

Run Down Nervous Mothers

Gain Strength Rapidly on Vinol

In their zeal to do all in their power for their loved ones, most mothers overwork and soon get in a nervous, rundown condition. Vinol, the non-secret cod liver and iron tonic, is exactly what they need to build them up, make them strong and quiet their nerves.

Please be Convinced by this Positive Proof
"I was weak, run-down and nervous. I had dizzy spells and no ambition to do anything. I saw Vinol advertised and tried it. In about one week I felt better and it built me up and restored my strength. I want to recommend Vinol to other women who are weak, nervous and run-down." — Mrs. E. Trotter, 2 Grant St., Toronto, Ontario.

For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol. Your money will be returned if Vinol fails — Leading Druggists.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

By Jane Phelps

SANDRA TELLS ROSE SHE IS HAPPY

CHAPTER LXXIX.

As I had expected, my wardrobe made quite a furore. While I had lost my sapphires I still possessed enough jewelry to cause comment and envy among the girls I had known before I married. They copied my dresses with tissue paper, to have a pattern they might use when they added to their own wardrobes. When I told them it would soon be out of style they paid no attention, save to say they would risk it.

I was most childish in my desire to show how much I had. Perhaps had it not been for Rose's visit, and her gossip after she returned home, I should not have been quite so silly. Rose, frank as ever, told me one day that the girls thought I was 'awfully stuck up' and that the boys were 'afraid of me.' I laughed, but in reality I was pleased.

"I told them they needn't envy you even if you did have lovely clothes and a wonderful home, with servants and everything—that you weren't allowed to do a single thing you wanted to."

"You told them what wasn't so!" I retorted angrily. "I wanted to come home and here I am."

Then I recalled Everett's actions when Rose was with me, and said more quietly: "Everett has changed Rose. He is lovely to me—most of the time now. We go to the theatre a lot, and now he dances with me when we go to supper. He thought I was too young to do the things I wanted to do when I was first married—that I hadn't poise enough to know how to meet so many new people. But I wouldn't change him now for anyone in the world. When I see other men—and the boys here at home—I am so proud of him I don't know what to do. He is so clever, so handsome, and people all look up to him. To save my life I couldn't help bragging a little."

"I'm sorry for you just the same."

"You needn't be. I don't need sympathy I tell you. Goodness Rose, I almost shiver when I think I might have married one of the town boys. Why, all they think of is taking a girl to the movies, or the corner drug store! What kind of a home would I have had with them?"

"Perhaps as good as the one you have now by the time they were as old as Mr. Graham."

"Yes, and I would be a tired or worn out old woman by that time." This was a new thought to me so I expatiated upon it. "You see I would have to work hard to help like all the girls who marry poor boys their own age. Then by the time they got where they could give me things I wouldn't care a hang whether I had them or not. My good looks would be mostly gone, and I would be so old I wouldn't care for lovely clothes and motor cars and things."

"Don't fool yourself, Sandra. You'd care just as much, and more, too, because you had helped earn them. That's what Mother says anyway. Father was poor when she married him and they worked hard together. Now she has it easy, and she just loves it."

I knew Rose's father was considered one of the few very rich men in town, and that her mother had luxuries that my mother never had dreamed of having.

"You talk like a minister," I said, with a laugh. "I hated to keep telling Rose how much I cared for Everett, but when she talked as if I had done the most foolish thing possible in marrying him, I just had to. Very unwisely I had confided to her and I was studying, that Everett had engaged Mrs. Barry to tutor me in the things in which I was deficient. Now she spoke of that: "I would be so insulted to have a man I married hire someone to teach me as if I were a school girl. I don't see how you endure it."

"I was annoyed at first, Rose, but when I saw how clever all the women in Everett's set were, even those who were very young, I made up my mind I would be clever too, and since then I haven't felt about having Mrs. Barry teach me. It was just taking French or some language, and no one would think anything of it. Why shouldn't one study other things as well—that is, if they need to? You see, Rose, lots of girls nowadays go to college, and they learn things that help them appear well—because they are associated with the teachers and older girls— which girls who live at home, and only go to high school do not learn."

My argument sounded foolish and weak, but it seemed to impress Rose. "Perhaps it's all right," she conceded grudgingly, "but I wouldn't do it." Then she changed the subject and began talking of Barrett Edmunds, as she invariably did. He had made a great impression upon her, and she constantly hinted for another invitation to visit me—which I did not extend owing to Everett's caution.

Anyway Barrett was in Europe on a business trip. I missed him, too, but I didn't tell Rose so. Tomorrow—Confidential Talks with Mother.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION
After vespers Sunday evening an address, together with a gift was presented to Rev. J. C. McLean, of St. Paul's Church, Summerside.

The following address was read by Mr. A. E. Arsenault, ex-Premier on behalf of the parishioners to which Father McLean made a fitting reply:—

To the Very Rev. J. C. McLean, V. G. Parish Priest of St. Paul's, Summerside, P. E. Island.

Reverend and Dear Father:— With feelings of regret and sorrow your parishioners and friends have heard that you are about taking your departure from amongst us. After nineteen years in the exercise of your Holy Ministry in this parish we have hoped that the occasion would never arise calling for your removal to another field of labor, and we feel sure our anticipations would have been realized, if your well known spirit of sacrifice, had not moved you to accept a task which our beloved Bishop was desirous that you should undertake. Only that spirit of obedience to constituted authority which Holy Church enjoins upon us, has prevented a strong protest going forth from this parish at the news of your departure; for we felt that after the years spent in up-building the parish and in bringing it to its present status you were entitled to the rest due to a duty well performed and to the material comfort brought about by your untiring efforts and your judicious management of the affairs of the parish. Your nineteen years sojourn amongst us has seen the most pleasant relation existing between yourself and those under spiritual charge. You have been at all times the zealous shepherd of a flock. Summoned to the highest state of Christian society, by the Holy Orders, you accepted a life of abnegation and sacrifice to exercise the Ministry of God, to console the afflicted and to implant moral virtues in the hearts of your parishioners by your instructive sermons and personal example. With feeling of gratitude we recall the constant and fatherly preoccupation in our spiritual and material welfare which at times you have manifested, without enumerating your many qualities of heart and mind, we wish to mention a few of the virtues which you eminently possess: justice and impartiality. Your ardent desire has been to establish and maintain a perfect equity in all our relations as parishioners and citizens, and in so doing your fairness of mind never entertained any distinction of individuals, families, nationalities not even of creeds, hence the high consideration in which you are held by every citizen. We begin to realize our loss. Words cannot express our feelings. In deep sorrow we utter one common thought: "We shall miss you, father." We solemnly promise that henceforth we shall endeavor to be better Catholics, to live up to the standard of Christianity, which you

How Women Break Down

Owing to the modern manner of living and the nervous haste of every woman to accomplish just so much each day, they overdo, and as a consequence develop ailments peculiar to their sex, as is indicated by backache, headache, nervousness, the blues, displacements and weakness.

Women who find themselves in this condition should slow down, and depend upon that good old fashioned root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, to restore them to health and strength, for there is no other remedy known that so quickly restores a healthy, normal condition.

Here is the Story of a Most Remarkable Recovery

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was run down and nervous, could not rest at night, and was more tired in the morning than when I went to bed. I have two children, the youngest three months old, and it was drudgery to care for them as I felt so irritable and generally worn out. From lack of rest and appetite my baby did not get enough nourishment from me, so I started to give him two bottle feedings a day. After taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman, full of life and energy. It is a pleasure to care for my children and I am very happy with them and feel fine. I nurse my baby exclusively again, and can't say too much for your medicine." Mrs. A. L. MILLER, 2633 East 24th St have wished for us, so that your reward in Heaven shall be greater. We shall ever keep in mind a vivid image of your person. From our hearts shall go forth to God fervent prayers so that he may grant you health and happiness in your new field of labor. May we tender also to your amiable sister and niece who so zealously helped you in your task and whom we have learned to love, our sentiments of high regard. As a remembrance of your parishioners we beg of you to accept this little gift, imperfect token of our deep love and gratitude. The parishioners of St. Pauls, D. H. McDonald, James A. McNeill, Frank Perry, Trustees.—L.
