Correspondents should remember that to ensure early appearance of correspondence all matter sent in should be cut down as much as possible. Every attention is paid to correspondence but it is impossible to get anything in as written, especially when as late many communications are being received each day.

The will of the late George Lowther, of Crapaud, was probated yesterday. Under its provisions the estate is to be divided between the testator's three daughters, Lilla, Caroline and Grace Lowther. His sons Herbert and Cornelius Lowther, and his daughter Alice Newsom have already received their portion. Herbert and Cornelius Lowther are appointed executors. The net value of the testator's real and personal estate is $5,023.88.

In now transpires that the McCloskeys, of Iona, who were wanted recently in connection with the row in which they took a prominent part, have successfully evaded the service of the warrants which were sworn out against them. They left High Bank a few days ago in a sail boat and crossed over to Pictou Island. The other day they turned up at Pictou on board the Northumberland and in conversation with some of the crew stated that they were on their way to the Maine lumber woods.

During the past two days the old railway station, that venerable structure, which for so many years had to suffice Charlottetown as a place of arrival and departure for all travellers to and from the City has been undergoing the process of removal, and now the old station is practically raised to the ground. But what matters it with the new depot building as well the station required. The site of the old station will be occupied later on by the new freight sheds, which according to the plans will present a splendid appearance. It looks as if, when they are completed, the railway corner of the city will be the handsomest part of Charlottetown.

A correspondent draws attention to the fact that two years ago the City authorities ordered all fences in front of and at the sides of lawns to be removed. This was done by many people, but some did not obey the order. The consequence is that there are many unsightly fences remaining which destroy the even look of the streets and sidewalks. The property so fenced in being City property, it is a question if those fences remain, says the writer, whether the city ought adjoining land will not make claims to it in fact some of them are said to do so already. A chain or post to keep people from driving on the lawns would be in order but the writer deprecates the various substantial fences which are being erected.

  - The playing of Miss Ethel Blanchard is a pleasing feature of the entertainment.
  - The Motor-Car Highwayman—or a 20th century hold up is an up-to-date piece of work. The difference between the days of Dick Turpin and 20th century methods being very amusing. Everything connected with the hold-up from the highwayman to the man who eventually run him down, being prepped by close-up.
  - Off for a Holiday—Fun from start to finish showing the amusing complications which arise from a lady of 30 lbs weight, who is determined to take a few days in the country; and how she has to "squeeze" into quarters not to fit the convenience of ordinary individuals.
