COMMUNISM UNSUITED FOR BRAZIL

President Of Republic Comments On Recent Uprising.

(President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, whose Government smashed a leftist revolt, has written the following article for The Associated Press)

(By Getulio Vargas President of Brazil)
(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 28.—The witness and efficiency with which military forces dominated the Communist elements, as well as the irrepressible hostility of the civil population against conjurers, comes to show once again how extreme doctrines and their methods of bloody violence constitute the antithesis of the Brazilian soul and feeling.

Communism is an exotic plant which never will take root in our society. A people which has religious traditions, traditions of country and family as ours has, could never identify its political and human destinies with a barbaric ideology which fanatics of the Russian creed wish to implant in Brazil.

What is yet more noteworthy in today's events is that the Communist conspirators did not succeed in even a single strike of workers in this capital to help along their stroke of arms.

Here, as well as in Pernambuco, workmen's syndicates, from the very beginning of the struggle pledged their solidarity to the government, spurning the hypothesis of any connivance at or with military Communists in arms.

The policies of my administration, the revolutionary one but no less than constitutional, have been toward a permanent vigil on behalf of the cause of workers.

The administration enacted social legislation, one of the best conquests which the revolution has accomplished in its credit on the side of services to Brazil.

It is not surprising therefore that labor should consider the Brazilian Government to be administered by men capable of understanding and solving its largest problems.

Italian Bound Ship Rescues Schooner Crew

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The San Pedro, bound for Italy and a scrap pile on her last voyage, tonight bore the master and five of the crew she rescued from a burning schooner last night.

Since her message that she had saved the six men of the R. L. Borden, two master bound from New York for the Grand Banks, the San Pedro has not been in communication with land stations here. The S. S. Exilona reported this afternoon she had arrived at the scene and searched the surrounding sea for crew but nobody could be found.

The Exilona said she last heard from the San Pedro last night when that vessel reported the rescue.

It could not be determined whether the six rescued men were all of the R. L. Borden's crew.

The San Pedro, one of four United States ships sold to Italy for scrap, was enroute to Genoa when she encountered the burning boat about 610 miles east-south-east of New York.

BRITISH COLUMBIA WANTS HEALTH INSURANCE
(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
VICTORIA, Nov. 28.—Recommendations on which a new and modified scheme of health insurance for British Columbia will be drafted were presented today to Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, by Dr. Alton Peckles, chairman of the special hearings committee which conducted a province-wide inquiry this year.

While details of the report were not made public, it was stated the committee had reached the conclusion British Columbia wants health insurance at an early date but the plan tabled at the last session of the Legislature is too comprehensive and too costly in its outline at present.

Pair Guilty Of Retaining In Possession Stolen Goods Jury Finds

A verdict that John and William Hughes were guilty of retaining in possession stolen goods was brought in yesterday by the two men faced a charge of breaking and entering a fox ranch and stealing a silver fox pup valued at $35. The verdict was given before Mr. Justice A. C. Saunders in the Supreme Court, Summerside, and contained a recommendation of mercy for William Hughes.

The case of the King vs John and William Hughes was continued at the resumption of the Supreme Court yesterday at Summerside Mr. Justice Saunders presiding.

The evidence of Lorne MacIntyre who testified that he knew accused, concluded the case for the Crown. Mr. MacIntyre of Kensington then put John Hughes, one of the witnesses accused on the stand to testify on his own behalf. Sworn, the witness stated that he has a fox ranch with six or seven pens in Kensington on the Margate Road, 150 feet from the railway crossing. He had eight foxes, five females and three males, and two litters of five and six respectively. He sold five pups to Peter McMahon and one to Daniel Gallant. The one he sold to Gallant had a piece out of his ear.

The pup got out of the ranch through the wire and it was after that he discovered the piece out of his ear. There were no other foxes in the pen with this one. Witness stated he had been ranching foxes 17 or 18 years. Gallant offered him twenty dollars for the pup. He told Gallant that one of the pups ears had been bitten. He took the fox in a suitcase into Gallant's place. Witness admitted that the Mounties had been to his place searching for liquor.

The next witness called was Edward Barbour, who gave evidence that he had a ranch of 200 foxes and that he had been ranching for twenty years, during that time he had found foxes bite each others ears occasionally.

Mr. C. D. MacCallum, who was acting for William Hughes, put him on the stand, when the court opened the lobster stealing case will be heard when the court opens at 10:30 this morning.

Thanksgiving Observed In Traditional Manner In U.S.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The United States again gave thanks today for the blessings of a year, copying a tradition dating from the Pilgrim Fathers.

At Plymouth, Mass., where the first Thanksgiving Day was observed 314 years ago, the famous rock of the forefathers' landing was a shrine for many.

This year's celebration was typical of thousands of other communities. There were family reunions, a drive to union services in Memorial Methodist Church, and the essential turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

Washington's holiday was marked once more by the absence of President Roosevelt. At Warm Springs, Ga., the President last night carved the turkey for 13 of the child patients of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, chose by lot to feast with him, Mrs. Roosevelt and their son, James.

Over the land generally, politics and business were forgotten in a united assault on the bounty of the table, in the usual traditional football games, and in spreading cheer to unfortunates. Hospitals, jails, orphanages, the homeless and the jobless were not overlooked.

The holiday was not without its tragic side, however, six persons burned to death in an apartment building at North Worth, Tex. Eleven others were injured in the blaze. Two earthquakes jarred Helena and were felt in other Montana towns.

Toronto University Honours Lord Tweedsmuir
(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
TORONTO, Nov. 27.—The sombre hall of the Royal Ontario Museum was gaily decorated tonight in recognition of the presence of Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's new Governor-General, and Lady Tweedsmuir at a University of Toronto reception.

Lord Tweedsmuir was the University's most recent graduate, for in the afternoon Sir William Mulock, Chancellor of the University, presented the Governor-General with the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

The reception, attended by 2,000 guests, was tendered to the University staff by Dr. H. J. Cody, the President, and Mrs. Cody. Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir were guests of honor.

The meaning of democracy formed the topic of the address delivered by the Governor-General at the special convocation. His slight, erect figure enveloped in a crimson academic gown, Lord Tweedsmuir addressed the hundreds of students packed into the convocation hall. At his back were ranks of faculty members and educationists gowned in crimson, scarlet, purple and blue.

Students leaped to their feet at the close of the address and gave a quick succession of college yells, cheering the Governor-General as he left the hall in the academic procession.

"Popular forms of government have no value unless they foster in each individual the power of being himself, of standing squarely on his feet, and of living his life according to a law which is self-imposed because it is willingly accepted," said Lord Tweedsmuir.

Big Gain In Employment Is Shown

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—Employment in Canada, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today, reached the highest point in almost five years as 14,803 more persons went to work between Oct. 1 and Nov. 1, bringing the total at the beginning of this month to 1,012,103 persons. It was the highest figure since Dec. 1, 1930.

Gains were registered in three of the country's five economic areas, Ontario, Quebec and the Prairie Provinces, while declines occurred in the Maritimes and British Columbia. Of eight larger Canadian industrial cities five, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor, Ont., and Winnipeg showed gains, while Vancouver, Ottawa and Quebec recorded losses.

Windsor's gain, 1,165 was the largest and Vancouver's loss of 720 the greatest.

Most important increase in employment, the Bureau said, occurred in logging while lesser increases were shown in highway construction, building construction, mining, retail trade and manufacturing.

KEEP CHILDREN'S CONFIDENCES
Relationship Worth Keeping
A young fellow (sixteen, he was) came to his mother and, with the expression of a bank president signing a million-dollar loan, said: "Mother, I like Mary better than anyone I ever knew. I want to be with her every minute. Do you suppose I'm in love with her?" His mother answered quite as seriously, "Why, it just might be, John if you feel that way. How old is Mary?" "I think she is about eighteen. She's awfully nice to me. I would like to marry her, don't you?" The lady surveyed her boy almost scrapping the top of the door jamb, but that round face was exactly what she wanted and no more. Nevertheless, she had come to her and bared his heart, something that a chap that age seldom does, for sixteen is the age of agony; at no other time in life is one so given to hurt and shame over imaginary troubles.

Dangerous Moment
To have smiled or taken a light tone she knew would have blasted this sacred seedling of confidence. Her baby came for advice and help as he would have a few years before, oh, so few, for a smashed finger.

Fortunately, she knew something about this Mary, a steady, serious girl to be depended on. Quickly she made her plan. "You are a big boy," she said to her son, "but if I were you, I would not pose as being older. Mary knows you are a sophomore. You don't want her to think you are too dumb to be a senior."

"Would it be all right if I went to see her? Would she think I was silly?"

"No, indeed. Go over some afternoon after school and stay a few minutes. But I wouldn't tell her how you feel about her. She will know you like her very much without you saying anything at all. Just be nice and polite, and don't be a hurry."

When he was gone his mother picked up the telephone, then put it down. There was something too sacred about the boy's confidence to repeat it over the telephone to Mary's mother, as she had first planned in order to get her cooperation. She did not know whether to laugh or cry about it. First love, calf love, is so precious a thing to the young.
