Moves amendment To supply motion In N. B. House

FREDERICTON, March 20.—(CP)—An amendment to the motion to grant supply was moved by Opposition Leader Mackay today at the end of his speech, concluding the Opposition's participation in the budget debate in the New Brunswick legislature.

The proposed amendment regrets: Increase in expenditure from $7,270,000 in 1936, to $9,764,000 in 1940 with a record high estimated expenditure of $10,100,000 for 1941.

That the public debt of the province has "during the terms of office of the party now in power reached such a dangerous peak that its accompanying high carrying charges might, in a period of post-war depression, exceed the entire revenue of the province."

That the "alleged surplus of the government was produced by heavily increased taxation, by failing to make adequate provisions for sinking funds and by charging to capital account items which should have been charged to current expenditure."

That the "whole financial and taxation program of the government has been formulated and carried out in disregard of the people's capacity to pay and without due consideration of the heavy tax burden now in force and further increase in prospect."

That the present administration has not "to the knowledge of this House consolidated or devised plans for the rehabilitation of the member of our armed forces and for the employment of civilians who will be thrown out of work by post-war readjustment."

In an address punctuated by demands for withdrawal of statements, Mr. Mackay claimed the province had a deficit of $500,000 to $1,000,000 instead of the $538,000 surplus submitted for 1940.

Ask 35 millions To cut western Wheat acreage

OTTAWA, March 20.—(CP)—A supplementary estimate to provide $35,000,000 for payments on reductions in wheat acreage under the government's 1941-42 wheat policy, and for administration and temporary appointments required under the policy, was introduced in the House of Commons tonight.

When the $35,000,000 supplementary estimates will be considered was indefinite, but as the House adjourned tonight it was tentatively decided that it will start tomorrow if the war appropriation bill is passed.

Immediately after Finance Minister Flaxley had presented the wheat supplementary estimates, several members wanted to know if there was to be a separate bill or resolution before the House, containing details of the bonus plan.

Opposition leader Hanson said the opposition would not be satisfied with a mere item in the estimates but would require something specific in the way of a measure, in those who believed the U. S. could not hope for co-operation if they tried to proceed without it.

In reply, Mr. Flaxley charged Mr. Hanson with making a threat to obstruct if he did not proceed in a certain way.

"It is just a friendly suggestion," Mr. Hanson insisted.

Mr. Flaxley said it was not friendly but "friendly."

"This is an attempt to legislate by order-in-council," Mr. Hanson shouted. "We don't like that, the members of the House who support the government don't like it. I am sure the Minister's intention brought quiet by saying there were several ways of proceeding and he was confident a method could be worked out which would provide ample opportunity for discussion."

European Radio Propaganda Works In Reverse In U.S.

(This is the second of two stories by H. Ward W. Bleskies, Associated Press Science Editor, on how foreign propaganda is working in the United States.)

By Howard W. Bleskies

Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—European radio propaganda, when aimed at United States public opinion apparently works in reverse.

American opinion directly affects the character of these transoceanic broadcasts. This is the outstanding finding in the daily recording of approximately 25,000 words, at the Princeton University, from Germany, Italy and Great Britain.

"These records are selected samples of a daily flood of radio, much of it intended for the United States. The recordings have been continuing since early in the war. They are samples of from 100 to 110 broadcasts a week.

They are taken by the Princeton listening centre under direction of Harold N. Graves, with a staff of assistants, and under direction of an executive committee of Princeton's politics department.

"There is no information whatsoever," Mr. Graves says, "about how foreign broadcasts influence public opinion in this country. Such clear relationships as there are seem to have been almost entirely the other way—that is to say, swings in American public opinion have influenced the broadcasts."

Mr. Graves said that the British opinion swings illustrate. One was the increase in Americans who favored aid to England "even at risk of war" and the other the increase in those who believed the U. S. would get into the war. Both increased steeply from one-third or less Americans answering last spring, to more than two-thirds this winter.

Germany's broadcasts countered these rises with more discussion of American affairs.

These, in the form of criticism on Britain's relations with the United States, rose to a high point in May. This appeared, Dr. Graves said, to be an attempt to divide the two nations. After the French Armistice, this division campaign fell off.

After September the Germans broadcasts seemed to switch from American foreign relations to Uncle Sam's domestic affairs. The United States had not solved its housing problem, nor unemployment. It had a class system so that some people make a living without working.

"The objective here, Dr. Graves suggests, may have been disruption of American war opinion.

The Tokyo-Rome-Berlin pact followed this radio switch and the "disruptive" propaganda may have been a certain-ear for the pact.

Just before this pact, the Germans did something which, in Princeton records, is usually almost completely avoided by Germany.

It gave a series of vivid, human-interest descriptions of the German air and other military forces. The object, the Princeton observers think, may have been to impress the United States with the Axis strength at the moment when such an impression would enhance the effect of the Japanese announcement.

The British broadcasts have been completely different in type.

President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull have been quoted rather than opinion of British leaders. These quotations have come as a rule some time after a clear trend in United States opinion has become evident.

British Cattle To Be Slaughtered

LEICESTER, England, March 20.—(CP)—An "appreciable number" of cattle on British farms must be slaughtered because of feed shortage, Robert Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, disclosed today.

He told farmers here that even after the reduction, in which choice animals would be saved, the number remaining still would be greater than in years immediately after the first great war. He said reductions should be made gradually during the next six months.

Struthers, plant superintendent, described it.

TORONTO ROAD J.R.C. MEETING

The pupils of Toronto school held a public meeting Monday, March 17. The president, George Dolton opened the meeting by having the class sing a Junior Red Cross song.

The secretary, Margaret Doucet, read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted as read. The treasurer then gave her report and said there was $2.60 in the treasury. She then had the roll call which was a riddle. The secretary read the correspondence received and the members were ready now for the new business of the meeting. It was decided (1) to send for a dozen diapers and handkerchiefs; (2) to get yarn to knit booties; (3) to get portfolio ready to send to the Easter convention; (4) to send the money to the treasury for a charitable purpose. The program consisted of three songs by the class, a motion song, two dialogues, riddles and recitations. The president then thanked the Women's Institute for giving the members a double boiler to lottery. The visitors made a few remarks and the teachers thanked them for the interest which they were taking in the children's enterprise, as was shown by their splendid attendance that afternoon, there being present.

The meeting was adjourned by singing the National Anthem.

Tables outlay By Canada on Nfld. airport

OTTAWA, March 20.—(CP)—Canada has spent $1,541,770 for airport buildings in Newfoundland, P. C. Black (Con. Cumberland) was informed today in a return tabled in the House of Commons.

Mr. Black had asked if the government had responsibility for construction of Newfoundland airport; what was the total expenditure; and how much was payable by Britain, Canada and Newfoundland; who would have ownership and responsibility for operation and maintenance, and other detailed questions.

The return said a detailed reply to such questions could not be given without prior discussion with authorized officials of Newfoundland and the United Kingdom, and because "specific answers might provide information of value to the enemy."

"The government is of the opinion that it would not be in the public interest to reply to all these questions at the present time."

Official statements made by Canada were by contract. Under the contracts, $1,023,367 had been paid to Atlas Construction Company Limited. The government declined to state the value of each contract, the amounts required for completion and total estimated cost.

Airman From

parently met death instantly. The accident occurred about 3:30 p.m.

Camp Sussex ski troops who happened to be in the vicinity also hurried to the crash scene and gave what assistance they could.

Officials at Sussex were notified. They immediately sent out an ambulance. Deep snow made travel slow and difficult.

A plane from the service flying training school at Moncton was ordered to assist the search before word came that residents had found the wreckage.

Officials checking up after the crash learned no R.C.A.F. plane was missing in New Brunswick. Then it became known that the wrecked ship was three hours overdue in Prince Edward Island.

The fatality was the third of its kind in this province in little more than a week. Two airmen were killed near Moncton a week ago yesterday when two R.C.A.F. training bombers collided. Another occupant was injured and a fourth was able to bail out unhurt.

A farmer with horses and a slight brought the body from Smith's Falls Creek to the waiting ambulance. Tonight the body rested at the medical corps hospital at Camp Sussex pending instructions. The Mount Hebron district, where the crash occurred, is a rough section of country and sparsely settled.

Hanson gets Roses on 62nd Birthday

OTTAWA, March 20.—(CP)—A huge basket of red roses stood on the desk of opposition leader Hanson when he took his seat in the House of Commons today—his 62nd birthday.

Prime Minister King wished Mr. Hanson many happy returns of the day "on behalf of myself, my colleagues, honourable members on this side of the House, and may I say, of all honourable members of the House."

Applause came from all parties. Mr. Hanson thanked the members and said, "I declare now that I am not going to have any more birthdays."

"Give us a breakdown," Air Minister Power suggested, amid loud laughter from members who, in recent weeks have heard numerous requests to the ministry for breakdowns of figures contained in the war appropriation measure.

Huge pulp plant Opened in Nfld.

CORNERBROOK, Nfld., March 20.—(CP Cable)—Sir Humphrey Walwyn, Newfoundland's governor, formally opened the $4,000,000 sulphite pulp and paper mills. Welcoming the governor, general manager Lewin emphasized that the plant's entire machinery was brought across the Atlantic from Britain without loss of a single nut or bolt. In reply, Sir Humphrey said he "keenly appreciated" the establishment of a new enterprise on the colony's west coast.

The plant will turn out 30,000 tons of sulphite pulp annually. The industry is the result of a 1938 agreement whereby Bowater acquired timber areas in the Gander Lake district, giving rise to the hope a new newspaper plant would be established on the northeast coast. This was found not feasible.

The contract eventually provided for the Corner Brook extensions whereby the output of the paper mills would be increased by 30,000 tons. The agreement also gives the company the right to cut for export 50,000 cords annually and, four years after the plant is in operation, to cut for export an additional two cords of raw wood for every ton of sulphite manufactured and half a cord for every ton of paper in excess of the company's normal capacity.

In addition to the sulphite plant, Bowaters have completed a pier capable of berthing three ships at the same time.

House Debates

Canada would be even more inflationary.

Mr. Isley told another questioner that the government, after careful consideration had decided against promoting the sale of interest-free bonds. It was felt that if pressure were exerted the more unselfish, patriotic and generous section of the population would buy them while more selfish people would invest in interest-bearing securities.

There would be no question of the equality of sacrifice on the part of all the people which the government considered to be important.

The government adopted the same policy in respect to gifts, Mr. Isley said. It welcomed both gifts and purchases of interest-free securities, but it did not solicit them.

It was suggested by T. C. Douglas (C.F. Weyburn) that the minister had given a good argument in favour of compulsory interest-free loans. Mr. Isley replied that it might be one argument for it but that there were many against it.

Mr. Isley also rejected a request from Mr. Quelch for assurance that there would be no increase in present interest rates during the war.

Reparation

Discussing the reparation of Canadian securities held in Britain, Mr. Isley said all that had been repatriated by the government so far were those issued or guaranteed by the present government. They were not thrown on the market here but were held in the Bank of Canada.

Mr. Isley said the reparation policy was adopted to provide the United Kingdom with the Canadian dollars needed to pay for purchases of materials and foodstuffs from Canada. Each week the foreign exchange control board was advised of the amount of dollars required. If $10,000,000 were needed the board would buy $2,250,000 in London. From the accumulation of sterling thus built up, they were bought or paid off Canadian securities.

Since the beginning of this year, the Minister said, more than $150,000,000 had been placed at the disposal of the United Kingdom in this way.

Sterling accumulated had been used to outstanding government obligations in London on the 3 1/2 per cent registered stock 1930-1950, four per cent registered stock 1940-50, and £20,000,000 in registered government-guaranteed bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, representing a total dollar value of $25,300,000.

Some Canadian corporation securities had also been repatriated. The Government had securities taken over by the British treasury last year and Canadian Pacific Railway securities were not included in the list. Whatever C.P.R. securities were held in Great Britain were still in the hands of private owners.

Securities repatriated were marketed in Canada through ordinary market channels under the supervision of a representative of the British treasury.

One Farthing An Hour

WORKS AUSTRALIA'S NEW SEALIGHTS

A farthing an hour is the cost of throwing a 20,000 candle power beam from the portable searchlight projectors included in a large order received by Britain from Australia.

Other items in it are floodlight projectors, storm lanterns, portable radiators and more than 1000 lamps, all of them being ordinary paraffin at the rate of 1 1/2 pints for ten hours.

Among other recent overseas deliveries from the same makers were a further 144 storm lanterns for South Africa.

In the last nine months of 1940, the value of their exports went up by half compared with the similar period of the year before.
