GRAND TRUNK STRIKE.
FALL OF SECURITIES.

MONTREAL, July 21.—The Grand Trunk Railway Co. is gradually succeeding in the effort to resume regular traffic.

In Montreal and all over the line the reports last night indicated that through trains would be running LONDON, July 22.—Since the Grand Trunk strike was proclaimed, there has been a depreciation of 566,530 pounds in the various classes of G. T. R. securities.

ST JOHN TELEGRAPH.
ON PAUL GILMORE CO.

The attendance at the Opera House last night at the opening performance of "The Mummy and the Humming Bird" was too slim for the class of play produced and for the manner in which it was given. However, made amends for this deficiency in the liberality of its applause, so much so in fact that at the end of every act, including the last, curtain calls were in order.

The play is an English comedy dealing with society life in fashionable circles in London, giving numerous advantages for a capable dramatic artist to display ability. While the plot required considerable emotional scenes, and strong acting, there was a bright vein of comedy of the wholesome nature, running through its entirety, and this was hugely appreciated by the audience. The stage settings were quite pleasing and very much in keeping with the environments of the characters. The costumes worn by the ladies of the company were the source of much admiration from the women in the audience, and assisted materially, though silently, in the presentation of the piece.

Every possible advantage was taken by Paul Gilmore of the opportunities allowed him by the author, to show his talent as an actor in the role of Lord Lumley, the "Mummy." He was at once a gentle, loving husband, strong alike in his devotion to his studies and to his domestic life, and, unfortunately, negligent in not being aware to the fact that his wife was being lured away from him by the attentions of an adventurer, the "Humming Bird." Mr Gilmore made himself an immediate favorite, and received much merited applause.

He was ably assisted by Miss Adelaide French as Lady Lumley, a woman longing for the attentive devotion of a husband who would not give so much time to his profession as did her better half, and in a measure, because of this, easily becoming influenced by the persuasive powers of the attractive, yet deceitful, "Humming Bird." Miss French is an actress worthy of the name and fulfilled the obligations of her role to the keen appreciation of her audience.

In the role of the "Humming Bird" G. P. Campbell made himself thoroughly disliked, which is, perhaps, the object of the actor taking the "heavy" part of any performance. He was cunning, plotting and alluring at the same time, and held the audience in close attention in his enactment of the part. His dialect and articulation were very good, while his acting left nothing that could be desired.

A part which pleased immensely was that of an organ grinder, portrayed cleverly by Paul Terhune. He caused many hearty laughs, and proved, in the interpretation of Mr. Terhune, a very interesting character. Another character which caused many a ripple of amusement was that of an English servant, enacted by R.H. Handon.

Miss Florence Nelson made an amiable and pretty Mrs. Ruth Thornton a widow, and she and the other members of the company, Messrs. Harry Deisole, Geo Wilson, Harry Roberts and Miss Marguerite Thomas, aided greatly in the presentation of a highly pleasing, interesting and entertaining comedy drama.
