. He took as his subject "Our National Defence" and as there is possibly not a man in this city who is more conversant with the affairs of the British Army and Navy, the speaker was able to deal effectively with the question of the defence of the British Empire by water, land, air, and by ports. It was not a paper written by the Colonel but just his own practical knowledge told in a frank and convincing manner. Gyro Dr. Waye was in the chair.

P. W. C. DEBATE—"Resolved that the social contacts acquired during university life rather than the instruction received are of greater assistance in achieving future success" was the subject of the weekly debate in Prince of Wales College yesterday. The Con side of the argument won by a vote of 32 to 29. The Pro side was supported by William Crawford, Esther Rattenbury and Vere Beck, and the Con side by Theo. Ling, Jeanette McPadyen and Harold Goodwin. It was pointed out by the Pro side that in order to achieve success it is necessary to have sympathy with one's fellow men, to be able to grasp another person's viewpoint, and to be able to associate with others without ruffling their feelings, all of which may be acquired through social contacts. Poise, self-confidence and an ability to judge character are also gained. It was contended by the Con side that professional men the university education is of greatest importance. Great inspiration is received from the study of great authors and poets. The question was asked as to why, if social contacts are to be regarded as most important, should not a university be established in which these points are stressed.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS UNVEILED

Largely Attended Service At Kensington United Church.

Notwithstanding the heavy condition of the roads, a splendid congregation assembled at Kensington United Church Sunday morning, Feb. 9th. After the Doxology and Invocation the well known hymn "All People That on Earth do Dwell" was most heartily sung and the scripture read. The anthem, Blessed is the man, was splendidly rendered by the fine choir after which the unveiling and dedication of the memorial windows took place.

The first window was erected to the memory of James Maynard, who was the first elder of the United congregation to enter into rest. The senior elder of the session, Mr. A. R. McMurdo, pulled the string and exposed the first window to the gaze of the standing congregation. The window consists of two panels, a text medallion in each with a background of lilies. Facing the congregation the text is very appropriate. "Serve the Lord with Gladness, come before His presence with singing."

The Minister of the church, Rev. Dr. Saint then proceeded to the north aisle of the church where Mr. Wm. Caseley on behalf of the family, presented a window for dedication to the memory of their beloved parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Caseley. The window was unveiled by a grandson, Ralph Caseley and consists of two panels with the beautiful text medallion "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." The beautiful background of lilies is most appropriate.

The last window to be dedicated was presented by Mr. Harold Leard on behalf of the family to the memory of a loving mother, Mrs. Jane Leard, who entered into rest May 4th, 1927. This window was unveiled by a grandson, Laird McDonald and consists of two panels. In one of which there is the altar of Incense symbolic of prayer and in the other the very appropriate symbol the year of the dove, symbolic of the Holy Spirit. The rich red background not only gives a warm effect to the north window, but suggests blood and fire. Our prayers must be sacrificial. We need the fusing, illuminating, refining and revenging fire of the Spirit.

After the dedication the minister returned to the rostrum where the prayer of dedication was offered followed by the hymn "For all the Saints who from their Labour rest."

The preacher for the day was Rev. J. M. McLeod, M. A., of Charlottetown.

Very fitting it was that he should be present on the occasion as he had been one of the preachers when the church was dedicated in 1889 and had organized the Presbyterian church in Kensington. The late Wm. Brown having been ordained to the eldership during his pastorate.

The morning sermon was a very fine presentation of the many crown Christ. The singing of Crown Him With Many Crowns and the benediction brought a very interesting and impressive service to a close.

The evening congregation was also very fine and the splendid evangelical message of Mr. McLeod will not soon be forgotten. The rendering of the anthem "I have set watchmen" brought out the excellent quality of some voices in the choir. The church is justly proud of her choir and we hope before long they will in harmony with the suggestions thrown out by Rev. Mr. McLeod be fully gowned.

Kensington United Church is to be congratulated on the beautiful building and well equipped plant they have erected. It is not only a great asset to the local congregation but to the whole Presbytery, a place where young people's convention and Presbyterials can meet with every assurance of comfort and convenience.

That all this has been accomplished in such a short time reflects great credit on pastor and people.
