VISITS BEREAVED PARENTS—Searchers were unsuccessful up to yesterday afternoon in finding the body of Winsloe Blackett, lobster fisherman who was drowned last Saturday off Cape Spry. A sister of the deceased, Mrs. Norman Cantelmo, arrived by plane from Boston yesterday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Blackett, Annandale. She was met at the airport by her brother, Lance Corp. Pius Blackett, who is stationed at Beach Grove.

JUST IN CASE—"Report all submarines" is the title of an arresting poster which is being distributed throughout the Island and other coastal provinces by Aircraft Detection headquarters. Pictures of different types of submarines are shown in different positions, and the advice is given that "any submarine seen is likely to be enemy and should be reported without fail." Citizens are urged to report by telephone, telegraph or wireless. The operator, on being asked for "Aircraft Detection Corps" will know how and where to send the report. Such calls are not chargeable. The sender is asked to give as much as he can of the following information: Exact location, local time of sighting, direction heading, distance away when seen, whether by naked eye or telescope, whether fully surfaced or awash and if seen breaking surface or submerging, markings and if crew visible, number of guns, names and telephone number or telegraph address of persons seeing submarine. The poster also shows two different types of mines, the finder being advised: "Do not touch; warn shipping; notify 'Aircraft Detection Corps'."

Personals

Petty Officer Edward Penny who gained refuge in the Vatican after escaping from an Italian prison camp, has been awarded the British Empire Medal.

Mr. Harry Edwards, valued employee of the Maritime Electric Co. Ltd., accompanied by his wife, left this morning for Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Westmount, Weston, Ont., where Mr. Edward's parents reside.

Eastern Items

The lobster season is again here and many induced by the prospects of higher prices, have resumed the industry. May 1st witnessed "setting day" and a number of tragic incidents including the drowning of John R. Gallant of St. Charles and Winsloe Blackett of Little Pond. The sympathy of the entire section goes out to those families in their sudden bereavements.

Roads in the rural districts are drying up considerably and cars are again to be seen. There is a noticeable scarcity of those, due no doubt to the shortage of gasoline.

Among the eastern teachers who attended the annual convention at Charlottetown were Misses Velma Robertson, Mary E. MacDonald, Nellie Howlett and Mr. James E. McDonald, principal of Souris High.

Cpl. Jas. MacIsaac of the R. C. A. F., Moncton, spent a short leave with his family at Munn's Road.

The tri-weekly freight from Charlottetown to Souris is proving a great boon to passengers as well. Many from outlying districts take advantage of this to get their shopping done in Souris.

The many friends of Mr. Hugh MacIsaac, Souris, are pleased to learn he is steadily improving after his serious accident which occurred in late autumn.

Miss E. Campbell, Dorchester, Mass., is visiting friends and relatives at Souris East.

Gnr. Elmer Whalen is spending a well deserved furlough with his parents at New Zealand, having spent the past year with the armed forces overseas.

Pte. Fred Jennings, P.E. I. H. is at present visiting friends and relatives in Souris, prior to his departure for a destination unknown.

Lance Cpls Gillis and Mossey have recently arrived in Souris to spend their leaves at their respective homes.

This season is apparently following the ancient tradition "a late Easter is a late spring." This year unlike the past years is exceptionally backwards, a most unfortunate condition for the majority of the farmers as they are unable to cultivate the soil or make use of the pasture lands, which necessitates the purchase of large quantities of hay. If this condition prevails, expectant hay buyers according to the local John Turnipseed—upon arrival at their destination will be greeted by their more fortunate neighbor "have you sufficient hay ration coupons."—H.

BLACK MARKETS, ETC.

Sir,—I was deeply impressed with that editorial item on "Meat Rationing" the other day, and enthusiastically support that "Pledge" credited to the American Meat Institute of Chicago by your Windsor, Ont. contemporary (Daily Star) closing as follows: "I will add all the forces of my conviction and influence to that of millions of other honest, patriotic citizens to stamp out the evil of the black market; I will have no part of the black market—and neither shall you!"

In my opinion we have been far too lenient in dealing with operators in the so-called 'black market'. This obscene urge to profit from the dire emergencies of these days looks to me as "sabotage". In other words, if we had enough "yellow" citizens at work in the black markets, we would lose the war—or prolong it indefinitely to the point of stalemate, which amounts to the same thing? I suggest that officialdom at Ottawa should act with courage and decision along this front. The people would support a ruling that "money fines" for black market convictions would be ruled out, and that appropriate jail sentences would be mandatory? This is the only technique these kind of citizens (!) understand and respect—the cheap law of their own greedy selves.

Another of your "Notes By The Way" which caught this reader's eye, was that assertion by a supply officer: "the average soldier is eating better than he ever did at home. . . ."

As you know, somewhere around 278,000 of our ablest young Canadians have left the farms since September, 1939—for either the armed services or the war factories—and this, in turn, has had critical echoes in terms of a near-famine on the farm labor front. These boys (and girls) may not be "eating better" but, undeniably, they are handling more cash than ever in their young lives. As a columnist puts it: "While the ordinary Canadian considers army pay a sacrifice, the $1.50 a day is affluence to the former farmer boy".

I am, Sir, etc.,

Hereford Breeders Association Plans Field Day At Truro

The Maritime Hereford Breeders' Association held a meeting at Windsor recently and arranged for a field day at Windsor on June 23. D. A. Andrew, Vermilion, Dominion Secretary, is coming on a tour east and may be able to attend. Due to the interest in feeder cattle it was decided to ask W. W. Baird to give a talk on feeding and fitting a steer for market. Generous grants have been promised for Maritime shows and representatives were appointed to assist in lining up prize lists in accordance with the requirements of the breed. They were as follows:

Maritime Fat Stock Show—$20, plus $25 if champion steer is a Hereford, J. A. Steele.

Charlottetown—$25, Fulton Sanderson.

N. S. Live Stock Field Day, Truro—$25, Geo. S. Dickey, M.L.A.

Windsor Field Day—$25, James O'Brien.

Lawrencetown Exhibition—$25, C. C. Barteaux.

Yarmouth Exhibition—$15, to be named.

Bridgewater Exhibition—$15, H. Wentzell.

Bear River Exhibition—$10, Harvey Chisholm.

Caledonia Exhibition—$10, to be named.

Suggestions were made that in shows where there were likely to be purebred breeders, specials should be given on young herds, while where oxen were the main feature prizes should be given on pairs of steer calves sired by a registered Hereford bull or for a class of registered Hereford bulls. Incidentally, it was decided that at the Windsor field day prizes of $6, $5 and $4 should be given for best pair of broken yoked Hereford steers, and prizes of $5, $4 and $3 for best feeder steer to encourage a good exhibition of feeder steers. New breeders of purebred Herefords include the Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Premier of Nova Scotia; Leslie Fairn, Wolfville; Chas. Smith, Upper Falmouth; Leander Armstrong, Burlington, Kings Co.; Allison Coldwell, Gaspereau; Joseph Anderson, Melanson; James McNeil, Windsor; Walter Card, N. Grand Pre; Ivan MacLean & Son, Tyne Valley, P.E.I.; Frank Sanderson & Sons, North River, P.E.I.

Capt. E. S. Chandler Guest Speaker At North Sydney

(Sydney Post)

NORTH SYDNEY—The many benefits and saving of power costs to the consumer that would be derived from regular electrical inspection were related to members of the Rotary Club at their weekly dinner-meeting yesterday by Capt. E. S. Chandler, formerly of Charlottetown.

INSPECTION NECESSARY

An electrical inspector in Prince Edward Island before joining the armed forces, Capt. Chandler told his hearers that the lack of regular inspection of electrical equipment makes power and its upkeep more costly to the public.

During his remarks, the speaker told of the duties of such an inspector and also of how the overloading and unbalancing of power lines could be minimized through periodical inspection.

Capt. Chandler told of the inspectors code as approved by the Canadain Engineers Association, and said that it was strongly endorsed by fire insurance companies. He also spoke about the association's laboratory where products of all Canadian electrical manufacturing companies, and also products coming in from the United States are examined to see that they apply to Canadian approved standards.

The necessity of having all electrical work done by qualified electricians and with standard equipment, was stressed by the speaker.

STANDARD EQUIPMENT

One of the most interesting portions of the speakers talk was in his reference to the way in which sub-standard grades of electrical supplies and equipment were pawned off on the public of the Maritimes.

The talk by Capt. Chandler, who displayed a keen sense of humor, proved one of the most interesting and helpful heard by the club members in some time.

Thanks was extended by the chairman, H. MacK. MacLean.

Largely attended, the meeting was held in the Hotel Albert. Following dinner, there was a singsong and business period held prior to the guest speaker being called on. Song leader was J. W. Farr, while music was provided by club pianist Prof. T. W. Williamson.

Officers of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force have added another job to their long list - interrogating air crews after a raid.

Annual Pasture Crop

(Experimental Farms News)

The cost of production of milk or meat is lowest when the animals harvest their own food. The supply of this food on natural pastures, however is often limited during the dry part of the average season and if milk production or gains are to be maintained, supplementary feeding is necessary.

Annual pasture crops, that can be harvested by the animals themselves, are one solution to this problem. Various crops, such as oats, barley, wheat, peas, millets and sudan grass, have been tested at Dominion Experimental Farm, Nappan, N. S. and considering yield, palatability and length of grazing season, oats have proven superior to all others, says S. A. Hilton, Senior Assistant at Nappan.

A seeding rate of 3 bushels per acre is recommended, and unless the land is in a high state of fertility, fertilizing with a complete fertilizer, such as 2-12-6, 300 to 400 pounds per acre, is advisable.

A mixture of oats, 2 bushels and winter rye, 1 bushel per acre has also been used with excellent results and gives later fall grazing than oats alone.

Grazing should start when the grain is 8 to 10 inches in height, and the animals should only be allowed on the field for an hour or so twice daily. Otherwise, they will trample and destroy more than they consume.

A fertilized permanent pasture a field of aftermath and an annual pasture crop, (one quarter to one ... will generally provide sufficient pasture throughout the season and reduce the use of harvested supplementary feeds to a minimum.
