THE UNIVERSAL FLOUR

Most flours are good for making toast, but some are better than others. Ask anybody who is using "Regal" flour what sort of toast it makes. If you do, you will be strongly tempted to specify "Regal" the next barrel of flour you buy. Carvell Bros. have been selling a very large quantity of "Regal" flour this summer, and the report they get regarding it is that the customers could not be better pleased with the results obtained. They find that "Regal" not only makes the best bread, but also that it spends well and gives the maximum result in quantity of loaves to the barrel. If you have not yet a barrel of "Regal" in your house, please delay purchasing no longer. Once you have tried it you will swear by "Regal".

GOLD LETTERED SIGNS

"On the matter of domestic economy in the American household, which, it is asserted, the housewives and the boys and girls of the family no longer practice, it is interesting to know that if economy be a lost art at home it is pursued with a great deal of care in many lines of business," remarked Henry A. Shields of New York. "I was impressed a few months ago by the observation of a sign painter who informed me that he could not deliver a sign I had ordered on a certain day because in the intervening time he would have the quarterly clean up day. I was curious to know what clean up day meant, and he told me.

"It appears that in the making of signs a great deal of gold leaf is used, and necessarily some of it is wasted. Just as it is when gold letters are placed on show windows, I had never noticed that when the painter is at work putting the leaf on he is careful to conserve all the leavings. Just so in the shops. All refuse there is carefully brushed into a pile and kept. In three months' time there will be a great deal of what appears to be rubbish around a sign painter's shop, but the painter knows its value. This rubbish is cleaned up, stowed in bags and sent to Philadelphia, where it is screened and the particles of gold leaf extracted. My friend informed me that it is not unusual to get as high as $90 out of one shipment of rubbish, all of which goes to the workmen in the shop and not to the owner."—Washington Post.

WORKED BOTH WAYS

One morning Mrs. Wilmington's attention was attracted by a strange spectacle coming up the street. At that distance she could not quite make it out. It appeared to be some sort of animal with a headlight fastened to its forehead. As it came nearer it resolved itself into the shape of a human being—perhaps some sheik with a red fez. But in another moment Mrs. Wilmington recognized Martha Maria Sophrina Smith, the seventeen-year-old colored girl who came every Monday for the laundry.

Martha Maria had a flaming red ribbon four inches wide round her head. It was tied in front into a huge bow, the wings of which stood out four inches beyond her forehead.

Mrs. Wilmington was surprised, for, although she had noticed some of the signs of pride of dress in Martha Maria, the girl had more than the ordinary amount of good taste.

"Why, Martha," exclaimed Mrs. Wilmington, as the girl came round the porch, "what in the world are you wearing that bow for?"

A slow grin widened the girl's mouth as she said:

"To attract attention, missy."

"To attract attention? Why do you want to attract attention?"

"I don't ma'am."

"Then why are you wearing that awful bow on your forehead?"

"So folks will look at mah hair."

"Why do you want them to look at your head?"

"So they won't look at mah feet—I got holes in mah shoes."—Youth's Companion.

MELTING THE TREASURES

MOSCOW, Aug. 22—The work of melting down the treasures confiscated from the Russian church by the Soviet Government has begun at the smelting works at Ekaterinburg, in the Urat mountains.

Up to the 25th of June there had been requisitioned according to the Pravda, from all parts of Russia 857 pounds of gold, 776 pounds of silver, 29,995 diamonds, 5,024 pearls, 26 garments embroidered with seed pearls to the total weight of 230 pounds of pearls, 59,207 rubies, emeralds and other precious stones, 2,100 pounds of gold and silver articles ornamented with diamonds and other precious stones, 763 other articles of fine workmanship but of no precious metals, silver coins to the amount of 17,128 rubles, and gold coins amounting to 1,540 rubles.

The largest diamond secured was said to be something over 35 carats, discovered at Petrograd. Most of the diamonds, however, are small and of doubtful value.

Moscow churches furnished about 25 per cent of the total secured up to June 25.

M. Kalenin, president of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, says the Government had hoped to realize on hundred million gold rubles from the treasures seized, but the actual value is probably only about one-fourth of this amount. The most precious of church treasures, located in some of the historic monasteries, and considered of museum value, were not seized. Also many valuable articles were secreted by the priests, or stolen before the requisitioners arrived.

ALCHEMISTS SECRET LOST

The over of transmuting baser metals into gold has long been sought. Alexander Seton, a Scottish alchemist, was thrown into prison by the Duke of Saxony, who demanded of him the secret of the philosopher's stone. Seton refused to produce a fortune in transmuting gold which the duke asked for his ransom, and even under torture he told nothing. But when a fellow alchemist, Sendivogius, offered to help him escape in return for a little information about alchemy, Seton agreed. He retained his freedom, but with caution of the Scot, he refused to tell his secret to his deliverer. Instead he gave Sendivogius an ounce of transmutation powder. This powder was used to such good effect that Sendivogius was credited with cures of diseases and production of gold. But eventually the ounce was used up. Seton was dead by that time, and the less skilful friend married his widow, hoping that the Scot had left her the secret of mixing the powder. If she knew, she never told her second husband.

SUNSPOT ILLUSIONS

The recent sunspot which was large enough to be seen with the naked eye rather suggests that the time is approaching where these great solar disturbances will grow in number until what astronomers call the "maximum sunspot period" is gradually reached.

When it does arrive, and the number of naked-eye spots becomes pretty considerable, it is to be hoped that they will not be mistaken by those unacquainted with such things for something of a purely imaginary nature.

In the early days of sunspot observation, for example, many people received quite a shock when, as they thought, they saw in the sky an object resembling a man dressed in a short jacket, and half boots, with a staff in his hand and a flag hanging from it over his head.

It was simply a huge spot in the solar disc that they saw, but they took some convincing of its real nature.

Some years previous to that occurrence it was reported in the papers that certain "discerning" people had seen in the sun a fleet of ships—namely, a ship, a brig, and a sloop. The sloop was imagined to be in distress.

The observers were quite satisfied as to the identity of these vessels, and on all hands it was agreed that the only point unsettled was as to how the ships got there.

When the sun in our days becomes very much spotted, it is still found that many of the markings are curiously shaped; but it can not be said that any of them justify such a stretch of imagination as the preceding account shows.
