THREE AVIATORS KILLED AT START OF FRENCH CONTEST

Two Burned to Death and a third Dashed Against Tree—Others Badly Injured—Fifty Started From Paris Yesterday For $94,000 Prizes

PARIS, June 18—Fifty aeroplanists took wing early today from the aviation field at Vincennes on the first stage of the European circuit race, which calls for a flight to London and return which stops at various places going and returning. Two of the aviators almost immediately after the start met with tragic deaths. One was killed later, and at least one more was seriously injured.

THE DEAD.

Captain Princetau, whose motor exploded in midair, flooding him with gasoline and burning him to death. M. Lemartin, who dashed against a tree, the motor of his aeroplane crushing his head. M. Leudron, burned to death near Chateau Thierry. Benzine in the reservoir exploded and the machine was consumed.

THE INJURED

M. Gaubert, a former lieutenant in the army, who was entered in the civilian race under the name "Dalgier." He was found lying senseless near his machine in a wheat field four miles from Villars Cotterets. His injuries are grave. M. Bille, whose aeroplane struck the earth within a mile of the start and was wrecked. Bille was injured but not seriously.

Three other birdmen fell. M. Lorrain near Charleville; Oscar Morrison, close to Gagny, and M. Morin at Cheveron, within twenty-two miles of Liege, which is the end of the first stage of the race. None of these was badly hurt, though all of them were badly shaken up.

$94,000 IN PRIZES.

Of the fifty aviators who started the race thirty-eight were civilians and twelve officers assigned to the contest for military duty. Hung up for the competitors are prizes amounting to $94,000.

Dawn at Vincennes saw many hundreds of thousands of people, variously estimated at from 500,000 to 1,000,000, massed around the military exercise field to witness the start of the race. Six thousand soldiers and 4,000 police, most of them mounted, strove to keep the field clear. A single gun fired at 5.45 o'clock signalled the commencement of the preliminaries. The Abbe Larebourg was just finishing the mass which by order of the Archbishop of Paris he was celebrating at an improvised altar in one of the aeroplane hangers for some of the aviators who desired spiritual preparation for the perils of the day. M. Lemartin, who within the hour was dying, was among those who were kneeling for blessing and consolation.

The second gun sounded at 6 o'clock and Maurice Tabuteau, Pierre Vedrine and M. Bathiat, who already were in position, whirled away within a minute of each other amid a volume of cheering. The aviators started from three parallelograms from one to three minutes apart. Telard, Kimmeling, Andre Beaumont, Gaget, Henri Molla, Roland Garros, Vidart and Henry Pynalon, Norin and Prevot were off within twenty minutes, and then Jean Bielovucic, Amerigo Pascal, Duval, Bobba, Count Desbours, Lorrain, Contene, Charlix, Labouret, de Lasseue, de Nissolle, Alard, Charles T. Weyman, Barra, Gilbert, Valentin, Marquis de Romance, Landron, Morrison, Bille, La Martin, Verrept, Euhling, Delger and last of all Emile Train, whose machine recently killed Minister of War Berteaux and injured Premier Monis, followed. Among those in the official grandstand were Premier Monis' son, Antonio, who also was injured when M. Berteaux was killed. General Francis Goiran, minister of war, who succeeded M. Berteaux; M. Delcasse and M. Lepine, prefect of Paris.

FIRST CASUALTY.

The wind was rising at the start of the contest and Lemartin, who was one of the most experienced in France, rocked about a good deal, as his machine cleared the ground and swept across the field. His aeroplane had reached the woods a quarter mile beyond the barriers when it was observed to pitch swiftly downward and into the trees. Lemartin was using a biplane, which was broken when it fell at the foot of an oak tree. A corner of the motor struck the aviator's head, crushing his skull, and his right leg also was fractured in two places.

The aviator was barely alive when he was taken away by a red cross surgeon whose stations surrounded the field. The crowd removed their hats solemnly as the wounded aviator was carried past or as word passed among the people that he was dead. Lemartin was alive when he reached the hospital, but expired a few minutes afterwards. Something was wrong with Lemartin's steering gear.

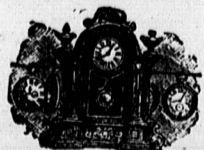

Ten of the competitors, Telard, Gaget, Duval, Contene, Charlix, LaBouret, Gilbert, Romance, Landron and Euhling, although they started officially, never got beyond the limits of the manoeuvring field. Either on account of the gusty wind or because their machines developed eccentricities, they all gave up the contest.

The troops and police had much trouble in keeping the crowds from storming the enclosure. Mounted troops slowly forced the people back and not less than 200 persons were trampled by the horses of the cavalry and by the feet of the mob when they lost their footing.

BURNED TO DEATH IN THE AIR.

General Goiran, the new minister of war, had selected today for comprehensive scouting manoeuvres by the army aeroplanists. Twelve of them were detailed to work out certain problems in reconnaissance. One set forth from Chalons, four from St. Cyr, and seven from Issy Les Moulteaux. Among the latter was Capt. Princetau. He had scarcely got well into the air when one of the planes of his machine caught fire. Capt. Princetau, it was seen by his fellow officers, was struggling to undo a strap that was holding him firmly in his seat so as to be free to jump as he glided toward the earth. Before he could loosen the belt, however, the motor of his machine exploded and flaming benzine gushed over him. He did not utter a cry, and when the wreckage fell to the ground the captain was dead. His body was fearfully burned. Captain Princetau probably had been asphyxiated by the first burst of the benzine flame.

PRESENTATION AT SOURIS

The Ladies Helping Hand of St. James' Presbyterian Church, Souris, met at the home of Mrs. Ferguson last Friday evening. After a delightful musical programme was rendered by Miss Ray Ferguson, recently returned from Sackville Ladies' College, and a choice collation was served the genial hostess; the secretary, Mrs. A. C. Cox, in behalf of the society, presented the retiring President, Mrs. McLeod, with the following address accompanied by a beautiful and timely gift for which Mrs. McLeod expressed grateful appreciation.

Mrs. (Rev.) A. B. McLeod,

Dear Mrs. McLeod:—

In the Province of God you are about to take your departure from our midst. In that departure we feel keenly a double sense of loss as the dearly beloved and efficient President of our Society—and loss as a true and loving friend.

You have ever been foremost in the advancement of the ideas and ideals for which our Society stands, and much of the success accomplished has been due to your untiring zeal and endeavor. Looking back over the years now past and gone, realizing that the tie which binds you to us officially shall soon be severed, realizing that the sweet and blessed path of friendship upon which we together have travelled so long shall soon diverge, and the bright and happy associations cease becoming a memory sacrificed by christian love and duty, and the fragrance of true friendship, we would lift our eyes above and commend you to His tender care, feeling exemplified in you the truth and beauty referred to in the words: "The heart magnifies this life, Making a truth and beauty of its own."

In remembrance; as a slight token of our esteem and love; of our heartfelt, sincere wishes for every blessing for you and your esteemed husband—trusting that he may soon be restored to health and strength—and of our deep regret at your departure, I beg, on behalf of this Society, to present this small token.

MRS. A. C. COX.

Helping Hand Society,

SECY.

CORONATION GROUPS AT THE EDEN MUSEE.

One of the most elaborate wax groups ever made, has just been placed on exhibition at the Eden Musee of New York City. A large portion of the Entrance Hall has been arranged to represent that portion of the interior of Westminster Abbey, where the coronation ceremony will take place. King George and Queen Mary are standing before the church dignitaries, just about to be crowned. Around them are the Bishops, Lords, Dukes, Archbishops, Kings and Queens of other nations. A prominent figure in this group is John Hays Hammond, who was appointed by President Taft, official representative of the United States. The costumes of the king and queen are wonderfully rich and are accurately portrayed after the costumes that are to be actually worn at the coronation. The costumes worn by the various distinguished representatives have been reproduced from the original and customary costumes, with the greatest care. The entire group represents a mass of beautifully blended colors, and the exquisite velvet and lace gowns will be of special interest to women visitors. The Musee has made arrangements for the taking of many moving pictures of the coronation, and these will be exhibited at the Musee, as soon as received. In no other amusement place will it be possible to secure so complete a view of the coronation scene, the grand march of royalty and distinguished representatives, as at the Musee. Many interesting moving pictures have been received and are shown hourly afternoon and evening in the Winter Garden, with a complete change of pictures each hour. Afternoon and evening concerts will have choice programs, and the Musee will continue a wonderfully interesting place.

LONDON VISITORS USE INGENUITY

LONDON, June 16.—Members of the advance guard of the American invasion provoked by the impending coronation of King George V.—the section of the British Museum—the other two men put the boxes inside and got in after them. You've no idea what a grill I got. It wasn't as the boxes had been marked 'Portland' or 'Duke of Portland,' but 'His Grace the Duke of Portland' seemed so quaint as a label on a tin box. I wondered if they marked the duke's collars that way when they went to the laundry. Then I remembered that I read in the paper that the Duchess of Portland was to be at a court ball or something that night, and I guessed that the boxes contained her jewels. Any way, the brougham drove off with the men and the boxes, and I passed on, feeling as if I got a sort of glimpse into the private life of nobility.

Yet another American woman came back from her first expedition into Regent Street declaring that English women out shopping wore "garden party" clothes, and after further explorations extending to Piccadilly, Bond Street and Hyde Park, summed up her observations by saying that being well dressed for outdoors in London consisted in wearing muslin goods, with furs. This same woman found the signs "all British" freely displayed by certain patriotic dealers, extremely odd. "I should think they were all British," she said, as she stopped before the show window of a shoe shop, which vaunted this sign: "Look at the size of them!" Then she pointed to a little boy—"about half as big as a minute," as she expressed it—who was trotting along clinging to his father's hand. This might was dressed in red from head to foot, except for two bare knees. Shoes, socks, breeches, jacket and hat all were bright scarlet. "I suppose that means he's 'all British,' too," she said—"and the knees are Scotch."

70 dozen hand flags on hard wood sticks Union Jacks, Canadian Ensigns, Scotch flags, Irish flags, Welsh flags, English flags, 5, 8 and 10c each. These flags will be on sale from now until 12 o'clock on Coronation Day. Patrons 6-21dlf.
