DEATHS

MacKAY—The death occurred at Aldershot, England, of Pte. Bruce MacKay, of the P. I. Infantry draft, and second son of Mr. and Mrs. David MacKay, Albany, P.E.I., on May 22nd, 1918.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Archie Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Campbell of Long River, killed in action June 2nd, 1918.

Sleep on brave heart, thy memory We'll cherish more and more As the years roll on, and oft our thoughts Will turn to that blissful shore.

Where those who have fought and died for right Far away from the battle's din, Walk in the light of their Father's love, And the glories share with Him.

Thou art not dead brave heart we know, Only crossed to the other side, Where no din of war shall e'er be heard, But where joy and peace abide.

To those who are faithful unto death, A crown of life is given, God grant that we too may faithful be, And our loved ones meet in Heaven 7084.

IN MEMORY OF

ERNEST J. TOOMBS DIED JUNE 1, 1917 7078.

Khaki Dates Back to 848.

Khaki is said first to have been adopted in British India in 1848 by Sir Henry Burnett Lumsden, who had been asked to equip a corps of guides to collect intelligence and to conduct a British force on the north-western frontier of India. The cloth was a light cotton drill as suited the climate of Hindustan and took its name from a native term "Khaki," which means in the Urdu language "dusty," being derived from "khak" or dust. Thus the term applied to the color of the cloth rather than to the material. According to the dictionary, it is pronounced kaykee by the natives, but the English pronounced it khar-kee, and this is correct. But as cotton was not warm enough for all climates, uniforms of the same kind were made of serge, and the term khaki thus included wool-ens.

Because it was well fitted for the climate of Cuba and the Philippines the United States chose khaki for the soldiers' uniforms during the Spanish-American War.

Some Tried Experiments. Some fellow "rocked the boat" to see if it would tip—it did. A laborer stepped on a nail to see if it would go through his shoe—it did. A hunter looked into his gun and pulled the trigger to see if it was loaded—it was. A plumber looked for the leak in the gas pipe, using a lighted candle in doing so—he found the leak—W. F. Hall Co. HURRAH FOR JOHNNY BULL

(Amos R. Wells, in New York Life) We do not like to own it, We wish it were not so, It's useless to bemoan it, Or hide what all may know: That we're not in the grave, That still our fortune's nil We owe the British navy, By grace of Johnny Bull. We count our golden dollars, We count our bags of grain— They'd all wear German collars If William ruled the main. Poor Russia is a slave, Poor Belgium is a hell; Without the British navy There fate were ours as well. That we are our own masters And hold our banner high, That infinite disasters Have passed our nations by, That still in progress wavy Our skill of stars we pull, We owe the British navy; Hurrah for Johnny Bull!

Mr. Bestseller—Why won't you marry me now that my fame as a novelist is fully assumed. Miss Worrymore—That's the trouble. You invent such realistic fiction. I just know you could fool me with your excuses and explanations every time.

The brute elbowed himself into a railway carriage and plumped himself down on the elderly gentleman's seat—down with him he snapped out: "You should take care of your old 'at." At the next station the brute got out. He had got some distance down the platform when the elderly gentleman shouted after him: "Hi, you! You've left something on me and one on my hat." And the train moved out.
