Verdict Of Jury In Martin Death

The mucous membrane of the stomach was thickened, whitened, almost corroded and an odour of carbolic acid was present.

A number of witnesses were heard who had seen the deceased on the day previous to his death.

Miss Currie testified he entered a store on Kent Street where witness was working, about 5.30 Monday evening and asked if it was Landrigan's. He was told he was in the wrong street and left.

He was also seen about 7 o'clock by Mr. Henry Loughran. He was then going west on Richmond St. between Pownall and Queen Streets and was apparently all right.

About 6.45 he had called at Henry Loughran's but was told Mr. Loughran was out.

About 3 or 4 o'clock he was seen by Mrs. Patrick Gallant who testified the deceased did not then appear in good condition, his face was purple. Would not say he was drunk. He did not stagger.

Officers Doyle and Higgins testified to seeing deceased about 5.30. Officer Doyle noticed he looked strange, and was quick in his movements. Officer Higgins thought he appeared all right.

The jury then retired and brought in the above verdict.

Jail Break

BOSTON, Mass., March 29.—William E. Gray, ex-convict held for violation of parole and on charges of shooting a railroad detective, escaped with a companion today from the Charles Street Jail in the thickly populated west end section of Boston.

Gray and Vincent Zamotel, a jail trusty, made their escape by sawing through cell and window bars and descending from a third story window by an improvised rope made from sheets.

Police at once began an intensive search of the city for the fleeing pair. Meanwhile jail officials began an investigation into the break, the first in many years at the Charles Street institution.

HOCKEY STARS WEST KENT 5 REPORTED ON WAY TO CITY

(Canadian Press) HALIFAX, N. S., March 30.—The spring migration of hockey players bound for pasture new has started. Truro reported tonight that "Chuck" Jemmett was on his way to Prince Edward Island to join the Charlottetown Abegweits. From New Glasgow came word that "Daddy" Bubur, one of the Maritimes' premier net guardians, and Joey Beaton, both of whom performed with Fredericton this winter, were also likely to don Abbie uniforms this coming season.

Mr. Jack Campbell, of this City, while in training at the Royal Canadian Naval Barracks in Halifax, sustained a severe injury, necessitating his removal to the Cogswell Street Hospital, where an immediate operation was performed. Jack is doing nicely and expects to leave for home early in April.

Humble Onion

At this time of the year the list of available vegetables—especially cheap vegetables—is rather a short one, and early spring greens easily become a weariness to the palate. By the way of a change we might make far more use than we do of the humble but neglected onion.

Onions have also useful health-giving properties of their own. They are said to be a cure for sleeplessness and they purify the blood. One of the oldest and most trusted remedies for a cold is onion porridge. It is made by boiling onions in milk well seasoned with pepper and salt. It should be eaten as hot as possible.

Here are some simple and cheap onion recipes.

Baked Onions

Ingredients:—Three large onions, 3 ozs. butter, a little flour and stock, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1-2 teaspoonful pepper.

Skin the onions and boil for an hour. Drain them carefully and place in a fire-proof dish. Put the butter into a saucepan and stir in the flour, then the stock, salt and pepper. Bring this to boiling point. Pour it over the onions and bake for one hour. Serve hot.

Braised Onions

Ingredients: Four large onions, 1 pint of good brown gravy, 4 tablespoonfuls of well seasoned cold meat or kidney, finely chopped.

Peel the onions and scoop out the centres. Fill with the meat. Place them carefully in a stewpan and pour over the gravy. Simmer slowly for about two hours. Serve very hot.

Onion Fritters

Ingredients: Six onions, parsley, flour seasoned with pepper and salt.

Peel the onions and cut into rounds. Separate into rings. Roll them in the flour and cook in a frying basket in deep fat. Fry until a golden brown. Drain well and decorate with fried parsley, serve on a folded napkin.

Onion Soup

Ingredients: Six or seven onions, 2 ozs. butter, 1 tablespoonful of flour, 1 quart of stock or milk, 3 tablespoonfuls of grated Gruyere cheese, pepper and salt to taste.

Peel the onions and cut in thin rings. Place the butter in a stewpan and cook the onions in it until they are a delicate brown color. Sprinkle them with the flour. Add the stock of milk and seasoning, and boil for about thirty minutes. Serve the Gruyere cheese and thinly cut slices of toasted bread with the soup.

WEST KENT 5 QUEEN SQUARE 1

Displaying rapid footwork and good team play the West Kent hockey team turned back a courageous hard working outfit from Queen Square 5-1 in a splendidly played sudden death encounter at the Forum last night to wind up hockey for the season in Charlottetown. Already the fans are beginning to wet their lips in anticipation of hockey next season and on the display tonight in a few more years Charlottetown will have some hockey players who will be in demand on the import and export markets.

The Queen Square crowd put up a great argument and left the West Kenters on the "qui vive" to turn in a win. Outstanding for the town school were "Big Stuff" Gaudet and Pete Campbell. Gaudet did some heavy but clean checking and seemed to steady his team. The stick handling and fast skating of Peter Campbell was of a high order and this lad richly deserved the score he got. Blanchard, speedy Queen Square player revelled in any one on the ice and highly effective, though he was handicapped by an injury. The rest of the Queen Square player revelled in the heavy going and were the right fellows in the proper places. For West Kent Harry Currie was outstanding with Fitzgerald. Young Currie is a star in the making but not in the penalty box. Cudmore did some pretty poke checking and rode his bumps well. Rattenbury did some splendid back checking and was a threat on the attack. Saunders and Darrach amply justified their inclusion on the team. Simpson and Higgins were good on the defence while the former's finished rushes were good to watch. On one occasion he beat the whole Q. S. team to rattle in a pretty marker. Burgoyne was effective in the nets.

Both teams were capably handled by their coaches. Fred Moore referred to the satisfaction of all.

THE GAME

The fans had hardly settled themselves into their seats when Rattenbury took a fine pass from "Bunkey" Fitzgerald to notch number one. Q. S. S. fought back but at the nine minute mark Simpson put on a solo dash to make Queen Square's deficit two. West Kent had the better of the play in this canto.

THE SECOND PERIOD

Was hard fought and rough, the chief offenders being West Kent. At three minutes Currie took advantage of a break to coast in on Connolly who was beaten by a hard drive to the corner. Queen Square started a steady drive and finally counted when Campbell rifled one past Burgoyne. Pete had netted one previously after a pretty run but it was called back. Although they tried hard, Queen Square, were kept from further scoring in this sandwich session.

THE THIRD PERIOD

Saw West Kent playing a canny semi-defensive game which proved successful when Q. S. S. failed to score while West Kent took full advantage of all openings to score two more to clinch the verdict when Fitzgerald took a pass from Currie at the sixteen minute mark. The final West Kent marker was pretty to watch. Currie stick handling beautifully, went to the goal mouth where he drew Connolly from his citadel before putting in the tally. Queen Square took off a defence-man to put on an extra forward to move four men to the attack but the game ended 5-1 to give West Kent the City Scholastic championship for 1931-32. The first original "sudden death" game ended in a tie so last night's game settled the issue.

Chesley, New Brunswick agent for the Department of Marine, said an officer's cap and a man's photograph had been washed upon the shore at Maces Bay, about five miles west of Dipper Harbor. The features in the photograph were easily distinguishable, and it was thought that this with the cap, would prove valuable identification aids.

Other debris found near Maces Bay included part of a white-painted engine house bearing a black circle, the bottom of a small tender, a boat hook, canned goods, a tin of varnish, a hip-length rubber boot, and a green frame of a gunwale of a box-stern boat. The body of a cat also was given up by the surf.

The condition of the wreckage indicated it had been in the water only a short time. New pulpwood washed upon the shore and seen drifting in the vicinity of Dipper Harbor and Maces Bay led to the belief the ship might have been a pulpwood carrier.

Since a patrol of that section of the coast has been fruitless so far as the schooner itself is concerned, it was felt that if the schooner were completely wrecked, the scene was some distance from the points where the wreckage was found.

MISS KYDD AT GENEVA CONFERENCE

BOSTON, Mass., March 29.—(By The Canadian Press)—Roland Hall Sharp writes in the Christian Science Monitor of Geneva of "Miss Kydd from Canada."

"Fending future development of more women public officials who will combine diplomatic skill with their native love of peace, Miss Kydd finds several advantages in having women on the delegations. While as delegates women cease to represent individual opinions or any class, and become official spokesmen for national policies, they none the less are appointed in recognition of the strong and growing women's peace movement. This recognition in itself encourages that movement.

"Moreover, the drilling of women in the school of diplomacy gives them tools for use in achieving their aim. Another advantage is the equipment as speakers gained by the delegates for use after their official duties are done. They can then explain and instruct more thoroughly in club and public meetings upon their return. Before coming to Geneva, Miss Kydd found audiences in the Maritime Provinces eager to hear in simple language what disarmament is all about. Full-time statesmen have little time, although they are best equipped, to explain these public policies. Women delegates have the time and can carry the needed messages to the people admirably."

CIRCUS MAY DISRUPT THE HOCKEY SERIES

(Canadian Press) NEW YORK, N. Y., Mar. 30.—The final series in the play-off for the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world championship in professional hockey, may be forced out of New York for all but one game by the annual pilgrimage of the circus.

The circus comes into Madison Square Garden, home ice of the New York Rangers at midnight April 5. Yet that date is believed the earliest on which the Rangers, who won a place in the finals by taking the deciding game from Canadiens last night, can start the closing five game series with the winner of the Montreal Maroons-Toronto Maple Leafs two game semi-final.

The Leafs and Maroons finish their home and home series in Toronto Saturday night. It is considered unlikely that the winner would agree to open the series here Monday night with but two days of rest, and that devoted almost entirely to travel. Under play-off rules, the first two games of the final series are to be played on Ranger ice, the remainder in Canada.

Col. John S. Hammond, President of the Rangers, and Lester Patrick, Manager, expect to leave for Montreal tomorrow in an effort to reorganize the playing schedule.

An attempt meanwhile will be made to delay the entry of the circus into the Garden one day. Another suggestion has been made that the Rangers name the Boston Garden, home of the Boston Bruins, as their home ice for the second game.

Missing Children Thought Kidnapped Just Out Walking

COLLINGSWOOD, N. J., March 29.—(A.P.)—Two little children decided to take a walk after Sunday school yesterday and precipitated a kidnapping scare that caused fire sirens to shriek in a dozen towns, 25 American Legion Posts to mobilize, churches to dismiss their congregations for a house to house search and police and firemen to drag a creek.

The missing children were Betty Perrin, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Montrose Perrin, and Raymond Elcheberger, 6, son of Percy Elcheberger, principal of the Collingswood High School.

Elcheberger drove them to Sunday School at 9 a. m. and told them he would call for them at 10.30. When he returned they were not to be found. The Rev. Ivan H. Hagedorn said they had left.

The school principal notified the Perrins and after searching a while they called the police. Chief Harry Hayes broadcast the alarm to all towns within a 25 mile radius. Fire Marshal William Kown sounded the siren and 200 volunteers came running. Scores of neighbors joined in the hunt.

At 1.30 p. m. two children were reported in a Camden hospital. Chief Hayes sped there with shrilling sirens to find they were two other children.

At 2 p. m. the body of a little girl was reported to have been seen in Newton Creek. Hundreds of volunteers helped authorities drag the creek.

At 2.15 announcement that the children were missing was made in all churches in Collingswood and many other communities. Most of them dismissed their congregations to join in the search.

Authorities estimated that fully two-thirds of Collingswood's 14,000 inhabitants took a hand in a house-to-house canvass.

Finally at 3 o'clock Patrolman Folyard Degan found the children trudging along the road at Audubon. They had walked to Magnolia, seven miles from church, and were on their way back.

The Collingswood fire siren sounded again to notify searchers that the children were found but many of them still were out at nightfall after the children had eaten supper and been put to bed.

ADVICE TO WOMEN JURISTS

SYDNEY, Australia, March 30.—(By The Canadian Press)—Recently the advocacy of women to juries secured a hit at the expense of conservatism. They applauded a remark of Mrs. Albert Littlejohn, who addressed a meeting of the Women's Justices' Association on this question. It was evident that the audience realized the difficulty of obeying the Judge's direction to a jury to "forget all you may have heard or read about the case."

Mrs. Littlejohn remarked that the jury system would give better results if there were not so much information about an accused published in advance of the trial. Others have made the same suggestion but this was the first occasion on which a representative body such as the Women Justices' Association has so expressed itself. Women are expected to be influenced accordingly. The audience was so impressed by Mrs. Littlejohn that the member entrusted with the duty of thanking her for her stimulating address announced that the association would try this year to get women not only on juries but also on the bench. They would like to go on the bench in children's courts to begin with and to work up. The chief argument employed by all women justices is that women have the full rights of citizenship in paying rates and taxes. They claim they should be equitably dealt with in appointments to the bench and to juries.

MAIL "CAN" LABEL AT PREMIUM

Souvenir collectors are reported to be bidding high for the label on a can which once carried mail from the lonely island of St. Kilda to the coast of Scotland. St. Kilda was deserted last year. The can was lost in the sea and has just been found. It is the last of those known to be delayed in arriving. The people who lived on St. Kilda had a novel method of posting their mails. The letters were put into a canvas bag, which was sealed in a corn-beef can. This was properly ballasted so that it could weather storms when flung into the sea. While four out of every five arrived at the destination, this one was missing for a long time. Mails were usually launched with a westerly gale and on an ebb tide. Some went as far as Norway, but many drifted to Orkney or the Shetlands, where they were picked up and handed into a post office.

CRUISER SPEEDS 'PATIENT' Steaming 4,240 miles across Atlantic at top speed the British Cruiser York has arrived at F. mouth, England, where it sent member of the crew, suffering from cerebro-spinal meningitis (spotted fever) to a hospital. P. of the voyage was through a fier gale. The York (8,400 tons) went to a quarantine station five miles from Port of Spain, Trinidad, at the end of January, when part of the Atlantic Fleet was visiting Trinidad, owing to the outbreak of the disease. Serum was rushed to the warship by air, and it was thought by the authorities that would be more expedient that patient should be taken home to the York than landed in Trinidad for treatment. On the way, as condition of the man caused anxiety, the order was given for it speed.
