A 40-year-old taxi driver, Leslie Sampson, was appearing for a preparatory examination of allegations of assault, bodily harm and of procuring abortion. The woman demonstrated in court how she was chained to the bed. She said she first met Sampson in January, 1943 and went to live with him in February. Later she wanted to leave him but he kept her chained to a bed in his two rooms.

Country Garden Continued from page 2 few inches to several feet and an endless variety of effects. Taken as a group, they provide good cutting material in a wide range of colors, sizes, and shapes for flower arrangements and indoor decoration in general. We will talk about the seeds of biennials and perennials at some future date and the care of the seeds until they are sown. As you know many of our seeds are grown in British Columbia and in California the largest seed farms in the world are located. I know a woman who keeps her garden seeds in a special basket and often sorts them over and plans and changes her plans in happy anticipation of the garden to be.

In John Oxenham's poem on seeds we read: What shall we be like when we cast this earthly body and attain to immortality? What shall we be like then? Ah, who shall say What vast expansions shall be ours that day? What transformations of this house of clay, To fit the heavenly mansions and the light of day? Ah, who shall say? But this we know,— We drop a seed into the ground. A tiny, shapeless thing, shrivelled and dry, And, in the fulness of its time, is seen A form of peerless beauty, robed and crowned Beyond the pride of any earthly queen, Instinct with loveliness, and sweet and rare, The perfect emblem of its Maker's care.

This from a shrivelled seed?— Then may man hope indeed.

LONG-LOST PAINTING IN WINNIPEG GALLERY WINNIPEG, Jan. 30 — (CP) — A lost mural, painted by one of Canada's noted historical artists, has found a home in Winnipeg Art Gallery. A finely-done water color of woods and water, the mural is by Frederick Sproston Challoner, whose works hang in numerous Canadian galleries and hotels. Intended for the home of a banker, the mural never reached its destination and probably lay somewhere for years unnoticed. It was discovered in the Winnipeg gallery last year and has since been fitted into the regular collection.

Mr. Challoner, now 80 and living near Toronto, has done many murals. Some of his studies in a Winnipeg hotel—of buffalo hunts on the prairies and trading at the Red River forts—are known to visitors from all over the world. They were painted between 1909 and 1912.

The artist was born in England in 1869 and brought to Toronto the following year. At the age of 15 he entered the Ontario School of Art, and later studied in England, Egypt and Syria. In 1899 he was elected to the Royal Canadian Academy. Samples of his work are in hotels and theatres in Edmonton, Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal. In addition, the National Art Gallery and the Toronto Art Gallery both have Challoner pictures and Regina and Saskatoon have some landscapes and portraits.

Religion And Life

By Very Rev. George C. Pidgeon, D.D., L.L.D. First Moderator of the United Church of Canada (Copyright)

"Know your Bible" is a well-worn precept; more depends on it than you know. Sir G. A. Smith once told this story. A young minister in Scotland was visiting a widow in his congregation, and found her distressed over the treatment which she was suffering at the hands of the factor, who represented the owner of the property she occupied. After telling her story in great detail she reflected, "He is a regular Major-missable."

This old church woman, like the class to which she belonged, knew her Bible even to its remote parts, and saw its bearing on her problems. The minister had to go to his concordance to find the character to which she referred. He found it in Jeremiah 30, where the prophet retorted to his persecutor, "The Lord has not called your name Pashur, but Major-missable, which means terror-all around, to your self and to all your friends. The one who has this thorough knowledge of his Bible finds it a source of illumination in all the perplexities of the world.

In last week's study we quoted Hebrews 5:11-13, the description of the babe in Christ who could stand only a milk diet. The verse immediately following reads, "But solid food is for full-grown men, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern good and evil." That is to say: What food is to the body, divine truth is to the soul. As the essence of the meat we eat enters the blood-stream and becomes by nature's processes sinew and bone and nerve and brain, so the truth learned and assimilated, becomes conviction and faith, principle and purpose, character and ideal.

Men is business know that there is all the difference in the world between the man whose dealings are governed by his principles and who can be counted on to be true to those principles in all situations, and the man who is ruled by expediency and who will do only that which he finds to his own advantage. Now rocklike principles are only God's eternal truth applied to conduct. The strength and resourcefulness of the Christian character are built up by mastery of divine truth.

A visit to the Canadian Keswick last summer brought this truth home to one's mind and heart. These people study the Bible in order to attain and acquire. One may differ from them in this or that particular of their teaching and yet see that to them revealed truth is vital, and that in the Bible, is to be found the source and support of life eternal, is not this the Christian's privilege and duty always and everywhere? A generation ago John G. Woolley was the most eloquent of temperance orators, and his own deliverance from the drink habit was the sensation of the hour. But he said once in answer to a question, that while he would give his right hand to be freed from that old craving, once for all, he was glad to testify that he was able to keep a drunkard sober. One who heard that statement commented that he knew of many cases in which even the desire for the old indulgence was taken away in answer to faith. God deals with different men in different ways, and the writer has often met men completely and finally set free from the desire for their old sins.

When Paul urges us to "Let the peace of God rule in our hearts to which we are called in one body," are we not blind to our privileges if we fail to see that God's peace is a power which waits to take possession of the storm-tossed soul, and calm the billows of sorrow and doubt and anxiety? Nothing in the whole range of Christian experience can surpass the blessedness of that peace.

When we think of Christian service the need of Bible study becomes still more pressing. The Bible is the preacher's source of material. As one who has tried to be an expository preacher for more than fifty years, I can testify that the Bible is inexhaustible in its fertility. Not only so, but its truth is the means used by the Holy Spirit to quicken the dead in sin. In personal work nothing is more necessary that to have an appropriate message on the tip of your tongue to guide the perplexed, to point the way to God for the anxious seeker after salvation to comfort the bereaved and to prepare the dying for the great change. For the training of the young in the ways of God there is no substitute for the Bible.

Get all the helps you can, but above everything read and re-read the Book itself. It will make you wise unto salvation; it will become in your hands the sword of the Spirit, and only by persistent reading and exacting training can you acquire the skill in its use which will bring the success desired.

SURVIVES 17-DAY ORDEAL

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Jan. 30 — (CP) — A 17-day ordeal by a fisher trapper — eight days in a fishing smack and a nine-day trek in zero temperatures — has been disclosed by British Columbia police. Their report said trapper George Anderson of Ketchikan, Alaska, is in good condition at Masset, B.C., where he was found by police who saw his signal fire. Anderson said his 38-foot trawler became disabled Jan. 8. It drifted for nine days before it was beached, 90 miles away. Anderson packed provisions and equipment from his boat, making his way overland to the point where he finally was picked up.

NATIONAL RADIO SYSTEM

Public-owned radio in Canada came into being in 1932, but the CBC was not called a "Corporation" until 1936.

Dorothy Dix Says — to step out now and then with the boys, but just because he is young and youth chafes at bondage. So when you see him getting restless, instead of fighting with him encourage him to go out and have a little fling. As for divorcing him, you would be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire, for you would find it very hard to support yourself and the child. And certainly you have no right to make your sister pay for the folly of your too-early marriage by dumping your child down on her to care for.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Why are so many school teachers headed for the old maid class? Is it because they have ruled children so long that they have become domineering and men are afraid that they will make bossy wives? R.M.R.

ANSWER: I think you are mistaken in believing that there are more old maids among school teachers than there are among any other class of self-supporting women, or that men find them less attractive than other girls. Possibly there are egotistic men who are afraid of being henpecked, and who are not willing to marry girls better educated than themselves, but most men have come to realize that brains are an asset in a wife, and that makes the schoolma'am a preferred risk.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.
