Death Testing Machine Is Given Trial HAMILTON, Ont. July 27.—(CP)—A portable electro-cardiograph with which physicians in Canada are to discover what takes place when a person dies or what death approaches was used twice last night as seven physicians sought to resuscitate a patient. The device has been in use for some time in hospitals but due to the efforts of a special committee including Sir Frederick G. Banting and Dr. Gordon Bates of the Health League of Canada, it is planned to give it extensive use in cases of drowning, electrocution and other accidents. The device shows definitely whether the person is dead or merely in a state of suspended animation resembling death. Operators worked without respite for three hours yesterday, assisted by Chief Coroner Dr. J. H. Mullin and five other physicians to resuscitate a patient who made two tests with his portable electro-cardiograph to check the patient's heart condition. He raced back to life here to develop a record and found both readings were negative. The readings established pretty definitely that death probably occurred instantly, said Chief Coroner Mullin. One reading was taken an hour after the accident and the second a half hour later. I believe it is the first time an electro-cardiograph has been used in the scene of such an accident. The operators ceased resuscitation efforts after Dr. Williamson's report was received. Resuscitation efforts were already being made when persons have been revived after resuscitation has been continued for eight hours with no apparent sign of life. Commenting on yesterday's efforts, Dr. Bates of Toronto, Managing Director of the Health League of Canada said today by telephone from Port Dover where he is vacationing: "Cases have been known where artificial respiration has not been carried on long enough—particularly in drowning cases—and the fact led to development of the use of an electro-cardiograph to determine whether death has occurred or whether the subject is in a state of suspended animation..."

Advances Interpretation

Dr. A. Arden Brill, psychiatrist, and disciple of Freud, Columbia University lecturer of psycho-sexual pathology, interpreted Ward's prolonged debate with death as the manifestation of a schizoid-mania. "He lived in his own dream world, out there on the ledge before he jumped," Dr. Brill said. "He was not a manic-depressive. That type gets moods of exultation followed by moods of the darkest depression. In the secondary, manic-mood, a manic type would not hesitate. He would walk to the window and leap." Another expert opinion came from Dr. Joseph Jastrow, New York psychologist, interpreted Ward's "Why did he do it—the way he did it?"

Unexpected Death Of Miss Mabel Bremner

The death occurred in the Prince Edward Island Hospital Tuesday afternoon of Miss Mabel Bremner, 27, of Charlottetown. Miss Bremner was at her home on Monday afternoon, apparently in her usual health, and was conversing with her mother, Mrs. J. H. Bremner, who was at her home at the time. She was taken to the hospital later in the evening. She was a lady of many fine qualities, and the news of her death will be learned with deep regret by many friends. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bremner, Charlottetown, her father at one time being an official in the Customs. She is survived by one sister, Adele, in Western Canada, and three brothers: Frank, Gerald and Fred in the United States.

Garnhum - Stewart Nuptials

The marriage of Miss Ruth Garnhum daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Garnhum, Charlottetown to Mr. Earl S. Stewart, son of Mrs. Stewart and the late Scott Stewart, of Ulex took place at the United Church Parsonage, 220 Richmond Street, Charlottetown on July 22. The Rev. Hugh Miller, pastor of Trinity Church, officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Garnhum were witnesses. The bride was dressed in a suit of navy blue with white accessories and wore a corsage of sweet peas. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left on a wedding trip through New Brunswick. Previous to her marriage the bride was tendered several showers and the many gifts received testified to the popularity of the young couple. CONJUNCTIVITIS IS A SERIOUS AFFLICTION Conjunctivitis is the name given to inflammation of the membrane which covers the front of the eye. Most of us suffer from it to a common cold, but in childhood more pronounced forms can develop after some illness unless special precautions are taken to protect the eyes. It can be infectious, and this is a reason why children should be trained never to use towels and sponges which are the property of others. The affected eyes should be carefully bathed with boracic lotion swabs of cotton-wool being used for the purpose, which should be immediately burned. Smear boracic ointment over the lids. Severe cases of conjunctivitis call for prompt medical attention. Weak eyes should always be shaded from strong light—either sunlight or artificial light—and
