STOCK QUOTATIONS

Stocks Rally Near Close On New York Mart

NEW YORK, June 9—After a slip-shod morning performance, the stock market today took a tip from rising commodities and swung into a late rally that lifted leaders fractions to more than 2 points. There were a few wider gains.

Although the current business picture continued cloudy, there were those who thought they saw signs of betterment not so far away.

Industrial stocks led the forward tilt, while rails and utilities followed with only small advances for the majority. The trading pace was extremely slow until the fourth hour when volume picked up as prices rose. Transfers totalled 587,220 shares, against 278,410 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .06 of a point at 49.6.

A few issues showed substantial advances on a generally inactive Canadian list. Dome Mines gained 1 1-2 to 60, International Nickel 1 1-2 to 44 1-4 and McIntyre 1 1-4 to 43 1-4. Fractionally higher were Distillers, Walkers and Lake Shore. Hollinger and Imperial Oil declined.

Currencies

NEW YORK, June 9—(AP)—Most European currencies showed only minor declines in terms of the dollar after early wider losses today in quiet foreign exchange dealings.

Sterling lost 3-16 of a cent at $4.95 1-8 and the French franc .00 1-4 of a cent at 2.77 5-8. The Canadian dollar closed at a discount of 1 9-32, up 1-32.

VILLAGE CUT OFF CLOSE TO LONDON

ROMFORD, England, June 8 — (CP)—Dating back to the days of Richard I, the sleepy old village of Curtis Mill Green is again seriously considering building a road to the outside world.

It is seven miles from here and 20 miles from London. It is not accessible in winter except in "sludboots" of the Wellington variety because mud is knee-deep in the fields and bogs intervening between the village and nearest road.

A cluster of 21 houses is grouped in a forest glade and the main street has never carried the weight of an automobile. No tradesmen, except wandering tinkers, call and everything including coal has to be carried by man-power or on a horse-drawn drag.

Oil lamps and candles are used for lighting. Millie Abrams, one of the villagers, bakes her own bread and makes her own butter. She says: "If anyone dies they have to be carried 2 1-2 miles to the nearest undertaker. One funeral we had here they had to prepare a track across the swamp with sticks. Then we carried the coffin to the hearse."

BAILEY COMES BACK

ACCRINGTON, England — Now professional here, J. Bailey, left-hand cricket all-rounder, will play for Hampshire, county club, again after four years' absence. He will perform in mid-week matches.

SIGNED FOR SOCCER

BLACKPOOL, England — This city's English football league club has signed K. Dawson, high scoring outside-left from Falkirk of the Scottish group. He scored 21 goals for Falkirk in the 1937-38 schedule.

WALTON HEATH, England — James Braid, 68, five times British open golf champion, accomplished the lowest score of his career recently when he went round in 64, one better than his own record.

FOOT-SPECIALIST SAYS FREAKISH SHOE STYLES WILL RESULT IN FOURTOED WOMEN

The woman of future generations will be four-toed, because short and pointed shoes cramp the little toe until it becomes atrophied, Dr. Louis Lewy, secretary of the Manhattan division of New York, said at the final session of the forty-second annual convention of the society.

The speaker did not bring men into his discussion, but said that thousands of X-ray examinations of women's feet had convinced him that the fifth toe was becoming atrophied from the pressure of modern shoe styles for women. The manufacturer, he added, was not entirely to blame, because he was governed by "demand."

"Because of the freakish shoes which are designed to meet the demand of Dame Fashion, rather than her sister, Dame Comfort, women are gradually losing their small toes," he said. "The evidence of structural changes in toes has been established by thousands of X-ray examinations.

"Nature has created the foot in fan-like design. Shoes that are worn today do not permit the normal spread of the fore part of the foot. Consequently the small toe is pushed over or under the adjacent toe, resting in a deformity."

The ages-old desire of women for tiny feet might be thus satisfied in "future generations," and the use of sandals and toe-less shoes in warm seasons would not materially delay that millenium, he said, pointing out that it was usually the big toe that protruded, while the little one remained hemmed in.

ITALY'S POWER GROWING IN BALKAN STATES

MILAN, Italy, June 8—(CP)—Growing Italian influence in the Balkans was stressed today by leading spokesmen in speeches at the opening of the National Congress for international political studies.

The Congress, which will discuss various phases of the world situation, also heard Foreign Minister Cont. Ciano reaffirm Italian solidarity with Germany and Japan and acclaim the Anglo-Italian accord as a great step toward European appeasement.

Commenting on Count Ciano's address, the leading article in the Giornale d'Italia written by Virginio Gayda, who also spoke at the Congress, reiterated warnings to all foreign nations to "keep their hands off Spain."

Praise For Japan

Count Ciano praised Japan's invasion of China as a fight against Bolshevism. Ciano is a son-in-law of Benito Mussolini and believed by some the probable successor of the Premier.

He placed the Asiatic struggle alongside that in Spain where he said, Italy and Germany were staging "historic resistance" against the menace of disintegration.

Turning to the Anglo-Italian pact, Count Ciano warmly praised the "frank and courageous" speech by Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons on April 16 when he presented the agreements concluded with Italy.

"The words of the eminent statesman," Ciano said, "found a profound echo in the Italian people who interpreted them as testimony of the spirit in which Chamberlain and his collaborator Lord Halifax devoted themselves to their task of clarification and reconciliation.

"The Anglo-Italian accords have the merit of having cleared the ground of residue of the past and placed the relations between the two empires on a basis of clarity and loyalty which alone can be the foundation for stable and solid understanding between nations.

"Solid peace cannot rest on a fragile mesh of diplomatic expedients but demands mutual recognition of historical position and the precise intention to respect them.

"Such are the elements that assure to the Anglo-Italian agreements their strength and their vitality and which determine their significance as an effective aid to the stabilization and pacification of Europe which Italy desires and to which it devotes itself as a realist spirit."

Ciano pictured Italy, Germany and Japan, colleagues in an accord against communism, as benefactors of the world.

He said China "imprudently has aligned herself" with the "dissolving action of Bolshevism...Not taking into account that the national cause is very badly entrusted to hands of that state (Soviet Russia) which proclaims itself champion of red internationalism."

"Italy seeks Mediterranean security for all," Gayda wrote "this security is constituted not only by a balance of strategic positions and military systems, but also by the elimination of all foreign influence and all corrupt influence from Spain."

As to the Balkans, both Ciano and Gayda stressed in their speeches that Italy's interest there is not determined by any "low motives" to secure political or economic hegemony, but only "inspired by a deside for pacific cooperation."

The Italo-Yugoslav accord and the improvement of relations with Rumania, Greece and Turkey were among the great steps accomplished by Italy toward this cooperation Gayda told the Congress. He emphasized the need for cultural and commercial exchanges with Balkan countries.

HIT RADIO TALK ON FREE SPEECH

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 8 (C P-Reuters) —Because the Australian Broadcasting Commission severely censored his proposed address on "Freedom of Speech" Judge Foster, president of the Victorian branch of the League of Nations' Union, refused to speak.

In a letter to the Commission, Judge Foster said: "I have come to the conclusion that it is impossible to fit my thoughts on the subject of 'freedom of speech' within the narrow limits which the restrictions you so politely and tactfully indicated, allow.

"It is a little humorous, perhaps, to contemplate a broadcast on free speech under restrictions that are so obviously a denial of it."

Judge Foster said that he had intended to refer to the government's treatment of a certain journalist, and it was to this, particularly, that the Commission had objected.

It was Judge Foster who once told a child witness, who had said he would go to hell if he told a lie, "there is no hell, sonny."

Uncle Sam Sees Canada Needing His Strong Arm

(By Alexander R. George Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, June 8—(CP)—Citizens of our "good neighbor" Canada used to feel pretty safe because they seemed isolated from potential enemy countries. Now they are becoming invasion-conscious as war alarms reverberate around the world.

With Mother Britain arming to the teeth in the face of European tension, members of the Canadian parliament are urging a strengthening of home defences. Reports hint of "mysterious" movements of heavy guns from one coast to another.

Canada's remoteness from expansion-hungry powers and her cordial relations with next-door United States have made a large peacetime military establishment seem unecessary. Moreover, Canadians have counted upon Britain's warships to hold off a possible invasion of their eastern coast.

But probably the most comforting antidote for Dominion fears has been the belief that "the strong right arm of Uncle Sam" would be lifted against an aggressor who carried the fight to the Canadians' home grounds. Defence Minister Ian MacKenzie said recently:

"Just as the British Navy on the Atlantic is our greatest security in that quarter so I think it might be reasonable to assume that in a major conflagration we should have friendly fleets upon the Pacific ocean."

Canadian hopes for U.S. aid in a pinch are based roughly on:

1. The Monroe Doctrine under which the United States views as an unfriendly act any attempt by a European or Asiatic nation to deprive an American state of territory or the right of self government by force.

Outside the general assurances of the Monroe Doctrine, this country is not committed to the military protection of Canada. So students of International affairs find it conceivable that the United States would remain neutral if Canada became involved in a war between Great Britain and another power.

But they find it difficult to imagine the United States remaining placid if foreign troops actually were blasting their way into Vancouver or planes were dropping body-mangling bombs on Toronto and Montreal. Among many United States citizens, the bombing of those nearby cities would stir almost the same resentment as air raids on Buffalo and Detroit.

2. The "realistic" viewpoint that the United States, with its long unfortified northern border, could not afford to allow the conquest of Canada with the probable setting up of a strong military establishment.

Resistance against a surprise attack on this country by way of the Dominion has long been an important part of secret U.S. defence plans.

The biggest peacetime manoeuvres of the army have been sham battles between "invading" and "defending" forces in northern New York State, even including the use of large numbers of New York City taxicabs to transport troops from New Jersey and southern New York to the "front."

Canada's own first line of defence is a volunteer militia of about 53,000, a dozen or so batteries of coast artillery, some 85 batteries of light and medium artillery, a half a dozen destroyers and about 100 modern aircraft. Compared with the military establishment of even tiny Yugoslavia, Canada is "unarmed."

Her resistance, no matter how gallant, to an attack in force by a great power or coalition of powers would be ineffective unless the services of a strong British fleet were available. In such a situation Canada would hope for U.S. assistance by sea, air, and land.

Some American alarmists have envisaged enemy aircraft making the short jump across the Bering Straits from northern Asia to Alaska, flying from Fairbanks to Winnipeg in nine hours and in another four hours or less being in a position to bomb Omaha or Chicago.

Military planes can fly that far (more than 2,000 miles) but the defence experts are not alarmed at the prospect of such an attack in the near future— because no bombers have been developed which have a tactical range of even 1,000 miles.

Meanwhile the goal of the U.S. army is a force strong enough in numbers and equipment to smash the first contingent of an enemy which obtained a foothold anywhere in the United States, Canada or Mexico. The army air corps already has reached a stage of development where it is rated a match for the sky fighters of any nation.

WHEN YOU GO GIFT-HUNTING

"With love and best wishes" to the bride and bridegroom. What shall it be? There are so many lovely gifts to be given and all you need do is make your choice. Perhaps a few hints as to what she would most like would be in order.

Has her new home a porch? If so, why not give her some charming peasant linens to dress up an out-of-doors supper table? Or bread baskets that make rolls taste even more delicious. Then there are the hostess and hors d'oeuvres trays that make entertaining a delight. Colored glass is refreshing for Summer drinks and bubble glass jugs do double duty as vases and punch containers.

Indoors, the bride is longing for nests of tables that can be tucked away in a minimum of space and yet provide the necessary space for cups and saucers at tea or supper. Had you thought of a lamp? Be sure the shade is of homespun with tufted edge. A useful bridge lamp is the standing type with indirect lighting that provides adequate light for a game of cards without using an ugly centre light.

Has your bride selected her crystal. Do help her assemble all the neccessary glasses for every occasion. Delicate finger bowls will delight her and under them she will love to place almost invisible doilies of precious lace.

Don't forget ash trays and their accompanying cigarette boxes. Obvious as these may seem, they are an essential in the modern home and the deeper the better. Crystal ones are smart and easily cleaned. Speaking of smoking there are invaluable smoking sets to be had that will keep all smoking appliances in neatness, and compactness. The bridesroom will be especially grateful for such a gift.

The bride will take pride in her own floral arrangements. Help her to have most attractive ones by giving her vases of beauty and good taste. Simple white pottery makes a flattering background for colorful blossoms. Crystal bowls and tall vases always look lovely and the low type of lower holder is just right for a centrepiece at the table. Silver candlesticks complete such a centrepiece and are joyfully received. A low mirror is a lovely sight under a bowl of flowers. Baskets that hold fruit are also charming table equipment.

Will she entertain a great deal? Even with refreshments to follow, a cheese tray of wood makes a useful and most attractive gift. Accompanying these are toothpicks holders so that the whole may become a most practical aid in serving hors d'oeuvres with cocktails.

Shining silver finds a way quickly to every bridal heart. If she has chosen a design you may help her to collect a lifetime's supply of flatware. There are many odd pieces such as pie knives, sugar spoons, butter knives and salad spoons that make excellent small gifts if your budget is small or your acquaintance slight. Stainless steel is an absolute necessity in these days of labor-saving equipment. Ivory or silver handled cutlery will be gladly welcomed. Carving sets make a very handsome gift indeed.

Numerous are the electrical gadets that are making kitchens a gayer place these days. You don't have to go far to find mixers toasters, roasters, and beaters that will be greeted with a cheer. Such presents are considered far from prosaic. Even an electric iron is romantic. If it is up-to-the-minute in the matter of control and weight.
