MILK AS A MEANS OF SUICIDE.

It is remarkable that so mild and innocuous a beverage as milk should be so frequently chosen as a means of exit into the other world. Yet at this summer season the ethal effects of milk seem to be much underrated. For example, we read in the despatches from California that "a prominent young man of Calaveras County died here to-day as a result of eating cherries and drinking milk." This is a slight variant from the usual combination. Probably the most deadly is pickles and milk. Strawberries and milk are only mildly toxic; with young and hardy stomachs, they are often partially digested; with older ones they frequently cause nothing more than eructative dyspepsia, or, at worst, hives, nettle-rash, urticaria, or summer complaint, therefore those who are fond of this combination rarely abstain in the face of these comparatively trifling ailments.

Next to pickles and milk, probably the most deadly form in which the innocent fluid can be made to figure is the cheap ice cream combination. Despite the toughness of juvenile viscera, milk in the ice cream form, if judiciously administered, has been known to lay out in intestinal kinks many scores of children on Sunday school picnics. With their elders, the combination is not infrequently fatal. Of course it requires much care to make milk so deadly. In fact, with careless mixing this kind of ice cream may be taken with comparative impunity, or only a slight illness. When it is prepared with attention to the proper septic and toxic conditions, however, milk in this form may be looked upon as practically certain death; it would be invaluable as an apparently innocent means of hurrying off rich uncles, tardy spinster aunts, and other rich persons who linger superfluous on life's stage. In its most potent form, when the innocent milk has become merely a culture-bed for billions of ice cream ptomaines, the doctors call the mixture "tyro-toxicon." This name is imposing and scientific sounding, and doubtless gives a certain chastened satisfaction to the mourners—much more than would plain milk.

To return to our original remark—it is extraordinary what pains people take to render deadly this harmless beverage. Even if the cow be sound, they will expose the milk to all manner of impurities—including typhoid germs—before they put it inside of them. Even if it be perfectly pure they take it at temperatures and under conditions that are unwise, if not dangerous. To take a glass of milk by itself is a sensible proceeding; to take it on top of a hearty meal composed of proteids, carbohydrates, and hydro-carbons, is most unwise; to take it with acids is to woo dyspepsia. Yet the latter method is the one most preferred, for cream is used as a mechanical lubricant with all manner of acid fruits.

As to temperature—in the summer season people prefer it ice cold, and some lunatics even put ice into it. If they take it at the temperature of the air, without accompanying solid food, it is probably speedily absorbed without going through the complex processes of gastric and hepatic digestion. If, on the other hand, it be taken ice cold, it at once coagulates and the stubborn casein in its composition requires hours for digestion; this latter is invariably the case when it is accompanied with solid food.

Many a man and woman has died through drinking freely of iced milk on a hot summer's day. Adelaide Nielson, the beautiful actress, went into a Paris restaurant on the way to the Bois de Boulogne one summer day—one of those broiling, blistering, steaming days of which in Paris they have so many, and of which we hear so little. She ordered a glass of iced milk; she did not sip it—against the advice of her companion, she drank it rapidly, and followed it with another. In a few moments she was dead.

Eheu! She was a fine actress and a very beautiful woman. They show you the room in which she died. They even point out to you the lounge on which she yielded up her last breath. "Yes, monsieur. Yes, madame. Voila—that is the place where the beautiful actress Anglais have die. She was very beautiful, very gentle. Oh, yes. It was a grand pity. Oh, yes. She drink a glass of the milk—cold, very cold. Thank you, monsieur. Thank you, a thousand times. Good day, madame; good day, monsieur."

PIMPLES, BLOTCHES AND SKIN ERUPTIONS.

How unsightly, sometimes even disgusting, and certainly very mortifying to the sufferer. They are merely an evidence of impure, poisoned blood, and lowered vitality of the elementary organs, which can be quickly changed by taking Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone cleanses the blood of all poisons and eruptions, makes it rich in red corpuscles that manifest themselves in a pure, soft skin, and good complexion simply use Ferrozone regularly. For the benefit of some people who don't know the difference between Bokhara, Astrakan and Persian Lamb.

F U R S

There is as much difference between Astrakan and Bokhara Jackets as there is between Bokhara and Persian Lamb.

Astrakan which is situated in the South East of Russia on the Caspian Sea is noted for the immense quantity of Astrakan Lambs that are raised for their Furs. The color of the Astrakan is mostly cream with brown, greyish or red spots in them. The Lambs are killed when quite young and the best pelts are sent to Lipsig, Germany to be dressed and dyed while the poorer pelts are dyed in Canada and other places. They require to be dyed and redyed to give them a good gloss and finish, which injures the pelts to a certain extent.

Bokhara is a different breed of lamb altogether. The Bokhara Lamb is always Black and is a native of Bokhara, which lies between Turkestan and Afghanistan in Asia away south of Astrakhan in Russia.

The Fur is much closer and finer curl than the Astrakan and the pelt is also thicker and stronger. The fur being naturally black has only to be dipped in dye to give them a gloss.

Persian Lamb is a native of Persia which lies a little south of Bokhara. Persian Skins have a still finer curl than Bokhara. So you will notice the further you go north the coarser and longer the fur, the further you go south the finer the Fur and curl.

Persian Lamb and Bokhara are animals that are born back, Astrakan is born, white or cream, sometimes spotted, but never Black. Now if you take the trouble to drop into the Leading Fur Store of P. E. Island, we can show you the difference and the difference is so great you won't need to take your glasses with you.

We handle the Famous Coristine Astrakan Jackets the best in the world, every pelt in it is dyed in Germany, and every jacket has a linen lining stitched to the pelt to give the strength. It is impossible to tear them. Our Bokhara Jackets are done in the same way.
