DISEASES OF POTATOES IN STORAGE.
(Experimental Farms Note.)
Of all the staple articles of food the potato is perhaps the most susceptible to disease. The diseases of potatoes in storage constitute most of various kinds. Most storage rot is due to germs which either live in soil or are carried in, or on the tuber, or both. Chief among these are the late blight or dry rot, fusarium rot, black leg rot, and bacteria rot generally.
The greatest loss sustained by potato growers is undoubtedly due to late decay.

U. C. Presbytery And The Commission

At a well attended meeting of the P. E. Island Presbytery of the United Church, held in Hearz Memorial Hall on Friday, March 19th the following resolution regarding the division of Church property was unanimously passed: WHEREAS, two years have now elapsed since the bill to incorporate the United Church of Canada was first introduced into the Legislative Assembly of P. E. I. and WHEREAS, the Commission provided for under the Act passed last session has been unable to make any report to the Legislative Assembly in session as contemplated in the Act, and WHEREAS it is highly undesirable now to attempt to amend the Act to resuspend the Commission it will inevitably lead to strife and bitterness in congregations where the Commission attempts to function, and WHEREAS in the judgment of this Presbytery a satisfactory settlement of the difficulties which exist can be arrived at only by amicable agreement between parties in congregations, and not by the intervention of a commission attempting to dispose of congregational property, WHEREAS the two Presbyteries in this Province, while they have no power to dispose of congregational property without the consent of the congregation, can nevertheless bring pressure to bear on local situations looking to an amicable settlement, THEREFORE RESOLVED, that this P. E. Island Presbytery of the United Church invite the Presbytery of the north concurring congregations to meet in friendly conference regarding matters which require adjustment between majority and minority in congregations which have divided on the Union issue.

This Presbytery further suggests that between groups of five men, not necessarily members of Presbytery but representative of each Presbytery; that the men selected on either side, who have not heretofore been active in this matter, should be invited to meet in a friendly attempt to look at each situation in an impartial way, and when any adjustment seems practicable that every effort should be made by the congregations concerned to accept it.

In cases where the congregations concerned are willing to make the adjustments recommended by the joint conference, the Court of Chancery should be authorized by the Legislature to give civil effect to these agreements.

THE WINTER-GROWING OF RHUBARB.

(Experimental Farms Note.)
Rhubarb can be successfully grown in any warm cellar during the winter, and is much more tender and delicious than even the earliest rhubarb grown outdoors in the spring.

Strong, vigorous plants should be selected, we prefer those with deep red color. In digging the plants leave as much clay as possible attached to the clump, and cut off the ends then expose until it freezes hard, and should be stored in a shed until required for the cellar. If the rhubarb clumps are brought in every two months, they should supply the average family with this delicious pie plant throughout the winter.

When the rhubarb plants are brought in, they should be put in deep boxes or stood on fine cinder dirt that has been dampened, and the spaces around the clump should be filled in to the level to the crown with the same cinder dirt. Ordinary soil will do.

The box should be covered to keep the plants in darkness, unless the cellar is dark. For best results the cellar should be warm, with a temperature of about 60 degrees.

When the stalks are about 18 inches high, they should be pulled. When pulling, remove not the large and any small stalks as the small stalks if left, might start decay.

Three or four pullings should be secured from each clump, when it can be re-

GREAT PLAY PRESENTED BY ST. PAUL'S DRAMATIC CLUB

In Summerside on St. Patrick's Night. "The Black Feather" Enjoyed by Full House. Specialties an Entertainment in Themselves.

St. Paul's Dramatic Club of Summerside, which ranks second to none in the province, scored a significant success in the presentation of the four act drama "The Black Feather" in the Capitol Theatre, Summerside, on St. Patrick's night. The plot of the play was laid in England and a strong atmosphere of love and intrigue dealing with the German spy system. It's portrayal demanded much for success but the performance by the amateur artists of St. Paul's left nothing to be desired. Scenery in its pleasure of an audience to enjoy such a truly excellent entertainment as was provided; in fact the specialties were a treat in themselves. Each and every member of the following cast are to be congratulated upon their extraordinarily good interpretations of their respective roles.

Baron Von Arnheim (in German Secret Service)—Hazen McLellan
Jack Thornton (a King's Messenger)—John Cameron
Evelyn Thornton (Jack's sister)—Cathleen Cameron
Sir George Caxton (in the British foreign office)—Earl Campbell

Lady Venetia Caxton (his wife)—Alberta McLellan
Dick Kent (in the English Secret Service)—George L. Clow
Hogue (a German spy)—E. Lloyd Gallant
Countess Wanda Von Holtzberg, Austrian Secret Service)—Ruth Gallant
Barnes (a chauffeur)—Byron MacDonald
Patton (a keeper)—William H. Sullivan

The following is a list of the specialties and the hearty applause given was a tangible expression of the pleasure of the audience.

Scotch dance by the Misses McNeill, McPhee, MacDonald and Woodcock
Vocal solo by Mr. Leon LeBlanc "Out on the Deep."
Selections by the Gaiety Orchestra.
Scotch duet—Mr. Huestis

Celebrates 80th Birthday

On the evening of March 16th the members of the Masonic Order residing in the vicinity of Hunter River, assembled at the home of Mr. Philip Bagnall to join with him in celebrating his eightieth birthday. Although having reached the fourscore mark, Mr. Bagnall is still a very active man. He is one of the oldest members of the Prince Edward Island today, having joined Saint John's Lodge, Charlottetown, in the year 1869. Through all these years he has taken a very active part in Masonry, ever ready to give his advice and counsel. After partaking of an excellent lunch served by Mrs. Frank Bagnall, Mr. S. M. Daniel read the following address.

Mr. Bagnall with an amber stemmed pipe:

"Dear Brother Bagnall: We, your Brother Masons gather here this evening to enjoy the hospitality of your home and to join with you in celebrating your birthday. You have reached the age of fourscore years and have always enjoyed the respect of the whole community. We know that you are one of the oldest living Masons on Prince Edward Island. During your long connection with the Masonic Order, you have always taken a very active interest in its welfare, ever ready to give your advice and extend your support.

Please accept the accompanying gift as a small token of the esteem in which you are held by your Brother Masons.

Signed, Brothers,
S. M. Daniel,
J. A. LeFursey,
Murdoch Cutcliffe,
J. M. MacLeod,
R. H. Campbell,
J. F. McMillan,
J. E. Seaman,
Jas. E. Andrew,
A. G. MacLeod.

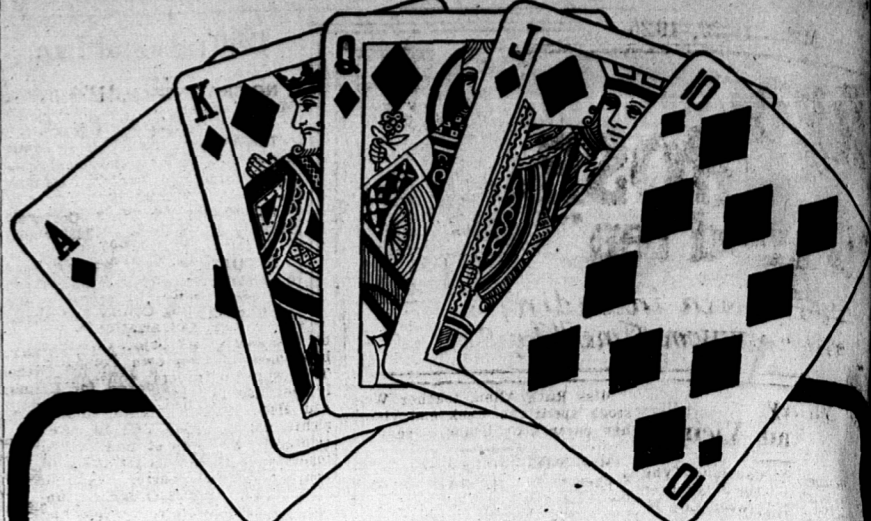

Mr. Murdoch Cutcliffe proposed the toast to Mr. Bagnall to which he responded. Speeches were then made by all present.

After wishing Mr. Bagnall many more years of strength and health, a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

CROSS-ROADS IN DAIRY FARMING

Sooner or later every dairyman arrives at the cross roads of profit and loss. He is bewildered by the many sign posts telling him how to reach success. One says by the pure-bred route another points to better sires, while a third claims that the only road which leads out of the ditch is elimination of the scrub cow. Which ever road he takes he is started before long by the fact that he is losing money. Now this thing of losses in the dairy business is so common and has been gone over so much that it would seem that there was no ground left. However that may be, there is a little standing room where few have investigated. The dairyman has to place the name of "Not so much loss" it is one thing to have a real loss of money and quite another thing to have a loss on paper. Of the two places the loss on paper is commonest. It is one thing for me to lose $100 out of my pocket while I am plowing, and it is another for me to lose the same amount by reason of something that I could have done and did not do. Right here I arise that old question, "Can a man lose what he has not got and never had?" Just how much a cow is losing money by reason of the fact that he does not have better cow is a matter of lots of figures and room for plenty of mistakes. It depends on the value one puts on his own cow after all. If the cow produces only 2,000 pounds of milk, we claim she is a losing proposition. But if—she gives good milk and the owner's children drink it and by drinking it they do not take tuberculosis, then how much is she worth to the owner? I should hesitate to place the value of the cow belonging to me. This is not in favor of the scrub cow. It is against a wrong theory.

I can take my team and work on the paving that is being done near my home and make $8 per day. Instead of that I stay at home and milk cows and bury cabbage haul and manure are at least $2 a day. How much I am losing more than $6 each day, and yet it does not bother me in the least. I do that every day in the year. While my own figures show that I am losing more than $1,800 a year, my bank account does not show it. An so it is with some of our cows. The figures may show that they are on the wrong side of the ledger and experience may show something entirely different. It depends a good deal on what property is worth to a man. Once a man starts thinking that he has thought might contain food, it proved to be millions of dollars worth of diamonds. He threw it away. He would gladly have given it in exchange for a quart of milk. So if the dairyman are losing so much money because they have a grade of cows that produce only so much milk they are sustaining the loss well.—I. Humphrey.
