An interested crowd of Hockey Fans witnessed the game of hockey played recently between the Summerside Crystals and the O'Leary Boys. The score was 11 to 6 in favor of the Crystals.

A miscellaneous shower was recently held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jelley in honor of Mrs. James Silliker (nee Jessie Ellis) many beautiful presents were received the evening was spent socially in conversation and music.

The recent excursion to Summerside carried a lot of our important citizens down there for the day. There were fifty-one tickets sold at O'Leary Station. Some young folks enjoyed seeing the game of hockey between the Preston Rivulettes and Primrose Sisters.

The citizens of O'Leary were much alarmed Wednesday evening when the alarm was given that Mr. Gordon Silliker's house, occupied by Mr. Roy Kennedy was on fire. A large crowd soon gathered but it was not serious and not much damage was done.

A large crowd attended the play presented by the Knutsford Women's Institute held in O'Leary Hall. The name of the play was "When Irish Eyes are Smiling." Not only Irish eyes smiled, but every eye. The young folks sure acted their parts well, and are to be congratulate. Everyone enjoyed the entertainment and around $65.00 was raised.

Mrs. James Gay of Knutsford was much surprised Saturday eve, when a few of her near relatives gathered to wish her birthday greetings, bringing with them ice-cream and a lovely birthday cake. Mrs. Gay has not been well all winter, but is some improved. She was seventy years old Saturday. A host of friends who were unable to personally express their greetings take the pleasure to convey our greetings through the press.

"God give thee every brightest gift,
Most worthy to bestow,
May every cloud of trouble lift
And streams of gladness flow.

"The Blarney Stone"

The long established precedent of holding the season's biggest and best dramatic entertainment on the feast of St. Patrick was royally upheld by the Tignish Dramatic Club under the auspices of this branch of the A. O. H. when on the evening of the above mentioned feast, they presented in the Town Hall the very popular four act Irish drama entitled "The Blarney Stone."

The caste, which was in fine form did excellent stage work by combining forces to produce the best effect upon its audience who were kept guessing throughout the four acts. The stage, which was in itself a work of art, in the first act represented the yard of the O'Linn cottage. This scenery was planned by a local designer and is a choice bit of advertising for that individual—outlined with a spruce hedge supplemented by a thick inner line of a variety of blossoms, which stretched along by the court and mingled with the creepers, which clung to the house like a human fly in its struggle upwards. Starting away on a background so realistic and substantial, it is not to be wondered at that performers of the entire caste were so excellent. They are as follows:

Brian, a good looking young Irishman faithful to the cause of Ireland, the editor of a local paper, "The Blarney Stone," which is ruining him. In order to meet the demands which are upon him he writes an opera, which is successful. He then falls in love with Kitty, dodges the Efficiency Agent, and is a typical hero throughout the performance. Covering the exigencies of this diversified role Mr. John E. Cameron, whose stage excellence is well known, lived up to his established reputation.

Ony, Brian's assistant at the editor's desk, a friend in need and a rare specimen of humanity behind a battle axe. Playing this part Mr. Arthur A. Bernard, an old favorite, made some rare hits.

Conal, a bill collector, who "is riding around" collects a lot of tacks in his bike tires much to the pleasure of Ony. He turns out to be a useful fellow in the Printing Office and a good friend to Brian. Here we find Mr. Walter Bernard producing comedy rare at a first appearance.

Peter, brother of Brian, a medical student, who has extravagant habits in a loving manner, which keep Brian worried and Peter unhappy. But all ends well for Peter after the passing of the "Efficiency storm." Here Mr. Hollis Morrissey, a product of the local stage showed professional points in tragedy, and skilfully managed his orb outside the orbit of the Efficiency Expert.

Felix, a legal man with one eye on the affairs of his client, while the other pursued the heiress. Villanous in his ambition he attempts to ruin the O'Linn home and happiness but is thwarted by Brian. Playing this difficult role we welcome Mr. William Handrahan to the foot lights and predict a starry future for him while dealing in histrionics.

McCann, a middle aged American business man in love with the widow O'Linn, whom he failed to capture in his youth and with whom he is still having difficulties. Mr. John Gillis, the product of Grand River's Dramatic Club, played his part with great effect, while the crowd applauded his masquerading and love-making.

Mrs. O'Linn, the charming widowed-mother, who keeps her boys working and McCann guessing. Delightful in this role and always a favorite makes us wonder what would become of Tignish Dramatics without Mrs. J. A. MacDonald.

Kitty, the sweetheart of Brian, in spite of the advances of the Efficiency Lady. Playing the role of heroine Miss Eileen Handrahan's performance was superb, her gowns were exquisite.

Hannah, the efficiency lady, with her last word methods, which made everyone in old Ireland dizzy. Doing her stuff like a high explosive, we bid Miss Helena McInnis welcome to the foot-lights and recommend her to stardom.

The specialties, which consisted of the following were of a high order and did much towards making the evening a remembered one.

Mr. Harold Murphy, vocal solo.
Miss Gavin, recitation.
Mr. Arthur Perry, violin solo.
Mr. Alfred Monaghan, saxophone solo.

The Tignish Orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Claude Murphy provided excellent music between the acts. But while applauding the caste, we must not forget the artist behind the screen who decorated, directed and designed until a rugged stage, an unfinished caste and a destitute proscenium was changed into a most realistic scene, which scented the air with spruce, pleased the audience and rushed the season with blossom. To this unseen artist we extend our heartiest congratulations.

Regardless of the outcome of the Anglo-German conversations in Berlin, Britain, as well as France and Italy, feel the powers will have to work out details of the proposed security scheme, this source said.

If Germany decided to enter, the conference will gladly receive her, it was stated. If she chooses to stay out, the conference will work out ways of proceeding without her.

HITLER TO SEEK NEW CONCESSIONS

As Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, arrived in Paris to meet French and Italian representatives for conferences to go over the important questions he and Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, will submit to Adolf Hitler, diplomatic quarters received reports Hitler, besides demanding recognition for her new conscript army, would seek these concessions:

1—An increased navy, possibly the size of Italy's. The figure of 375,000 tons was mentioned. The German navy now has 150,000 tons, with 26,000 more building. Italy has around 370,000, France 550,000. Britain leads the world with 1,160,000.

2—Return of some of the German colonies taken from her after the Great War. Great Britain will not discuss this, an official spokesman said.

3—Certain economic advantages for the Reich. Official sources said Britain also would be disinclined to mix economic with political questions.

GENEVA, March 22—(A.P.)—A common front, though not an aggressive front, probably will line up against the rearmed Reich when the League of Nations council meets in extraordinary session to consider France's appeal against Germany, League circles said tonight.

Tewfik Aras, Turkish Foreign Minister who is acting president of the council, convoked the extraordinary session for the first week in April. The exact date will be announced later.

In the hands of these statesmen lies the fate of Europe — perhaps even the world. In the recent crisis which has arisen out of Hitler's latest conscription move, embassies and foreign offices are tense with apprehension. The threat of war has hung like a macabre shadow over Europe for so many years now, that a break is expected almost any time. The men shown in the above layout are the statesmen responsible; they are the spokesmen who will take all the glory if things go right, and all the blame if they go wrong. They act for the respective governments, though they have in themselves, particularly men like Hitler and Mussolini, dictatorial power in their own right.. The game of political hide-and-seek, of international intrigue is on with a vengeance and to the cleverest wits will probably go the victory. These men have been and will continue to be outstanding news figures; one misstatement from any one of them may plunge the world into war.

ADDRESS

claimed by the speaker as contributing factors to the scarcity of water fowl, were, the four-year drought in the middle continent, and the exceptionally cold winter in Eastern Canada in 1934. Man, however, he pointed out, is not responsible for those conditions and can do little to alleviate them. Other destructive agencies mentioned, over which man has control, were the pollution of streams by sawdust and the pollution of coastal waters by oil burning steamers.

In regard to geese and brant he said that the number in the Maritime Provinces is less than it has ever been, in fact he said, in the case of brant they are in danger of being exterminated. The condition with the geese, while it is serious, is not quite so appalling.

D. Lewis is going to the Seven Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence this spring, Mr. Tufts announced, to study the northward flight of brant. It is expected in this way to get some definite information on the numbers of brant remaining.

Mr. Tufts expressed the hope that the Fish and Game Association in Prince Edward Island would follow the other Maritime Provinces in asking for a closed season on geese and brant.

The black duck situation is serious also, he said, but thought that they will come back. The black ducks do not migrate further than the southern part of the Maritime Provinces or the New England states. As proof of this he submitted figures showing that of 60 ducks branded 14 were shot. Of this number 12 had been in the Maritime Provinces and 2 in the New England states.

The scarcity of black ducks he attributed to the high mortality rate in the winter of 1934 due to excessive cold. Some have said to him, Mr. Tufts told, that there were plenty of winters years ago just as cold as the winter of 1934. That was quite so, Mr. Tufts admitted, but he pointed out that then there was plenty of eel grass, which was not the case in 1934 so conditions were not similar.

In reference to reports from Nova Scotia that the eel grass is coming back Mr. Tufts claimed that in the estuaries of streams where there is fresh water influence the grass is fairly healthy, but where the water is of ordinary salinity there is still plenty of disease and no grass.

Mr. Tufts told of the excellent success with a bird sanctuary in Grand Manan, N. B., and stated that he hoped to have one established soon at Black Pond near Souris. He would like to see six or seven small ones in this Province.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Tufts was moved by Mr. W. A. Gaudet and seconded by Mr. George Tweedy. Mr. A. E. Morrison also spoke in support of the motion.

Hon. G. Shelton Sharp spoke briefly. In regard to the proposed open season on "Huns" he pointed out that the birds have not yet spread all over the Province. In regard to the bag limit, he thought that a three bag limit and a two weeks open season would be better to start out with. He thought it would be a short sighted policy to go out and clean them up the first year. In regard to geese and brant he thought that drastic measures should be adopted to save them.

A general discussion took place participated in by Messrs. W. H. Tidmarsh, President of the Fish and Game Association, who presided at the meeting, D. A. MacKinnon, H. C. White, A. W. Hyndman, R. L. Day, A. E. Morrison, fish and game inspector, Mr. W. A. Gaudet and others.

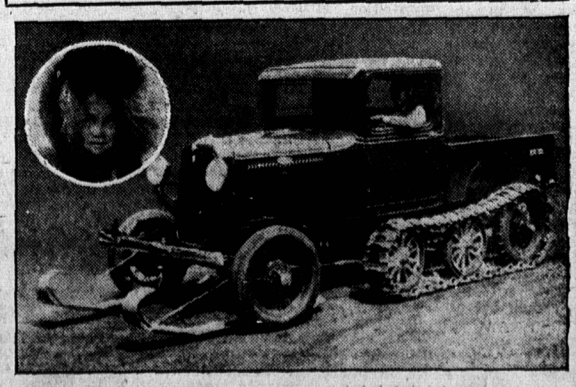
MOTORIZING THE ARCTIC TUNDRA



Far North on the Arctic coast of the Northwest Territories, east of the Mackenzie River mouth, this Ford V-8 "snowmobile" is transporting supplies and furs and drawing loaded sledges between the Hudson's Bay Company trading posts, taking the place of many dog teams. To the little Eskimo children, such as the cute youngster shown above, it is one of the white man's wonders. The snowmobile, a pickup truck equipped with caterpillar treads in the rear and auxiliary skis in front, was shipped from Winnipeg to Edmonton and from there 300 miles north to the end of steel. R. H. G. Bonnycastle, of Winnipeg, manager of the Western Arctic division of the Hudson's Bay Company, accompanied the snowmobile into the far North last Summer on his annual inspection of trading posts scattered along the Arctic coast and through the Territories.
