CONCERT ENJOYED - Miss Kathleen Horby and Orchestra of Charlottetown presented their annual concert in Malpasque Hall on Thursday evening Oct. 13th, to a music loving audience. The orchestra opened with "O Canada" and followed with beautiful and harmoniously rendered classical numbers. The musical programme was diversified by several fine specialties. Mr. McDonald rendered two fine old Ballads. Miss Mary Sinclair in her usual winsome manner gave two humorous readings and Miss Pauline Leightner in suitable costumes, performed two splendid dances, The Highland Scottish and The Sailor's Hornpipe. Mr. A. Blanchard accomplished pianist in the concert. The concert closed with "The King." Afterwards The Ladies Aid of The Keir Memorial Presbyterian Church who sponsored this concert, for its monetary value, but for the opportunity of hearing violin music in the highest form, invited the artists and their friends to partake of refreshments. Before good bys were said, the concert was exalted from Miss Horby and her talented youthful orchestra to return to Malpasque, again next year.

Police Court—Two Prohibition cases which came up before the police court yesterday morning were adjourned for one week.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, November 7th.

In Memoriam
MISS MATILDA CLARK
On Sept. 29th, 1938, Miss Matilda Clark passed away at the home of her niece, Mrs. Brewer Linklater of Sherbrooke. She was born at Cavendish, P. E. I., on Nov. 13th, 1848, the daughter of Andrew and Sophia (Bagnall) Clark. She, with her sisters, lived on the old homestead till 1904, removing in that year to Kensington, where she made her home for over 30 years, and here the sisters predeceased her. From the early years of her long life, she was an earnest Christian, taking an active part in the work of the Sunday School and Women's Missionary Society, giving liberally of her time and means to the Lord's work. Truly, it may be said of her, "She hath done what she could." "Aunt Matilda," as she was familiarly known of both relatives and friends will be kindly remembered for her cheery ways, kindly deeds and thoughtfulness for others, and while her memory for present-day events had faded, she in recent years, the Palms and Paraphrases which she memorized in her youth were still fresh in her memory, many of which she could repeat correctly and were a never-fading source of comfort to her. In His abiding presence her faith shone bright and clear, never doubting that whatever was God's will must be best.

The memory of her missionary zeal and devotion to the cause of Christ and her appreciation of all that is highest and best will ever be an inspiration to those who have come within her influence.

The funeral was held on Saturday, October 1st. After the service at the home conducted by Rev. Verwolf and Davis the remains were conveyed to the United Church, Kensington, which was filled with sympathizing relatives and friends. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. B. C. Sailer, his text being "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today and forever," Heb. 13:8. The hymns sung were special favorites of the deceased. The floral tributes were very beautiful. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. A. Clark, Everett Johnston, Frank Brown and Major Townsend. After the service the funeral cortege proceeded to Cavendish Cemetery, where the remains were tenderly laid to rest beside those of her loved ones gone before.—S

Copper Production Speeded As War Demands Increase

LONDON, Oct. 17—(AP)—International demand for copper for armaments usage caused producers allied in the cartel to lift all restrictions today on production, effective Oct. 15 and to continue "for whatever period is considered advisable."

The announcement indicated world consumption is so good that if restrictions were maintained on production, there might not be enough of the metal to go around. The lifting of restrictions principally affects copper mines in Rhodesia, Belgian Congo and Chile. International Nickel of Canada is not in the cartel, nor are the United States Companies, except as to some foreign subsidiaries. Others not in the cartel include Russian producers and Cerro de Pasco, the large Peruvian Company.

Oct. 11, production by the cartel interests was increased to 105 per cent of agreed basic tonnage from the 95 per cent production imposed on July 11. However, this increase was not regarded as sufficient to supply the needs, and the cartel authorities decided to lift all restrictions for the time being.

Copper circles believed it would be some time before the full effect of the action would be felt, but said the immediate reaction might be the bringing out of moderate amounts of the metal through profit-taking by interests which have helped boost the price at best to around about $237.50 a ton.

Calls For Election Of Independent Men To Congress

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 17—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, called on the electorate in a speech tonight to send "independent-minded" men to congress to halt what he termed new deal "assaults" on representative Government.

The republican chieftain warning that "subversives in legislative halls" are the spot where liberty and political morals commit suicide, accused his democratic successor, President Roosevelt, of attempting "to control elections."

"That always," he asserted, should make the election of independent-minded men to congress the first task of men who would be free."

Hoover, who prepared the speech for delivery to a rally sponsored by the Connecticut Council of republican women as a follow-up to one he gave last month at Kansas City, Mo., charged the "new deal" with its yes-yes men in congress "has experimented with the American way of life for six years at dreadful cost in human misery and despair."

"The voter might well experiment for himself for once," he suggested. "He might vote for men who would halt this whole movement. For a nation to take the next two years to stop, look and listen is an experiment that could not make the situation worse. It is not a very great risk for the voter to take."

Hitler's Diplomatic Coups Credited to Perfect "Timing"

ACE PSYCHOLOGIST OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS,
HE CHOOSES RIGHT MOMENT FOR EVERY MOVE

BY MILTON BRONNER
European Manager of NEA Service

The success story of Adolf Hitler, in tabloid form is this: He has always moved at the right psychological moment. Even his enemies concede the Fabulous Fuehrer's shrewdness as a tactician.

Hitler, for example, is the man who twice has ordered the surprise as a regular practice of international diplomacy. On Saturdays, statesmen are out of their capitals, newspapers are making news, people are away enjoying themselves. It is a good chance to spring something, show the world a "fait accompli". The shock wears off over the weekend.

When, in 1933, Hitler decided Germany was to leave the League of Nations, he chose October 14, a Saturday. When he ordered the famous "blood purge" of insurrectionist Nazis and others, he chose Saturday, June 30, 1934.

When he scrapped the Versailles Treaty and introduced universal military conscription for Germans, it was March 16, 1935, a Saturday. When Germany occupied the "demilitarized" Rhineland, it was March 7, 1936, a Saturday. It was Saturday, March 12, 1938, when he grabbed Austria. May 21, when Czechoslovakia publicized its army armistice with Germany, was a Saturday. Finally, during his talks with Chamberlain, he fixed October 1—a Saturday—as the day of his invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Hitler is a diplomatic opportunist.

In 1935, Mussolini began his war on Ethiopia. Britain forced through sanctions, and Italy found herself alone and friendless. At this moment—the psychological one—Hitler offered the dictator across the Alps friendship and material aid. Mussolini gratefully accepted and the "Rome-Berlin axis" was born.

Germany has been forbidden to build anything like a real navy by the post-war treaties. England was the chief instigator of that, because she wanted no competition on the seas. But in 1935, Hitler let it be known in Downing Street that he was ready to embark on a naval race with Britain that would rival the Kaiser's famous naval race before the war. On June 14, 1935, England came to terms. Hitler was allowed 35 per cent of Britain's tonnage, 40 per cent for her submarines.

A former Nazi confederate of Hitler's has told of Der Fuehrer's international insight. They met in Berlin one day in 1932 to discuss the international situation that would result should Hitler receive the Chancellorship.

The friend urged on Hitler an alliance with Soviet Russia. But Hitler rejected this and instead outlined the future line-up that would take place, Germany, he

Hitler's Diplomatic Coups Credited to Perfect "Timing"

ADOLF HITLER: "Will I be able to rearm Germany before they can get on to me and strike at me...?"

Time after time Adolf Hitler (arrow) has been able thus to appear before his uniformed and helling Reichstag to announce a new and successful move on the diplomatic chessboard.

Inside the Reich, Hitler has shown the same knowledge of tactics and psychology. Witness his handling of Germany's middle class.

This group, oppressed from the top by monopolies, banks and industrialists, frightened from below by the power of the organized workers, flocked to Hitler's banner when he shrewdly promised freedom from "interest bondage" and end to one-price, chain and department store competition, or organization of medieval-type craft guilds. It was a master stroke in politics. With old-time craft guilds the middle class could preserve itself against the competition of the unskilled workers, with abolition of large stores the middle class could operate its small businesses with freedom from "interest bondage," credit would be easy and people could pay their debts. The middle class became Hitler's greatest single supporter.

Then the Nazi "revolution" happened. Middle-class groups poured out into the streets, occupied large stores and banks, began the organization of craft guilds. But Hitler had already had what he needed of the middle class. Orders were issued making it treasonable to "interfere" with the country's economic life, the middle-class expropriators were forcibly cleared out of the banks and department stores, their guilds were abandoned. That was that.
