Sees trouble For Germans In Russia

By J. F. Sanderson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, June 26 (CP)—The German army may gain "fairly sweeping initial successes" against Russia but Russia can never be over-run or conquered by military measures alone, Maj.-Gen. F. S. Beaumont-Nesbitt, military attache at the British Embassy at Washington said here today.

A former director of military intelligence in the British Army and a member of the Russian section of the War Office from 1928 to 1930, General Beaumont-Nesbitt became convinced as early as last November that Hitler would strike at the U.S.S.R.

"But no one believed me in those days," he said today with a wistful smile on his face.

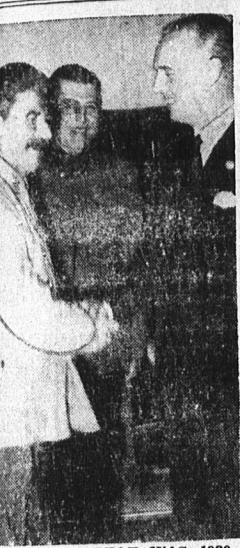

He said during an interview that he was convinced the strategy of the German high command would be to conduct defensive operations in the north in an attempt to close the Baltic ports to the Soviets and, at the same time, to throw all available forces into a gigantic offensive for the Ukraine and the Volga as far as Stalingrad on the east bank of the river.

Control of this vast and fabulously rich area would only be possible through control of the north shore of the Black Sea. It might be necessary for the Germans to extend their sphere of influence as far as Stalingrad on the Volga as far as Stalingrad on the east bank of the river.

While this might be the objective of the German high command, General Beaumont-Nesbitt was not at all sure it would be possible of attainment.

He said it was quite possible the Germans would over-run vast sections of Russia in initial penetrations but to knock out the Red Army would be one hell of a job.

He believed it would be quite possible for the Germans to capture large areas of western and southern Russia, and still leave Russia intact as a political entity. He said that would depend on factors other than military considerations, inferring political questions such as the strength of the Stalin regime and the cohesion of the Russian people.

FALSE—BUT THAT WAS 1939

...Come with the wind is another "scrap of paper" which figured largely in the opening phases of World War II, the Russian-German non-aggression treaty of August, 1939. Stalin and Von Ribbentrop here are shown after the pact was signed.

Hawks and Vics Meet Tonight

A large crowd of fans are expected to turn out tonight to witness the crucial encounter between the Sporting Club Vics and the New Dome Hawks. A win tonight would put the Hawks in a tie position with the Vics for second place in the first section of the Juvenile Softball League. The Vics have already captured first place. A win by the Hawks would ensure the team for second place in the league as there is only one more game to be played by these two smart teams. The time of the game is 6:45 and the place Victoria Park.

Nazis sought Hands off policy From Britain

ANKARA, June 26 (AP)—A spokesman of the German embassy today denied reports that German ambassador Franz von Papen, through a Turkish intermediary, had proposed to British ambassador Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen that Britain assume a "hands off" attitude toward the German-Russian war.

According to the report, Sir Hugh was informed at the Turkish foreign office Monday of the "hands off" suggestion and replied that Prime Minister Churchill's speech of Sunday had adequately defined British policy.

(In London The Canadian Press learned there was "a certain amount of truth" in the original Ankara reports. The German denial was not unexpected in the circumstances.)

Marchildon Defeats Tigers For First Time This Season

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Young Feil Marchildon, Canadian-born right-hander, today licked his nemesis, Detroit Tigers, for the first time this season when the Athletics tamed the American League champions for the second successive day, 8-4, in Philadelphia.

Marchildon, a native of Penetanguishene, Ont., gave up nine hits while his teammates pounded the cream of Detroit's hurling corps, Tommy Bridges, Schoolboy Rowe and rookie Floyd Giobell, for 16.

After Bob Feller spotted the Red Sox a 5-1 lead in the third inning at Boston, Cleveland Indians batted their way behind to give their great right-hander his 16th victory of the American League season 11-8. Feller, who gave the Red Sox 11 of their 12 hits, including homers by Lou Pinney and Bobby Doerr,

Conn and Nova Reach new high

MILWAUKEE, June 26 (AP)—Billy Conn of Pittsburgh, who did such a neat job against Joe Louis recently, and Lou Nova, the youngster who hopes to do even better in September, reached a new high in the National Boxing Association's rankings today.

For the first time since Louis won the world's heavyweight title, the N.B.A. reported, there are fighters who deserve to be rated as logical contenders for the champs' crown. They named Nova and Conn "logical contenders" in quarterly rankings released today.

Only one change in championship rankings was noted since the N.B.A.'s last listing in March. It had Gus Lesnevich recognized as the light heavyweight title holder, with Jimmy Webb, Anton Christofordis, Jimmy Byrns, Len Harvey and Tami Maturilo as logical contenders for his title.
