According to Kieu Lung

"You can taste and feel but not describe the state of happiness produced by such a beverage."

Thus the Emperor Kieu Lung, more than sixteen centuries ago, extolled the virtues of good tea.

He might well have been describing the spicy deliciousness, the bracing full bodiness of Blue Bird Orange Pekoe.

Hold-Up Man Was Foiled by Plucky 20-Year-Old Girl

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A diminutive girl cashier and a police recruit on his second day of Broadway patrol today frustrated the attempt of two hold-up men to snatch a payroll of $795, and landed a badly scared and scratched prisoner in the police station after an exciting chase on Thirty-ninth street and Broadway. One would-be robber escaped, but only $22 of the loot was lost.

"I guess I slipped and scratched that guy silly," said Miss Laura Lavin, the twenty-year-old cashier, who counted out the payroll for the employees of Radom and Neidoff, music printers, of 225 West Thirty-ninth street. "He tried to tear the package of money out of my hand bag, and he ripped the 'cash off my coat. Then I started screaming. I wasn't going to let the stiff stuff get away with that stuff. He was a big boy, but I swung on him from the shoulder. Yes, I scratched, too, and then he let go and started to run. The cop nailed him, though."

Grabbed Hand Bag.

"It was just next door to the office," continued the girl, "where they were tearing down the old building, when this guy grabbed the hand bag, without saying a word. I did not see a pistol, and I'm not sure another guy was with him—may be so, I was busy and I didn't see. He tore the hand bag and my coat. Then the money packages broke and the money blew around.

"Those men working on the building did not come to help me. Nobody did. Then I started screaming. I believe me, that guy knows something happened. I said: 'Help! Help! Money! Money! Money! Money!' He got scared and started to run in Thirty-ninth street, and a lot of people hurried up to help me pick up the money—yes, they were nice people. Who's that other $22, I'd like to know?"

Patrolman John Wood, on his second day of Broadway patrol, and in the police department only eleven months, was the next active figure in the attempted robbery.

"I saw this bird cutting across Broadway with a crowd after him," said Patrolman Wood, "and I scented trouble. He was running fast and believe me, he could run. I got in behind him, and cut loose with all the speed I had. He was some runner, but I kept close enough to see him duck into a cellar at Sixth avenue and Thirty-ninth street, and I got him out."

Grandma Used Sage Tea to Darken Hair

SHE MIXED SULPHUR WITH IT TO RESTORE COLOR, GLOSS YOUTHFULNESS

Common garden sage brewed in a heavy tea, with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is faded, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store, all ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Be Brave and Run, Don't Fight Hold Up Men, Says Hughes

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—"Run if you can, but don't fight robbers," is the advice of Michael Hughes, chief of detectives in Chicago.

Hughes said that the most valuable than money, and most of the present day thugs, will kill unhesitatingly, he advises. It's not a reward, but a prudent man who runs from robbers.

"I would advise you to avoid holding up men as far as possible," around about the city, he said. "If you are starting along any one street, be sure no one is following. Keep to the outside of the walk. If someone emerges from a hallway or gangway, that leaves at least the width of the walk as a running start. If suspicious characters approach, cross to the other side of the street. If they do like to turn and run, not forgetting to yell for police.

"The public can be of great assistance to the police in making robberies unprofitable," Hughes states. These are a few rules that may be followed:

1. Don't carry large sums of money or valuable jewelry at night.
2. Be always on the alert for "sneak-up men," by anticipating them you may prevent them.
3. Don't resist, if caught unawares and the "drop" is on you.
4. Run if you have the opportunity on being accosted.

Broadway Belle Drops From Sight

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Evelyn Nesbitt Shaw has vanished as suddenly as she rose to notoriety through the slaying of Stanford White by her one-time husband, Harry K. Thaw.

A month ago she was evicted from her top room and apartment at 225 West 52nd street. Leo and Jack Sabert, her landlords, had her tea, snuff, effects placed on the sidewalk by a city marshal.

The incident was but one of a series of tragedies that have entered the life of the former belle of Broadway in the last few months. Some time before she had taken a huge overdose of morphine in an effort to die.

The suicidal attempt came when she was waiting to be taken to the sidewalk by a city marshal. She was evicted. Without funds and evidently without friends, the woman found her way to the sidewalk beside her meagre belongings—a trunk and a small hand bag. Next she found a little furnished bed room at Broadway and 52nd street. A week later, just three weeks ago, she dropped from sight. Since then no one has been found who has seen her. Those who know Evelyn are expressing the

CANADIAN SEA SLED MAY RACE

DETROIT, February 8.—The Royal Motor Yacht Club of Great Britain has agreed to the entry of a Canadian speed boat as part of the British teams that will compete for the Harmsworth trophy at the regatta here late next summer.

The entry, which should be received by the local committee, no objection will be made to the 1922 race being held in Canadian waters.

Announcement to this effect was made here yesterday by the Detroit Yacht Club Harmsworth Trophy Committee and practically assures a race this year for the famous British International Trophy, now held by Gar Woods, the Canadian contender. It is understood, will be a sea sled. Advances received by the local committee indicate one of the other craft to be entered for England may be the Claude Graham-White's sea sled, Miss England, Commodore Wood left here today for Miami, where he will take part in the mid-winter regatta beginning February 11.

NEW YORK, February 7.—The recent sudden death of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British explorer who was on his way for South Polar exploration in the Antarctic, was a subject of comment among passengers who arrived here tonight from Southampton on the Cunard liner Aquitania.

The travellers said it was generally known that Sir Ernest's wife and three children, ranging in age from six to twelve years, were destitute in their home at Eastbourne.

A hasty appraisal of the explorer's affairs, they said, showed that he had left his family penniless, and had put all of his cash and securities into the expedition he took out to the South Polar regions.

Asked about these rumors, C. J. Spedding, pursor of the Aquitania, a life-long friend and companion of the explorer, said that "unfortunately they were true." Nothing that Mr. Spedding knew of had been done in England to provide for Shackleton's family, but he thought that his friends and admirers in the country and abroad will soon start a fund to relieve the family from its embarrassment.

Among the saloon passengers on the Aquitania was Lieut. Col. Charles A. Court Robinson, author and war correspondent, who comes here to lecture on "Personalities in Europe," and The Washington Conference and its Consequences.

"There are some things of vital importance," he said "that have not yet been settled in Washington. I think they would like to see Washington clean its slate before loitering with conferences such as the one called in Geneva. It is too soon to think of dealing with Russia."

Strength

Strength of muscle does not indicate strength of nerve. On this account many people who look healthy enough suffer from nervous trouble, and cannot understand what is ailing them. Sleeplessness and irritability are among the early symptoms. Indigestion and tired feelings soon follow.

Read this letter from an Ontario man:

Mr. W. L. Gregory, Charles S. Chase, Montreal, Ont., writes: "I had been troubled for quite a while with indigestion. At times there would be a running of the bowels, and at other times I would be constipated. I am a nervous man, and owing to the nature of my work my system became run-down. I took a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found great relief from this medicine. They did me a great deal of good. I have not been bothered at all with indigestion since, and can sleep much better. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, as I think it is well for anyone run-down and needing a tonic."
