CIVIL SERVANTS 'CANNOT COMMAND.'

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—A militia order issued states: "The question of what extent it is desirable that employes of the Department of Militia and Defence both at headquarters and elsewhere, should serve in the militia has been under the consideration of the Minister of Militia. It is obvious that in the event of an outbreak of war the position of the Department of Militia must be entirely different from that of other departments of the public service. Upon its efficient working depends the efficiency of the military forces in the field. It is therefore, of paramount importance for the success of the campaign that it should not suffer detriment by being liable to have members of its civil staff withdrawn at such a moment in order to serve with troops in the field."
