THOSE WOMEN.

It was in the Garden of Eden that woman first distinguished herself and she has been in the business more or less ever since, quite frequently to her credit—after the first bad break.

It would appear that there are two distinct varieties of the species, one of which flourishes in Europe and is entirely unknown on this side of the Atlantic except through the newspapers; the other the ordinary, everyday sharer of our joys and sorrows, the typical human woman, as she is found in this blessed land of ours.

For a general description of the European variety we have only to read the daily papers. She is called a Suffragette. She wants to vote. She claims to have an equal right with men to do so, that she has as much common sense as a man and can vote as often and as cheaply as a man.

To prove her equality and even her superiority she has undertaken to hasten the necessary legislation to enable her to vote by going about the city in a window-smashing, hair-pulling, property-destroying campaign. During the past few days she has been on the rampage in the city of London and has destroyed all the plate glass windows that she could manage to hit with a brick, she has poured acid into letter boxes, has personally attacked members of parliament, has defied the police and in short terrorized the great city of London.

The mystery is not so much that these women have descended to the commission of crime, for women, to quote from the classic language of the late Artemus Ward, are at liberty to make "an infernal nuisance of themselves" if they want to, but that they are—or were before the outbreak—among the most respectable ladies in London, some of them titled, most of them educated, cultured, refined and, in their tame state, such ladies as all good men delight to honor. This, we repeat, is a mystery and unathomable to those who know only the American variety of woman.

Imagine for a moment, if you can, the wives and daughters of our leading citizens turning out in a body to smash windows, to destroy letters, to throw stones at government officials on their way to their offices or their homes! And this to prove their equality with men, their right to vote! We repeat, the women this side of the Atlantic are not built that way.

It is almost pathetic to read of the London police following these hands of rampant women to protect them from boys who, quite naturally, are helping the "fun" along by tormenting them. Last Tuesday an attempt to duck four of the suffragettes in the fountain in Trafalgar Square was frustrated by a police posse which had to ride through the crowd.

This is not an article on Woman's Rights but it may not be out of place to remark that the present suffragette movement has done more to injure the Woman's Rights movement than can be rectified in the next generation. Whatever rights women in general may have, and they are many, the women at the head of this agitation have forfeited not only all claim to them but also the respect of the civilized world. All of which may be lightly and safely declared in view of the fact that there are no militant suffragettes this side of the Atlantic.

A TRAGEDY DRAMA

While the outside world is looking quietly on a tragedy is being played in Europe the end of which no man can know.

A United States paper publishes a cartoon which fairly illustrates the situation. Serbia is represented as a little boy. Austria grips him by the collar and threatens, "If you make a move I'll—". Russia grips Austria and says "If you hit that little fellow I'll—". Germany takes Russia by the back of the neck with "If you strike my friend I'll—". France, at a safe distance, warns Germany, "If you hit him, I'll—".

CONSTIPATION Can Be Cured.

You cannot expect to be well if you allow your bowels to become clogged. What is necessary is to have a free motion of them every day, and to keep them in this condition all the time if you wish to be strong and healthy. If you don't keep them open the system will become clogged up with poisonous matter and produce constipation, headache, dyspepsia, bad blood, etc.

Keep the bowels in good condition by using Burdock Blood Bitters; the remedy that has built up an unrivalled reputation, during the past thirty-six years, as a cure for all troubles arising from a constipated condition of the bowels.

Mrs. Thomas Calder, East Lower Fort Garry, writes:—"I am writing you to let you know what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I suffered very much from constipation and none of the medicines I took agreed with me. Now I am glad to say that there is nothing like B.B.B. Since taking it I have not been troubled."

and John Bull, at a distance, shouts "Hi there, you chaps!"

This is about the position in the present act. Some acts have been played and the world shuddered at the slaughter of men, the suffering, the starvation of innocent women and children. The curtain went up, according to our despatches of Saturday when the delegates to the peace conference in London returned home with the threat that the next conference would be held on the battlefield and the peace terms signed on a drumhead.

A writer in one of the London dailies says, no chapter of European history more closely resembles fiction than that which chronicles the present phase of the Near Eastern crisis. It is a bundle of wild incongruities to which the future historian will seek a clue in vain. How, for example, will he explain on the one hand the will of each of the European States to maintain the general peace, even at a heavy sacrifice; and on the other hand the fear felt by them all that something—they know not what—may at any moment occur which will precipitate a sanguinary war? For if one and all they are resolved to keep the peace, it is manifest that they wield the requisite power to carry out that resolve. Why then should Europe at the present moment be living on the tenterhooks of seemingly groundless hope and dread?

This writer attributes the "muddle" of "unparalleled impotency to the lack of a leading European statesman, capable of storing up and utilizing the vast peace forces at present scattered over Europe. "We need," he says, "a Cavour or a Bismark."

This is straight talk. He admits that there are one or two in the ranks of diplomacy, French and British, with whom the world is and will probably remain, unacquainted. But at the head of public affairs there is none; one looks in vain for the leader of men. And at this moment of storm and stress, when in South Eastern Europe decay and dissolution have overtaken the old order of things and a new political and social fabric is in process of building the deficiency is felt as an international disaster. "It paralyzes," says the writer, "the will power of nations and renders unattainable for the moment the fervent, universal longing of all peoples to base their intercourse on fair play and mutual trust."

from Ottawa at such a rate that even the shovellers themselves cannot lay by their shovels long enough to warn us of what is coming next.

Some days ago, through the columns of an exchange, The Guardian discovered that the contract for the ferry had been let. To-day we find in another exchange, The Canadian Mail of London, England, that "The Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, is having surveys and plans made with a view to the construction of a marine slipway at Charlottetown, P. E. Island, for the purpose of repairing ships and, subject to the estimates not proving excessive, tenders will be invited for the execution of the work. It is hoped by those who are interested in the proposals that plans for the construction of two slipways, each 400 feet long will be adopted."

It will be remembered that The Guardian, some time ago, advocated this work and that a petition was forwarded through our Ottawa representatives. The modesty of our representatives in withholding the information, until the work is assured, is perhaps excusable but the people would be none the worse of being kept informed.

The funny Patriot accuses The Guardian of turning a somersault on the temperance question because it does not lay all the blame for breaches of the Prohibition Act upon the government and its officials. In its zeal for temperance (?) it accuses The Guardian, also, of advocating such "ridiculous nonsense" as that "the people should enforce the law."

Of course The Guardian never advocated any such thing. What it did and does advocate is that the people should assist the officials in stamping out the traffic. It is because there are too many people who—like The Patriot—withhold their assistance, in order that they may have an opportunity of blaming the government, that the law is not a greater success than it is. Will The Patriot answer one straight question? To whom is the credit due that liquor sellers dare not open up a business in certain sections of the province, the people or the government officials? Having answered this The Patriot answer its own ridiculous question, "Why should the people do that which they pay others for doing?"

NIAGARA FALLS HAS ESCAPED EXPLOITERS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—For the present at least Niagara Falls is removed from the grip of the water power exploiters by the "conservation" bill, scheduled for favorable report tonight by the House Foreign Affairs Committee. The bill places the waters of Niagara and of its tributary streams directly under the supervision of the Secretary of War and forbids any diversion for power or for any other purposes without his express permission. A fine of not less than $500 a day or more than $1,000 is provided for any violation of the new law.

Revocable permits for power plants where economic necessity for them exists are to be granted by the Secretary of War under certain conditions.

CAPTAIN AND 20 SAVED AFTER CRASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 28.—Captain Olsen and his crew of twenty were rescued by life savers from the stranded steam schooner Samoa, which struck the rocks off Point Reyes, a few miles north of the Golden Gate, early today. Life savers dragged the men ashore with breeches buoy. The schooner got off her course in a heavy fog, which blanketed the coast for hours and impeded traffic on the bay. She is pounding heavily and liable to be a total loss.
