DEPARTURE REGRETTED—The Symphony Trio, composed of Mrs. Jack McKenna, Mrs. H. P. Duchemin, and Mrs. F. J. Crosson, has become very popular says the Sydney Post. The Trio is made up of three of the old Symphony Quartette which included Mrs. E. A. Helm, formerly of Charlottetown. It is with much regret that the music lovers of Sydney will witness the departure of this pleasing and popular singer, Mr. Helm having been transferred to Quebec. In order that the quartette may sing on next Sunday evening Mrs. P. D. McNeil has kindly consented to take Mrs. Helm's place for the present. Mention might be made of the splendid selection given by the Trio last Sunday evening in the George Street Methodist Church. It was taken from the "Messiah" and was excellently rendered, considering the difficult composition that it is.

Legislature

On account of advancing markets during the war, the quality of Canadian bacon fell off considerably and the Dunes secured the British market. The Government with a view to encouraging the production of high class bacon hogs has established a distributing or breeding center at Falconwood Farm. Eighteen animals produced here were sold at a good figure in the Agricultural Hall. Attempts to kill this good work have been made by criticism and ridicule, but Mr. Lea believed that in the course of three or four years his Department would be able to make this farm the best in Canada. He would welcome any further investigations. He was not surprised at a certain newspaper but he was amazed that the Leader of the Opposition took with him on a political campaign the class of man he did take on one occasion. He referred to Mr. George Wheatley.

Mr. J. D. STEWART on a point of privilege informed Mr. Lea that this was not correct. Mr. Wheatley had as much right as any other citizen to speak at a public meeting, but he had not been "brought" there by Mr. Stewart. Mr. Lea understood had been making this statement elsewhere behind his back and he wished him now publicly to retract it.

Mr. Lea, after accepting Mr. Stewart's statement, again repeated the insinuation a few minutes later and was again checked up by Mr. Stewart, who explained that at the O'Leary meeting, to which the reference had been made, he himself had spoken to assist a candidate. Mr. Wheatley had also spoken. But he had not been "brought" there by Mr. Stewart.

MR. LEA: Well, you were running the meeting, weren't you?
MR. STEWART: No, sir. I did not meddle with the programme at all. I am not so meddlesome as my hon. friend.
MR. LEA declared he had good reason to denounce the campaign of abuse to which he had been subjected. It was always on the head apple tree that the parasites preyed.

MR. J. A. DEWAR: I thought it was on the wheat that the parasites preyed!
HON. MR. LEA said he did not object to reasonable criticism, but to the "slanderous stuff" appearing in the press day in and day out, in the form of letters, some of them signed by Mr. Wheatley and some of them anonymous, "but all contemptible."
He read a portion of one of Mr. Wheatley's letters which he denounced as disgusting stuff about men who were honestly and honorably trying to do the best they could, and whose only fault had been that they had been over zealous in effecting savings in their department. The newspaper that published them was simply trying to create a smoke screen. Concluding, he pointed to the four years' record of the Government as evidence that they could do to the country with confidence at the next election.

Mr. B. W. LePAGE next took up the debate. He believed, at this time, it was the duty of every member to reply to the Address. He referred to the newly seated members, expressing particular pleasure at the appointment of an Acadian to a Cabinet seat. The bountiful harvest and satisfactory fishing season were touched upon and stress was laid upon the demands of so important an industry as the fisheries in receiving more assistance from the government. The benefits accruing to the province from the fox industry were becoming greater. Altogether, considering the depression elsewhere, we have much reason to be thankful. Mr. LePage thought the speech of the Leader of the Opposition had been over critical. The Government might be singing a song of prosperity, but it was a song of prosperity, and not a doleful wall of deficits. There had been insinuations about broken pre-election promises, but he was sorry to see hon. members in the Opposition resort to such small politics as this, which had been started in "that newspaper, The Guardian." For his part, he had made no promises and was ashamed of. He would let the other members speak for themselves.

MR. STEWART: You'd better! Referring to the recent by-election, Mr. LePage was sure their results had given satisfaction to every member in the House. They showed that the Bell government is pretty popular in the country. Personally, he believed it would be better financially for many members, if they had not been elected, considering the time they lost from their business. He believed the Bell government would come back stronger than ever because they belonged to the class of Real Statesmen (applause from the Government benches). Their financial policy had been to create no further deficit and they had reduced the debt of the province yearly by about $20,000. Mr. LePage repeated a number of Premier Bell's remarks on the finances, on the ground that their importance warranted further elaboration. The substance of these remarks was that the Bell government had paid as it went, and had kept within the estimates; and that on the other hand the Conservatives previous to the last election had spent over $200,000 more than they were authorized "for the sole purpose of buying themselves back to power." It was dreadful to think that if the Conservatives got back some of these men would occupy the highest positions in the new government. In defiance of their own Audit Act passed in 1912 the Conservatives he claimed spent in 1919 in the Public Works Department alone $100,000 over the estimates.

The Guardian has had a lot to say about the taxes because they know taxes are unpopular. But the government had no intention of putting taxes on when they came into power; they did not then know about the deficit, therefore any little promises individual candidates may have made should not be construed as representing a Liberal platform. If justification were needed for the increase in taxes it could be found in the teachers' salary raising tax agreed to in the House. But this taxation had been levied directly upon the farmers, and the present Liberal tax on the farmers is actually lower than was proposed by the Conservatives. The poor man is relieved and the wealthy man must pay up; therefore if there is any grumbling today it must come from the rich people. He would like to ask the Leader of the Opposition what part of the taxes he would propose to take off. The government highway project gave the speaker such gratification and he thanked the Commissioner of Public Works for the roads built in his district. The permanency of these roads he believed extended to as much as seventy or even eighty per cent of the work in Prince County especially, much of the work will last for hundreds of years. The clay that had been removed to the hollows had been brought from New Paris and York (Messrs. J. A. Dewar and Peter Brodie). He wondered what their electors would say when they go back to them.

MR. DEWAR: Don't worry about that, we know what our people think!
Mr. LePage gave credit to Superintendent of Education R. H. Rogers; to the work of the Agricultural and Technical School; and to the assistance given by the Commissioner of Agriculture to seed potato and stock raisers. The Opposition, he contended could not point to a dollar of public money that had been misappropriated. He believed the Bell government was the best the province has had since Confederation.

MR. JAS. P. MCINTYRE, the next speaker, congratulated the mover and seconder of the Address "upon the manner in which they performed their somewhat difficult task." He congratulated the new members and the government also for calling an early session. The Tax Act he believed should be changed in regard to income taxation. Exemption is now given up

Twelve Lovely Girls Seen in Big Ball Room Scenes

How would you like to be known as one of the most beautiful girls in Hollywood, Calif., where the world's most beautiful women live? For to be one of the most beautiful women in Hollywood means to be one of the most beautiful in the world.
For "Singed Wings," his new production for Paramount featuring Bebe Daniels and Conrad Nagel, Penrhyn Stanlaws, the director, demanded "twelve of the most beautiful girls in Hollywood."
Great care was exercised by his assistants before the twelve beauties were finally chosen. In addition, they had to go under the critical eye of Mr. Stanlaws, himself a famous artist and excellent judge of beauty.
Unusual beauty, not only on the part of the girls, but also in their costuming, was necessitated by the big ballroom set in which they took part for a scene in "Singed Wings." This big set was so massive and so impressive that it was necessary that those in it be equally impressive and beautiful. In addition, Miss Daniels, in the moth costume created for her presentation of "The Moth Dance," added more beauty to the scene, which is easily one of the most picturesque ever photographed for the screen. "Singed Wings" comes to the Prince Edward Theatre next Monday. The story is thrilling.

to $500, but no allowance is made for children whom the parents have to support. He argued if $200 exemption is made for each child, the revenue lost could be gained by not exempting the man without children. He compared in a favorable light the present with the past system of taxation and referred to highways and other public works which had not cost the province a cent more than the Government had authority to spend. That the highways had been greatly improved was admitted, and he believed one needed only to take a trip from Souris to Charlottetown, or from Charlottetown to points west, to verify this. Mr. McIntyre agreed with other speakers who had preceded him, however, that the roads needed a system of road maintenance. The taxes, he concluded, had been raised purely from necessity. The government had done splendidly throughout and he believed they would be returned with a big majority.

HON. C. W. CROSBY, Commissioner of Public Works, next took up the debate. After extending the customary congratulations he declared the Government had reason to be very proud of its achievements. The Opposition would not do it if they waited a hundred years. "We are compelled to sing our own praises, because nobody else will do it."
MR. STEWART: You have well said! (Laughter.)

The Bell Government was deserving of praise because it had been the first to inaugurate a pay as you go policy, continued Mr. Crosby; and this "in the face of the bitterest press campaign ever waged in the history of this province." In the Public Works Department this campaign had been done for education! As teacher's strike, the teachers been dissatisfied long before present administration. them the Conservatives being to levy a tax on the alone. The farmers objected and the teachers did this and the teachers did be threatened to strike. At 1 p.m. the House adjourned until 3 p.m. Monday.
