MALPEQUE

The Rev. D.M. Grant will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday July 13, after which the Rev. E. M. Aitken will take up the work in Princeton United Church. There are very many in this Province who sincerely regret Mr. Grant's departure from Malpeque, and they are many who will be interested in hearing his farewell message.

The school year has closed and the time has now come to say farewell to our teachers as they return to their homes for the holiday. The teachers in Fanning School have always played a large part in the social life here and Misses Currie and Waller have maintained the high standard set by their predecessors. It is regrettable that Miss Currie has resigned her position as Principal. During the two years she taught here, she not only proved herself to be an efficient teacher but has been a helpful member of the community and she leaves here with the goodwill of all citizens, who shall follow her with interest. Miss Waller will retain her position in the Primary Department and will be welcomed on her return by parents and pupils.

Dear Teacher:—We the senior pupils of Fanning School, realizing that you are about to depart from us, wish in some small way to show our appreciation of your service while amongst us. In the past two years you have given devotedly of your time and talent on our behalf; whereas we perhaps have been careless and indifferent at times but we ask you to forgive our faults and remember the kind words of the poet when he said: Within the oyster shell unsought The purest crystal find. Trust that you have a friend sincere Within the rough outside. We now ask you to accept this gift not for its intrinsic value but as a token of esteem and goodwill in which you are held by us. Signed by the senior pupils of Fanning School. The above address was read by Miss Louise Burns, while Miss Lois Ramsay presented a very useful gift. Mr. Thomas MacNutt presided during the closing exercises and complimentary remarks to the teachers were made by Messrs G. W. Ramsay, Percy MacGougan, George MacKay, and Hume Hopgood. The following guests were recently registered at the "MacGougan House":—Helen Milligan, Summerside; E. H. Strong, Summerside.

I used to cry so much

"Father frowned—Mother worried—and I was cross all the time. The chafing hurt me such a lot that being a baby wasn't very much fun. Then something wonderful happened. One day after my bath, Mother powdered me from a different tin. I knew right away it was the PROPER powder for me—it felt so cool and cuddly against my skin. I don't cry now because of chafing. I'm ever so comfy and ever so good!"

The Powder for your Baby

There are baby powders and baby powders, just as there are babies and babies. But one thing is certain, the powder that is to make all babies completely comfortable must contain the finest talc—the soft, flaky Italian talc used by us in making Johnson's Baby Powder. Inferior baby powders are made of inferior talcs, which contain sharp, needle-like particles harmful to the delicate baby skin. Under a microscope you can see the difference between Johnson's Baby Powder and another—rub them between your fingers and you'll FEEL it!

Every daffodil grower is anxious to achieve an all-white one and at this spring's London show was seen "Beersheba," a lovely monster trumpet flower, very nearly pure white, but still faintly tinged with yellow.

Doubts That Men Will Let Them Dorothy Dix Are Women Going Back to the Home?

"Having Gotten the Right to Work, it Looks Very Much as if Women Were Going to Have to Continue to Work, and as if Men, Having Been Emancipated by Women, Are Going to Stay That Way"

In a recent issue of a popular magazine there is a very interesting article in which the writer calls attention to the fact that women are going feminine again, not only as to hair and skirts, but as to their manners and morals and their point of view. The flat, boyish figure is giving way to curves. "Oh, fie" is replacing "Oh, hell" as an expletive on flappers' lips, and instead of boasting of their prowess in almost running down pedestrians with their automobiles, girls are swooning at the thought of danger in true Victorian tradition.

In a word, having tried making imitation men of themselves, women have found out that it is all the junk, as we say in modern parlance, and gets them nowhere, and so are reverting to type. Furthermore, prophesies this writer, women, having fought with tooth and nail to get out of the home, are going to claw their way even more desperately back into it.

There is much evidence to support this opinion. It is not to be denied that things are seldom what they seem, and that many women have found that freedom was like a ready-made dress in a shop window. It didn't prove so alluring when they got it home and tried it on as it looked behind the glass. Nor did it fit so well, nor was it so serviceable for everyday use as they thought it was going to be, and so they are quite ready to return it to the bargain counter and get their money back.

Also, they discovered that having obtained the right to stand on their own feet and support themselves, they had to do it, and that having proved that they were as good men as their husbands and their fathers and their brothers, their male relatives simply stood from under and let Mary do it.

In reality, in the struggle that women have made for their rights they have never had the slightest idea of relinquishing their privileges. They expected to hold on to both, for no amount of logic or experience has ever been able to convince them that you can't have your cake and eat it too.

Hence we have had the curious spectacle of women who expected parlor manners in business offices; who thought that their masculine rivals should give way to them because of their sex; who claimed to be men's equals, yet wanted to be petted and coddled and supported by them.

Finding that freedom has a price-tag on it, many astute women have been figuring out that it isn't worth what it cost, and that the rights they have achieved do not offset the perquisites they have lost. Hence the back-to-the-home movement, and the struggle to return to woman's sacred sphere.

But that is something easier said than done. Liberty has queer by-products, and in women's efforts to emancipate themselves they incidentally and unintentionally emancipated men, which was no part of their original program.

Up to the time that women ceased being clinging vines, every man was simply smothered and bound hand and foot by his female relatives. It is doubtful if any man, save the most hardened, would ever have had the nerve to tear away the parasitic growth that hampered and held him and sucked his very life blood. Nor would popular opinion have upheld him in doing nourish themselves, why the poor oaks took their first long free breath and such a thing. But when women themselves let go their stranglehold on the men of their families and showed their perfect ability to stand alone and swore by all their gods to keep clear of all such burdens henceforth.

All of us who are even middle-aged can recall the drooping shoulders, the driven and harried look of fathers who had to support a household of idle daughters. We remember when brothers had to forgo marriage because they had sisters that they had to provide for. I knew one man who at the end of the Civil War was the only male of his name left alive, and who had eleven dependent women left upon his hands. And he was past 50 before enough of these had died off or married off to enable him to marry the woman to whom he was engaged for more than thirty years.

Nowadays a house full of daughters in an asset instead of a liability to a father, because the girls will hustle out and get jobs and support him in better style than he has been accustomed to. A brother no more expects his sisters to be dependent on him than he expects them to support him. They are just as husky and able-bodied and competent as he is, so why shouldn't they earn their own bread and butter?

Why not, indeed? And so if women are cherishing any illusions about father and brother putting their necks once more in the family yoke, they had better get rid of them. For there is nothing doing. Absolutely.

Nor are husbands going to get out the brass band to celebrate the home-coming of the dependent wife. A lot of them couldn't have had any wives if Mary hadn't kept on with her job after marriage. And certainly there wouldn't be any car, nor any bungalow being paid for, nor any chance to get some stock in the firm if Mary wasn't chipping in with the expenses.

So there we are. And, having got the right to work, it looks very much as if women were going to have to continue to work and if men, having been emancipated by women, are going to stay that way. DOROTHY DIX.

For The Cook

CREAM SODA Two pounds sugar, 1 ounce tartaric acid (obtained at any drug store), 1 dessertspoon vanilla, white of one egg beaten stiff. Mix together, then pour one quart of cold water over mixture and shake well. Put in jar, and when wanted pour into a glass about what would fill a quarter of a glass, then fill the glass with water. Add a little soda to make it froth.

A Morning Smile

During an election contest in Middlesex the chairman of a meeting in the interests of the Liberal candidate called upon the faithful present to compose their differences, and, as he phrased it, "to hang together." An unregenerate Tory at the end of the hall sang out "aymen." The chairman continued: "I dinna mean as you scoffer wad mean, but that we hang together in accord and concord." The scoffer replied: "I dinna care what kind o' a cord it is sae long as it is a strong cord."

GLEANINGS FROM TRYON AND VICINITY

Mr. Ernie Weeks of Salisbury, N. B. spent a few days last week visiting his sister, Miss Pearl Weeks of Tryon.

Miss Helen Holland of Boston, who is spending the summer with her parents in West Tryon, is now visiting relatives in Sturgeon.

Mrs. Mary Dawson, accompanied by Mrs. Brenton Canfield and son MacKenzie of Saranac Lake, New York, arrived home last week. Mrs. Dawson spent the winter very pleasantly visiting relatives and friends in Saranac Lake and her many friends on old Prince Edward Island are pleased to see her back once more. Mrs. Canfield is visiting her mother, Mrs. Sarah MacKenzie of Tryon, and we are glad to know she is much improved in health.

Mr. Roy Rogerson, accompanied by his sister, Miss Ella of Waltham, Mass., motored to the Island on their vacation and are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Rogerson of Tryon. Everyone is pleased to see them once more and renew friendships.

Mr. William D. Lee of R. T. Holman's, Ltd., of Summerside is now spending his holidays in Tryon.

The annual picnic of the Tryon Baptist Church was held on their grounds on Tuesday, July 1st. There was a very large attendance, not only from Tryon but different parts of the Island, who came to have a good time and to meet all their old friends. The tables fairly groaned under their load of "eats" and although a large number took supper the quality of the food was of a high standard even until the last. The ice-cream and confectionery booth was also well patronized. In the evening an entertainment was put on in the hall by the Cavendish Players.

Mr. Avar Bell of Victoria accompanied by Mrs. Ed. Bell of St. Eleanor were visitors to Cape Traverse last week. Mrs. Bell remained, returning to her home the latter part of the week.

Four of the pupils from Tryon Consolidated School, Florence Callbeck, Dorothy Woodside, Florence Leard and Herbert Haywood tried the Matriculation Examinations in Summerside last week. Where's hoping they are all successful and bring home the bacon!

A number of fans from the vicinity attended the races in Summerside on Dominion Day and reported good racing. Some of those in attendance were: Spurgeon Clarke, Norman Wright, Donald Bell, James Chisholm, Leslie Chisholm, Ella Rogerson, Lloyd Howatt and Jim MacLeod.

Must know something about first-aid

ANY mother of a family of children knows that you've got to let them run and play and get bumped if they're going to. She knows, too, that you must be prepared for minor casualties. Often the quick application of a simple home remedy will avert serious trouble. That's where "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly comes in. It is so handy. Always ready for use. Safe. Recommended and used by doctors.

Once more our public schools are closed for vacation and both teachers and pupils are relaxing after the strenuous school year just over. Both our teachers Miss Pearl Weeks, (Principal) and Miss Retta Toombs (assistant) have resigned and judging by the pupils, their work and conduct, it will be hard to find teachers worthy to fill their places. However several applications have been received and there is little doubt that our trustees, after careful investigation will choose from among them, two who will fill the needs of Tryon Consolidated School.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Jensen and family of Tryon left on Tuesday for New Brunswick where they plan to farm. Their friends wish them luck in their new undertaking. Aur revolvit.

JOKE STATUE VINDICATED After surviving the jokes and pests of 179 years, the "great joke" of Jersey, the Channel Island, has just been vindicated. It still stands in the Royal Square of St. Hilliers as one of those statues which are erected and forever afterwards are subject to doubt and uncertainty. It has the figure of George II, and has received more ridicule than any other in Europe. It is of lead and the King is depicted as a Roman Emperor clad in full armor. Records recently unearthed show that the figure erected by order of the States—the Jersey Parliament is called—in the eighteenth century when statues of gilded lead, complete with Roman togas, were vogue.

Mr. Wesley Myers of Calgary, Alberta, formerly of Carleton, arrived home recently and is visiting relatives and friends throughout the Province. Mr. Myers has been absent from the Island for 17 years and sees many changes during his absence. We wish Mr. Myers a pleasant time on the occasion of this trip to his native land.

Miss Florence Mabey of Boston, arrived on Wednesday to spend a pleasant holiday on the Island. Her many friends are pleased to welcome her back once more.
