BRITISH LAW NO RESPECTOR OF PERSONS

Duke of Athol Faces Violation of the Lotteries Act in Charity Campaign.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(A.P.)—The Duke of Athol, grizzled 62 year old Scottish warrior and former Lord Chamberlain, was summoned today to appear in Bow Street Police Court November 10 on a charge of violation of the Lotteries Act.

News that the summons had been issued created a national sensation. The Peer represents one of the greatest families of the land and has himself, added to the lustre of his name by a host of military exploits.

His wife, the Duchess, is equally well known for her hospital activities during the war and for her literary and political work since.

The charges upon which the Duke's summons was issued arose from a private "mystery fund" of more than £150,000 he raised from voluntary subscriptions.

Of this amount, the Duke set aside £80,000 for charities and distributed £36,000 among the subscribers—much in the manner of the Irish Sweepstakes.

The prizes awarded went to the holders of 748 tickets and in amounts from £10 to £2,000.

Immediately after the awards were announced October 21, Scotland Yard men conferred with the Duke at his great Blair Castle in the highlands of Scotland. The Director of Public Prosecutions applied for the summons at the Bow Street Court.

Interest in the case is heightened by the Duke's military record. As Brig. Gen. John George Stewart-Murray he was cited and decorated numerous times for leadership and bravery during the war. He led the Scottish Horse in the campaign at Gallipoli and many of the men who served with him at that time still surround him in his private army—the army of Athol, three infantry companies permitted to the Dukedom by Queen Victoria in 1845 and the only private army in the British Empire.

He started at the age of 17 in combat service of the Crown. At that age he fought in the Nile Campaign of 1898 and was decorated with the Distinguished Service Order.

He served in South Africa through the Boer War, was cited three times and won the King's medal with two clasps and the Queen's medal with six.

In addition he is a Knight of the Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle and a Knight of the Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order.

Behind the forthcoming hearing is the amazing story of the Duke's scheme to raise big charity funds for England and at the same time to help prevent 10-shilling notes from flowing across to Dublin for the Irish Sweepstakes.

The English law bans lotteries. After one proposed plan was stopped by authorities, the tall, hearty Duke appealed to 1,000,000 sportsmen and sportswomen to send him 10 shillings each to spend at his absolute discretion.

According to the balance sheet, 377,784 persons trusted the Duke. From Blair Castle, the Duke announced the lucky prize winners, but declined to disclose how they had been chosen.

"It was an idea from Heaven," said the Duke.

"JANEY CANUCK" PASSES

Mrs. Emily Murphy, famous as writer and jurist, and widely known under her pen name "Janey Canuck" died Oct. 26 in Edmonton. The noted writer died in her sleep and was found by members of her family. Her contributions to Canadian affairs were not limited to the literary field. As a leader in the feminist movement she won widespread recognition. Keenly interested in child welfare and social improvement, her appointment in 1916 as magistrate of the Edmonton juvenile court was recognized as a fitting one. She was the first woman in the British Empire appointed to the bench. In 1931, however, she resigned as magistrate to devote more time to her other interests.

to live, so severely were they hurt. Ralph Bovenal, Tiverton, gassed and burned neck; Leo Tritter, Fall River, burned neck and ears; Herbert Yates, Fall River, abrasions and minor burns; Arthur Snell, Tiverton, minor burns.

The tragedy began with the collapse of a new tank which was filled with 80,000 barrels of water to test it. All the known dead and injured were working on the tank at the time. A leak was discovered and was being welded when with a hiss and then a roar the structure crumpled.

The tons of water tossed the crew of workers around like sticks of wood and rescuers had to struggle to extricate them from the wreckage. All available ambulances were called from Tiverton and Fall River and the dead and dying hurried to hospitals.

Fire Breaks Out

This was but the beginning of a day that brought fear to those living in the vicinity of the plant. Soon after the injured had been removed from the wreckage a fire broke out, believed to have been caused by a short circuit created by the falling tank walls.

Fire leaped from one oil-filled tank to another and with a roar they burst into flames. Firemen were called from surrounding cities and towns to prevent the fire from spreading to the nearby business and dwelling places from four burning tanks.

Gas Tank Explodes

For six hours the fire-fighters kept the flames confined to the centre of the plant. Smoke belched into the sky and thousands of persons crowded the neighborhood to glimpse the fire.

Suddenly there was a detonation that rocked buildings for miles, a burst of flame shot into the air almost half a mile and a wave of intense heat, darted out from the plant property as a 50,000-gallon gasoline tank blew up.

The frightened crowd of spectators dashed for safety. Many of them ran for half a mile, so fearful was the blast. Women in the crowd fainted and men hastened to pick them up and flee. Two women who had sought a vantage point on a railroad track became hysterical and policemen rushed to help them.

The Minister, who fought on the Marne during the war, wrote in the Boersen Zeitung in support of Hitler's Reichstag campaign November 12.

"We German soldiers follow Hitler and we know the horrors of war better than any other soldiers," he said.

"We know the next war will be a war of nations and therefore we German soldiers are solid with Hitler for peace."

This entitles us to demand weapons without which we cannot maintain peace, namely weapons to defend the home land.

ARRESTS MADE IN CONNECTION WITH TRAGEDY

Two Young Men Of Peninsula, Quebec, Held By Police In Connection With Girls' Deaths.

(Canadian Press)

GASPE, Que., Nov. 1.—Two young men who were in the company of Maud and Marguerite Aschac on the night of August 30 when the girls disappeared from their Peninsula, Que., homes were being detained by police tonight.

The body of Maud, 15, was taken from Gaspe Bay on Saturday.

Names Withheld

Police today continued searching for Marguerite, 17.

According to officers, the two young men were arrested at their homes near Peninsula and taken to Perce jail for questioning. No charges had been laid tonight against the pair and for that reason their names were being withheld by the authorities.

One of the men detained is alleged to have stated he said goodbye to the Aschac girls about 10 p.m. on August 30 after accompanying them from the home of a mutual friend. He added he had attended to his fishing nets after leaving the young women. The man's boats and his nets were located by police on the shore of Gaspe Bay near the spot where the body of Maud Aschac was located.

The residence of Miss Flo Peters, whom the couples visited that night, is less than 500 yards from the water.

Result of Autopsy

Autopsy performed by Dr. Ross Fontaine, Quebec medico-legal expert, revealed Maud Aschac had been gagged and thrown into the bay alive after her skull had been fractured. When taken from the water, the body was armless and legless and partly decomposed.

Police are convinced Marguerite met the same fate as her cousin and have dragged the bay in search of her body. Wind and rough water today prevented continuation of the dragging operations, but police continued investigations looking to a solution of the mystery.

tion of the Reichswehr." He also wrote that "these 20,000 men, drawn up in military formation with their uniforms and full equipment, save for their rifles, were eloquent of the well trained army which even today Germany could put to the field."

The case was given yesterday to the court now hearing the Reichstag arson trial in Berlin and speculations were offered as to whether Panter would be charged with espionage or treason.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(A.P.)—Noel Panter, a British newspaperman who spent a week in Munich jail as a suspected spy, will be released and expelled from Germany as an undesirable alien, the Foreign Office was informed today by the British Embassy in Berlin.

Whether he will be escorted to the frontier soon was not stated. A semi-official communication said the State Attorney found no cause for laying a formal charge against Panter and that "he has pursued his journalistic activities in a way which made his remaining in Germany undesirable."

Paris, Nov. 1.—(A.P.)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh plan a long sojourn on the Riviera after completing a European survey for a prospective commercial transatlantic air route.

Their bags were packed tonight in preparation for a hop to Amsterdam, where they intend to spend several days before flying to Spain and the Azores.

Snow and rain fell today on the route to the Netherlands and consequently the departure northward may be made tomorrow or Friday, if the weather permits.

The possibility they might take up residence in southern France has been rumored repeatedly since the middle of May. It was thought likely that they might return for a short stay in the United States before coming to the Mediterranean Coast.

Modify Constitution

President Grau San Martin told the press today "the present government and constitution will be modified. The present Judiciary Commission will resign and a Legislative Assembly will be created."

While political conferences continued to hold the spotlight in Havana, the labor situation in the provinces continued to grow worse with the inauguration of an attempted 24-hour general strike at Santiago. It was still too early to tell whether the strike was fully effective.

Lecture On Life Of Martin Luther

The subject of Rev. Dr. R. Moorhead Legate's lecture last evening in the series on characters of Church history was "Martin Luther."

The scripture read was Hebrews 10, in which is found the verse, "The just shall live by faith," which caused Luther to change his point of view.

He was born in the town of Eisleben in Saxony, Bavaria, in 1483, the son of a poor miner, and his early days were spent in poverty. He was never ashamed of his poverty or of his humble birth, and took exception to certain biographers who attempted to connect the name Luther with the name Lothair, which had been borne by two of the German kings. His spirit remained democratic, and this helped to draw the people of Germany to him when he started the Reformation. He had the ambition to become a lawyer, and he entered the University of Erfurt, and graduated in philosophy. Just about the time of his graduation as he was out walking one afternoon with a student friend, a thunder storm occurred and his friend was struck by lightning and killed at his side. The incident set Luther wondering about the salvation of his soul, and he gave up the idea of studying for law and determined to adopt the religious life, which in those days meant the entering of a monastery. In the Augustinian Monastery which he entered, he continued to specialize in Latin which had been a strong subject of his at the university, and such became his fame as a Latin scholar that he was chosen as a professor of the famous university of Wittenberg. Before taking up his duties in the university, he made a pilgrimage to Rome and while performing a penance, that all the pilgrims did there, there flashed into his mind the text "The just shall live by faith." As a result Luther's religious views were entirely changed.

The sale of indulgences in Germany was opposed by Luther, who nailed his 95 theses on the door of the university church at Wittenberg. As a result of his preaching and his burning of a papal bull, he was summoned to the Diet of Worms in 1521, and was faced by the imperial and papal authorities, and was invited to recant. His answer was "Here I stand. I can do no other so help me God." As a result he was excommunicated. He went into retirement for a year and gave Germany the famous Luther's Bible, which is considered the finest translation of the scriptures next to the Authorized Version. The reading of the Bible in their own tongue was the direct cause of the Reformation in Germany. Luther also composed during his retirement forty hymns, in music and words, gems of devotion.

He died at the age of 63 in 1546. The subject of the lecture for next Wednesday evening will be "David Livingston in Darkest Africa."

25TH ANNIVERSARY—Wednesday, October 25th, Tignish was the venue of a notable event when our Pastor, the Reverend John Archibald MacDonald celebrated the "Twenty-fifth Anniversary" of his elevation to the Priesthood. A large number of clergy came from all points in the province to participate in the Jubilee Celebration and to offer congratulations to their brother priest on the happy occasion of his Silver Jubilee. At 10 a. m. in St. Simon and St. Jude Church a Solemn High Mass was offered by the Reverend Jubilarian assisted by the Reverend F. X. Gallant, Deacon, The Reverend Martin Monaghan, Sub-deacon, The Reverend J. P. McKenna, Master of Ceremonies, and the Reverend Reginald MacDonald, Thurifer. During the ceremony two very impressive sermons were preached on the sublime calling to the Priesthood—its labors, its sacrifices and its blessings. The Reverend John Gaudet, Bloomfield, delivered the French sermon and the Reverend G. J. MacLellan, D.D., V.G., gave the English oration. As the conclusion of the Mass Mr. J. J. Arsenault on behalf of the Acadia portion of the parish read a very beautifully worded address. This was followed by Mr. E. J. McTague, Mr. J. A. Bernard made the accompanying presentation. The Reverend Pastor thanked the parishioners for their kindness and good wishes and extended his blessing to all. At 12:30 p. m. the clergy as well as the relatives of the Reverend Jubilarian were entertained to a well ordered banquet, which was prepared in the new "Dalton School." About forty guests partook of the delectable menu, which received some appeal from its beautiful background of silver glistening with festive lustre, linen, crisp and immaculate, and finally an abundance of cut roses, artistically arranged so as to blend with an intricate scheme of glassware. The whole arrangement reached the acme of ecclesiastical decorum when eighteen young men of the parish, graduates of St. Dunstan's University, appeared and attended to every detail in connection with the catering.

DEATH TOLL MOUNTS FROM JAMAICA STORM

Relief Expeditions Make Way Into Storm Stricken Area—Fruit Industry Suffers.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov. 1.—(C. P. Cable)—Hurriedly organized relief expeditions chopped their way into northwestern Jamaica tonight following reports of 10 dead, scores homeless and property damage estimated at $3,000,000 in the hurricane-stricken area.

Roads were still strewn with debris and plantations were described as scenes of devastation, with probably 90 per cent of the banana crop destroyed as a result of the week-end storm.

Widespread Distress

The belated reports, received over partially restored communication lines, told of widespread distress in settlements where houses had been wrecked by the hurricane and carried away by floods from overflowing streams.

Most of the dead had been drowned, either trapped in their homes or overtaken by the torrent as they tried to escape to higher land.

Many families were destitute, it was said, and government officials acted quickly to provide relief.

Government to Assist

It was announced tonight the Legislative Council would consider assistance for banana growers at a meeting next week, the storm having dealt a severe blow at the colony's great fruit industry.

The estimate of the damage was only a guess, according to officials. There were still breaks in the communication lines and it was impossible to obtain accurate estimates under present conditions.

Resume Talks On War Debts

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—It was decided today at a White House conference with the British debt negotiators to continue the discussions for a revision of the war debt. Apparently the impasse between the negotiators was broken sufficiently to continue the talks.

The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, accompanied the head of the British Debt Commission Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, to the conference with President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and acting Secretary Dean Acheson of the Treasury.

It was stated definitely that the subject of American gold purchases in London did not enter into the conversations.

TRANSATLANTIC

The big British Company had established a very cordial relationship with official and commercial aviation interests in Canada and can anticipate development of this trans-Atlantic project in complete harmony between Britain and Canada.

Mr. Aides:ce offered no prediction as to when the service would be established. He said he felt certain, however, a trans-Atlantic air base would be developed "eventually" in Newfoundland.

Refers to Parley

Referring to the conference here last summer, he said it was called after negotiations had been opened with Pan American Airways for a Newfoundland-New York Service. Because the previous Government had given the British Government exclusive air service rights in the Dominion for 15 years, any agreement with the American Company would be in the nature of a subcontract.

He said the proposal for a trans-Atlantic service by the northern route had been discussed at the Conference by representatives of the Newfoundland Government, the Canadian Government, Imperial Airways and Pan American Airways. They had come to a satisfactory understanding, he said, but further than that he could not comment at present.

Meanwhile various reports from London indicate plans for the service are further advanced than admitted by officials entrusted with the task of working them out.

One unconfirmed report says a high Canadian Civil Aviation official has returned to Ottawa from London with provisional plans for the first trans-Atlantic air service, to be inaugurated in the spring if the plans go through.

The proposed route is said to be from Liverpool, by way of northern Scotland, Iceland, Greenland and Labrador to Montreal, there to link up with New York and other American and Canadian cities as far up the Pacific Coast.

London Report

The London Sunday Dispatch says the ocean journey of 3,000 miles is scheduled to take three days and "you could arrange in London on a Tuesday to lunch with a friend in Montreal on the Friday and keep the appointment."

Two flying boats, one journeying in each direction and capable of carrying from 15 to 18 passengers in addition to the crew are described for the service. It is said they will be capable, if necessary, of landing on a rough sea and riding out a storm. Directional wireless will guide them in foggy weather.

The dispatch even goes as far as
