BRITISH "RACKETS" SCORED BY BISHOP

ROCHESTER, Kent, England Aug. 28 —(CP)— Many ex-soldiers feel that everything in England is a "racket" today said the Bishop of Rochester, Dr. G. M. Chavasse.

"I have spoken to officers who have given their blood and tears and sweat for long years without leave in saving their country. Their verdict on England today is that everything is a racket."

The bishop said it was true that dishonesty had disgraced every section of British society.

FORTIFIES SKIM-MILK FOR YOUNG CALVES

For young calves that are being fed from the pail, skim-milk is the standard feed, but one disadvantage is the low fat content of the milk. To replace a part of the fat removed from the whole milk, the Dominion Experimental Farm, Brandon, Man., has evolved a home mixed calf meal which has demonstrated its value. The meal mixture is made up of two parts of finely ground sifted oat chop, two parts finely ground sifted barley chop, and one part of flax seed. The mixture is prepared for feeding by adding scalding water to the meal a few hours before being fed. The mixture when cool forms a jelly, and it is in this form that it is added to the milk. Two heaping tablespoonfuls of the dry meal is the allowance given to young calves. The amount is gradually increased until about one-half pound daily is being consumed. The milk and meal mixture are given in three feeds daily at as near blood temperature as possible. Overloading the calf's stomach is a common cause of scours. In addition to the calf meal mixture, young calves may be self-fed with a mixture of whole oats and bran and they are supplied with good quality hay as soon as they will eat it. Access to a supply of clean drinking water is also important.

90 MILLION TONS TO GO:

Pictures and Text
By HARLOW M. CHURCH
NEA Staff Correspondent

FUSHON, Manchuria, Aug. 27—The world's largest open-pit coal mine, which disgorged as much as 20,000 tons of coal a day under Japanese prodding, is down to a mere trickle of 2500 tons right now, but with 90,000,000 tons still to go, there's a lot of shoveling left to be done in this raw material capital of Manchuria.

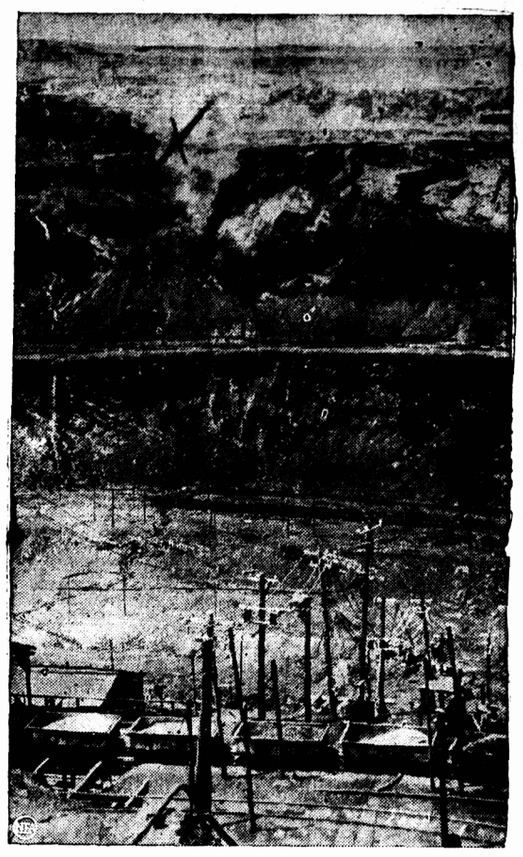
The pit was developed at the end of the Russo-Japanese war in 1905 for the spawning Japanese war industries in this area. Now it yawns 21,000 feet long, 4200 feet wide and 536 feet deep, and is good for a couple of hundred tons of crude oil per day in addition to the coal, since heavy layers of oil shale are intermixed with the bituminous product.

Before the war's end, the Japs had 64,000 workers in the giant pit. Now there are only 22,000, but their numbers are increasing daily as more Chinese mine engineers arrive to take the place of the departed Japanese technicians.

Mining is done the same way soft coal is taken out of the ground in the U. S., the Japs having done their usual amount of adept copying. The coal is blasted loose by dynamite, giant electric shovels lift it into small cars which cart the coal to a huge dump, from which it is poured into cable cars that bring it to the surface.

But that's as far as the similarity goes. The industrious little men who do the work spend seven days a week at it. Their weekly pay envelopes give each man about $2000 a month—Manchurian dollars. That's $10 gold.

The Japs Got 20,000 Tons A Day From World's Largest Open Pit Coal Mine



A grand canyon of coal is this open-pit mine in Manchuria the largest such coal mine in the world. The clouds that rise from this black maw are partly from dust, mostly from hundreds of almost unquenchable small fires started by explosions or spontaneous combustion. Coal miners at left starting their day's work are some of the 22,000 the Chinese now employ on a seven-day work week that pays $10 a month. The Japs had 64,000 laborers at work here.
