Corns Easily Removed By a Painless Solvent

Chemists have found a way to dissolve corns off our sore toes. Just a drop or two of this solvent and the corn shrivels up. Next day a few more drops of the solvent and the dried-up kernel of the corn drops out. You can get the benefit of this discovery by using Putnam's Corn Extractor. Paint your corn tonight with Putnam's Corn Extractor and see how well you feel tomorrow. All drug stores sell Putnam's Corn Extractor.

DAUGHTER OF EXILE
By ALEXANDER CAMPBELL

"He didn't seem very pleased," admitted Shane. "But Martha—Miss Peimann overrode him. Everything 'Hm,' said the captain drily. Shane asked hastily.

"I went for a walk, before coming up here for a rest, and a smoke. That's a boat out there, isn't it?" Shane looked. The trawler he had noticed from the road had drawn still closer to the shore. She appeared to be slowly drifting.

"My eyes aren't so bad when it comes to distances, especially at sea," said the captain with satisfaction. "Custom, I suppose. But I can't make out her name, or much else about her. Can you?"

Shane shaded his eyes. "She's a trawler," he said "not quite the usual type, either—looks foreign. But I can't make out the name."

"Poaching, or getting ready to poach as soon as night falls, I'll be bound," growled the captain. He produced a small telescope. "I had a squint at her through that, but my eyes are too bad. Everything goes over. It was a good glass once. It was an excellent glass still. With the telescope to his eye Shane could make out every detail of the ship.

"She's called the Lillie," he reported. "I can make out the name quite clearly now. Foreign, all right."

large and sombre. Dark oak book-cases lined the walls, and the rest of the furniture was equally funereal.

But a cheerful peat fire burned in the hearth, and at a small desk which had been moved near the fire a man sat writing.

He was small and fragile, and his hands were as small and neat as the character he was busily inscribing on the paper. One hand went up in a constant gesture to sweep back the mane of grey hair from his high forehead. His dress, like his hair, was untidy. His trousers were creaseless, and he wore a tie with a high loose knot carelessly tied in it. A small black imperial straggled from his chin. He wore gold pince nez clipped to his short broad nose, and their lenses gleamed fierily in the red glow from the hearth when he jerked his head to the rhythm of his pen. The eyes behind the lenses were mild, and the face was sensitive and intelligent.

He stopped writing, glanced hastily over the untidy heap of manuscript which littered the desk, the result of his day's labors, and without raising his head pulled on a bell cord that hung within reach.

He glanced at his watch and exclaimed in surprise. He was caught by a page which had fallen unheeded from the desk in the white heat of literary creation, and he bent to pick it up.

The room was in a state of confusion very typical of its occupant. Books had spilled from the over-bowing book cases and were piled in heaps on chairs and tables and even on the floor. He was surrounded by them.

As the man retrieved the fallen page the door opened silently to admit the giant Heinrich. He padded over to the desk and bowed stiffly.

"Herr Professor?"

Martha Peimann's father looked up wearily. "Ah, Heinrich. I did not know it was so late. Martha is in bed?"

"Yes, Herr Professor."

"Good. Sit down, Heinrich." Heinrich sat down. He did not relax, but a subtle change came over the manner. The servant had become the confidante.

Professor Peimann frowned and drummed his tapering fingers on the desk's polished surface. "I wish to discuss the message you brought this afternoon, Heinrich. Heinrich nodded submissively. "Only one man knows our whereabouts," he said.

These are the beans your husband means

• Genuine number one navy beans, with the appetizing bean-pot flavour of his boyhood—that's what your man is after. That kind of bean-feast used to take a lot of work, but nowadays your part is only to say to your dealer, "Heinz Oven-Baked Beans, please."

They're choice, selected, hand picked beans—baked through and through in hot, dry ovens. Every bean is whole, golden-brown, tender and digestible. Then comes drenching through and through with the delicious sauces that only Heinz chefs know how to make.

Heat and serve one of the 4 kinds of Heinz Oven-Baked Beans tonight—watch 'him' smile! But remember, you can't have a feast like this with beans that are merely steamed or boiled. Heinz beans are all baked—it's right on the labels.

H. J. Heinz Company, Toronto, Ont.

Heinz OVEN-BAKED BEANS

4 KINDS
1. In rich, savoury tomato sauce with juicy, young pork.
2. In tomato sauce without pork—vegetarian style.
3. In molasses sauce with tender pork—Boston style.
4. Red Kidney Beans with pork, in their own sweet sauce.

In Memoriam
MRS. PETER HUGHES
The sudden death, on April 8th, 1938, of Mrs. Peter Hughes, (nee Catherine Thorne) was a great shock to her many friends throughout the province.
Of a quiet and retiring disposition, the late Mrs. Hughes endeared herself to all who knew her by her many little acts of kindness.
She was twice married. Her first husband, Leo M. Harrington, was for many years associated with the Examiner Office of this city. Her second husband, Peter Hughes preceded her about three years ago. There are left to mourn the loss of a devoted mother, five daughters—Lucy, (Mrs. Francis O'Brien); Inez;

Kathleen, Adele, Mary Claire and three sons, Reginald, Ebert and Peter of Montreal. One sister, Mrs. P. S. Brown, City, survives.
The funeral was held Tuesday morning to St. Dunstan's Basilica, where Requiem High Mass was sung by her nephew Rev. G. Edwin McCormac, S. J., of Montreal.
The pallbearers were: Messrs. John F. Leitcher, James Longman, Patrick Mullins, James Campbell, Ernest McCarey and William Morgan.
May her soul rest in peace.
REFOLD THE CLOTHES
"Tablecloths always wear first along the folds. To avoid this, fold clothes in four one week and in three the next week, thus 'spreading' the wear over the cloth by making fresh folds."

Lad Recovering From 300-Foot Plunge
(By The Canadian Press) PORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 19—Eleven-year-old Donald Smith today displayed deep cuts about the face and head from his 300-foot tumble down the precipitous Mt. McKeay. His complete recovery, however, is only a matter of time, doctors said.
Donald, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith, Port William, yesterday while playing fell from the top of Mount McKeay to the lower ledge of rock to another.

Had Indigestion Gas and Pains In Stomach and Bowels

The process of digestion depends largely on the condition of the stomach, and when it is unable to do its work properly there will be a rising and souring of food, a gnawing and burning sensation in the stomach, belching and pressure of gas, flatulence, etc.
Burdock Blood Bitters starts an increased flow of gastric juice so essential for the proper digestion of food.
Miss M. C. Wises, Mapova, Alta., writes: "For long time I was troubled with indigestion. My stomach would not digest my food, and I would have gas pressure and sour stuff coming up in my mouth.
I used Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking one bottle I felt a change for the better, so I decided to keep on, and after the third bottle I could eat anything and not be bothered with the rising and souring of my food."

HEALTHY

A HEALTHY SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA
WHAT TO EAT TO BE HEALTHY
Number Three
Vitamin A is essential for the health of the mucous membranes of the eyes, nose, throat, sinuses, bronchial tubes, oesophagus, stomach, intestinal tract, and the genito-urinary passages.
The lack of Vitamin A in the diet causes eye trouble and tendency to infections.
The following foods give you vitamin A: Pasteurized milk, cream and butter, colored vegetables such as spinach, carrots, leaf lettuce, eggs, liver and kidney.
The distribution of vitamin A is very wide, and it is also very abundant. If your diet contains a part of pasteurized milk a day, butter, and two vegetables besides potato, as well as an egg a day, you will certainly be receiving an adequate supply of vitamin A.
Vitamin B1 and B2 are necessary for the nerves, skin, and the normal burning up of sugars and starches in the body.
The lack of vitamin B1 and B2 results in neuritis. A lack of these vitamins also results in constipation.
The following foods give you vitamin B1 and B2: Most vegetables and fruits, particularly peas, beans and lentils, whole grain cereals, egg yolk, liver and kidney.
Vitamin B1 is widely but not abundantly distributed. We must watch carefully to see that we get an adequate supply of it. This vitamin is abundant in wheat germ and yeast. Unfortunately vitamin B1 is water soluble. If an excessive amount of water is used in cooking, as high as 90% of this vitamin may evaporate away in the cooking water.
In the next article in this series of "What to Eat to be Healthy," we will discuss vitamins C and D.
Watch this series for complete and authentic information on what to eat and where to find it.
Questioning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 Co lege Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Hampton

The mild weather which we have had during the past week has enabled many of our farmers to get their Spring threshing complete, while others were busy sawing wood in order to have supply on hand before the very busy season starts when all will be at work on the land.
The many friends of Mr. Dougal MacKinnon are pleased to hear he is improving.
We are glad to report that Mr. and Mrs. Boyd MacQuarrie and family and Mrs. W. H. Farrow are all doing nicely after their recent illness.
