Fabian Society Celebrates Delayed Diamond Jubilee

By JAMES McCOOK Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Fabian Society, which celebrated its diamond jubilee this week-end, occupies modest offices where Socialist pamphlets and murder mysteries are sold indiscriminately. But it looks proudly toward the Palace of Westminster where sits a Labor Government willing to accept its counsel. The celebration was delayed two years by the war. It was Jan. 4, 1888, when a small group of intellectuals met in London to form an association "whose ultimate aim shall be to help in the reconstruction of society in accordance with the highest moral possibilities."

polling. All are Republicans but it is for and against in the present representation. Polls of public thought and other sources of advance opinions on election results largely forecast a Republican victory but all have been proved wrong in other elections during the 14-year period of Democratic rule in Congress. The Democratic regime in the White House which has existed since the late President Roosevelt won in 1932 and went on to break all precedent by being elected four times in a row (the fourth time two years ago today) is not at stake in Tuesday's elections. This is the off-year election for Congress, some state governors and numerous state and municipal officials—but its outcome may have a definite effect on the presidential nominations two years hence.

Government quarters Saturday night confirmed that government amphibious forces had landed in Chefoo and were fighting in the streets, but the land attack from the south was reported stalled near the suburbs. Seaborne government assaults were in progress from the vicinity of government-captured Yehsien, 120 miles southwest of Chefoo, along the irregular coastline as far east as Weihaiwei, 41 miles northwest of Chefoo, the independent paper Hsin Min Pao reported.

Hard fighting still was in progress on the Peking-Nankow railway in Hopeh Province. Italians Riot In Trieste

(By Michael Goldsmith) TRIESTE, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Rioting Italians today stoned offices of newspapers and organizations favoring Yugoslavia and in some cases attacked isolated Slovenes. The disorders, first in this disputed port in two months came on the eve of the meeting in New York of the four-power foreign ministers council to decide finally the fate of Trieste, an Italian Adriatic port which Yugoslavia claims with Russian support. The provisional redraft treaty for Italy prepared by the Paris peace conference provided that Trieste and the immediately adjacent territory be internationalized.

Women Voters Outnumber Men In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Women would cast 1,171,748 more votes than men in the United States next Tuesday, if everybody of age went to the polls. The census bureau said today more women than men are reaching 21 right along. To director M. C. Capt. this means that women "seem destined to be increasingly influential in elections." And the women's joint legislative committee for equal rights sought to put that influence to work right now. The committee listed candidates it is for and against in the Congressional election. It appealed to voters to weigh qualifications of candidates for Senate and House of Representatives "on the basis of the stand on the equal rights amendment to the constitution, which would guarantee equal justice under law for men and women."

Laying Groundwork For By-election

(By The Canadian Press) OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—Political party chieftains are laying the groundwork early for the Dec. 28 federal by-election in the traditionally Liberal riding of Richelieu-Vercheres, where the government hopes to regain some of the prestige lost through its defeat recently in three other federal by-elections.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the setting of the date for the contest this week and this was promptly followed by a statement from John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, that his party would nominate a candidate for the seat.

Constitution Outlaws War As Nat. Policy

TOKYO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Japan's new constitution, outlawing war, was proclaimed today by Emperor Hirohito. He said he hopes for "a nation of culture tempered by a sense of moderation and responsibility, and dedicated to freedom and peace." The imperial rescript read to the Diet (Parliament) acknowledged that "this constitution represents a complete revision of the imperial constitution."

It was a far different scene from the promulgation of Japan's first constitution just 57 years ago by the young Emperor Meiji. On that occasion the basic law of a country just emerging from feudalism was issued to a select group of aristocrats and top leaders. Today a bowed, middle-aged Emperor was giving up most of the prerogatives of his throne in a constitution which abolishes the aristocratic House of Peers.

Considering Appeal On Deductions

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(CP)—Officials here are considering the possibility of appealing the judgment handed down Friday in the Exchequer Court by Mr. Justice J.R. Thorsen on income tax deductions for labor unions which would deduct law society fees from their incomes for "return purposes." The ruling might have a far reaching effect, an income official said. It might be interpreted as extending to many other varieties of fees such as fees paid by employees to labor unions which would cancel a heavy loss of revenue. The department had ruled that lawyers whose incomes were derived from the fees from their law offices might deduct their payments to the law society, but those on a regular salary such as the two appellants were not entitled to such deductions. Should an appeal be taken it would be to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Complaints Are Withdrawn

HALIFAX, Nov. 3.—(CP)—Complaints under the Canada Shipping Act laid against Capt. Guy Tanner, skipper of the Lunenburg, N.S., fishing schooner Frances Geraldine were dropped before he was scheduled to appear in court here Saturday. The original complaints were laid by a member of the crew, James Taylor, Blue Rock, N.S., who alleged that the captain had failed to pay Tanner wages due from the vessel's last trip to the fishing banks and had failed to produce a settlement check for sale of the vessel's 170,000-pound haul of fish. Capt. Willis Parks, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Fishermen's Union, announced that no

Urgo Establishment Of Free Health Plan In Nova Scotia

(By The Canadian Press) HALIFAX, Nov. 3.—A resolution urging establishment of a free health service plan in Nova Scotia fashioned after one in operation in Saskatchewan was passed Saturday at the concluding session of the sixth annual provincial C.C.F. convention. The three-day meeting wound up with election of officers, an address by Charles Gillis, C.C.F. member of Parliament for Cape Breton South, and adoption of resolutions calling for a regional health system in Nova Scotia, a provincial abortion and bridge or causeway across the Strait of Canso.

The 65 delegates were unanimous in supporting the recommendation that the province set up clinics for free diagnosis and treatment of cancer. It was also suggested that facilities for free dental and eye examinations be set up for aged, blind and pensioners and recipients of public assistance. Russell Cunningham, C.C.F. member of the legislature for Cape Breton East and official opposition leader, was elected president, succeeding J. J. Crummeys of Springhill.

Champion Breeder Once Hated Cattle

GRAVEN, Sask., Nov. 3.—(CP)—When Kenneth Holt left Canada, England for Canada in 1912, he decided that he would return when he amassed $100 ($400) but he has stayed to make at least 130 times that amount with the aid of animals he previously had no use for—Aberdeen-Angus cattle. The 51-year-old farmer recently shipped his herd—rated among the best in the world—down to Regina, 25 miles southeast of here, and the 133 "black beauties" were knocked down by an auctioneer's gavel for a cool $52,000. Only 15 years ago Mr. Holt started in the cattle business when a neighbor gave him two Aberdeen-Angus heifers in payment for a pasturing debt. Previously he had worked as a farm-hand, then rented a farm and finally bought it in 1919 and almost forgot about his desire to return to England. From then until 1925 he grew grain and specialized in hay. That was when he learned to hate cattle, for his neighbors' animals would wreck his stacks by foraging in them. But when the two heifers were forced on him his attitude changed. He became fond of the animals with the shiny black coats and within a few years he bought a grand champion bull and a pure-bred cow and sold the first calf for $800. Soon he bought another champion bull and more cows the grandson of one selling for $3,000. The champion's pig bit Mr. Holt and he started the round of fair with his animals switching from beef cattle to all pure-bred stock. In the last 10 years his animals have won a dozen grand championships and more than 200 first prizes. But it was not all fun. At the Montana state fair at Grand Falls several years ago he arrived with the temperature touching 110 degrees and worked all night preparing his animals for the show. They won four firsts, eight seconds and three thirds.

Boyer Case Comes Up On January 23

(By The Canadian Press) MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—Raymond Boyer of Montreal will stand trial Jan. 23 before a King's Bench Court jury on charges of conspiracy and contravention of the Official Secrets Act. Date for the hearing, which already has been postponed through two terms of court, was set Saturday when the wealthy scientist appeared at opening of the November assize. Dr. Boyer, McGill University professor of anatomy and wartime member of the National Research Bureau staff, is accused of having conspired with Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member of parliament, in the development of information to Russia unlawfully and of having communicated such information. On arraignment at a previous term of the court he pleaded not guilty to the charges. He has elected for a French-speaking jury. He is at liberty on bail of $15,000.

Government Help Nfid. Farmers

(By D'ARCY O'DONNELL (Canadian Press Staff Writer) ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 3.—(CP)—Newfoundland's commission government is continuing a program to help and encourage agriculture and make it self-supporting industry for some and a complementary industry for those engaged in fishing, mining and lumbering. In a manifesto outlining reconstruction plans over the next 10 years, the government laid particular stress on the development of agriculture. It earmarked approximately $6,000,000 for use in settling and clearing land, for improving agricultural services and for the construction of dairy barns and warehouses. It is generally recognized that the Island now is far from self-sufficient in food and dairy products. Because of the existing high costs for these products their consumption among the Island's 312,000 population is generally low. For instance, fresh milk is rarely as a beverage in public restaurants. Pasteurized fresh milk sells in St. John's for as much as 28 cents a quart. There are few dairy farms on the Island which covers an estimated 42,000 square miles. The difficulty of obtaining proper feeds and of marketing dairy products has tended to discourage dairy farming and beef cattle raising. Farmers for the most part have gone in for the growing of vegetables, keeping only sufficient livestock to provide their own immediate local demand. A 50-acre farm is considered a large one. Big Obstacles The soil is in many areas infertile and weather conditions are such as to discourage the growth of some crops. The 1942 national registration showed that of the Island's 312,000 population only 3,211 were full-time farmers. Approximately 35,000 others were classified as part-time farmers. Despite the evident handicaps, the commission government feels that the development of agriculture would have its benefits. It points to the success of land settlement schemes during the Great Depression.

Soviet Delegate Demands Reductions In U.N. Budget

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(CP) A Russian demand for staff and budget reductions was added today to the accumulation of red hot issues facing United Nations General Assembly committee when they resume work tomorrow. The economic proposals were made late Saturday by Fedor Gusev, Soviet delegate on the finance committee and former ambassador to Canada. His accusations of over-staffing and budgetary extravagance obviously shocked and embarrassed secretary-general Trygve Lie. Russia's choice for that office who has been openly favorable to Soviet arguments since his appointment. Mr. Lie replied briefly that he was only attempting to do what further action would be taken after the captain had agreed to produce the settlement sheet on which shares of crew members in the proceeds of the cargo are to be shared. The crew walked off the ship last Thursday protesting the captain's action but later returned and sailed the vessel home to Lunenburg.
