McGill Graduates Remain In Canada

MONTREAL, Sept. 21—Highly trained graduates of Canadian universities are no longer flocking to the United States for employment, judging from statistics recently compiled by the department of chemistry at McGill University which has graduated 4 chemists with Ph. D. degrees in the past 10 years of whom only 29 per cent have gone to the United States. This percentage is further reduced when it is taken into consideration that of this figure some were students born in the United States, returning to take up positions there after having gained their professional training in the department of chemistry here. Actually only 20 per cent of Canadian-born graduates went to the United States. The check-up by the department of chemistry at McGill to find out where the graduates of the graduate school in chemistry go revealed that, of the 64 men who obtained Doctor's degrees in chemistry in the past 10 years, 15 are on the permanent staff of Canadian universities, six are on the permanent staff of American universities, 14 are holding research positions in Government laboratories of Canada, 13 are on the research staffs of American industries, 12 are on the research staffs of Canadian industries, while the remaining four have scholarships and are engaged in further study in foreign universities with the intention of returning to Canada.

The advance that the chemistry profession has made in Canada in recent years may be gathered from the fact that prior to the session of 1919-20 only four students had graduated in chemistry from McGill with the degree of Ph. D. In the following 10 years, as already pointed out, 64 entered the chemistry profession after having spent at least seven years in gaining their Doctor's degree from McGill.

Mr. James Condon of Georgetown, was a motorist to Souris recently on business.

Mr. and Mrs. James Conaghan, Souris, are receiving the congratulations of their many friends upon the arrival of a wee bonnie wee lassie.

A handsome new bird cage is made of wire painted white and stands on a graceful white and gold metal table. The cage is raised several inches above the table top, which is wide enough to make room for a circle of small potted plants. The cage itself is a tall cylinder with a graceful sloping roof. Bird cages are now being designed to suit period furnishings. Chippendale, Chinese and Louis XVI bird cages are on the market.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. SARAH MARGARET MCLEAN

Miss Sarah Margaret McLean suddenly departed this life, as it gently falling into sweet sleep at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. D. Sawyer 2 Benwick Road, Lexington, Mass, on Sabbath evening, September, 6th, 1931. Miss McLean was born in Brooklyn, Caledonia, P. E. I. about 50 years ago. Her remains in charge of her niece, Mrs. Litteny of Waltham, Mass., were brought to the old home to rest in the family plot in Valleyfield Cemetery. Notwithstanding the rain storm at the time of the funeral services at the house and grave conducted by the Rev. Allister Murray, Caledonia, was largely attended undoubtedly showing the respect and esteem in which she was held.

Miss McLean was a lady of fine qualities. Thirty years of efficient and faithful service, practically all her life's work were rendered in one family, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Sawyer a well to do lumberman of Lexington City by whom she was considered not only as a members of but essential to the family. Over a year ago her health broke down and she had to undergo a serious operation. All that surgical and medical skill could do was done for her through her employer, she recovered sufficiently to be able to resume her duties to which she returned with the old time devotion to the end, but still continued to receive medical treatment. This was a case of mutual esteem and love between Mrs. and maid. The Dr. and Nurses that attended her were also equally impressed with her superior character the former remarking to the writer's informant that she was one of, if not the most wonderful woman he had ever met. One and all we extend to the bereaved family our genuine sympathy. This is the third time they were called on to mourn within three years. She leaves to mourn a worthy and beloved mother, three brothers and two sisters as follows: Peter and Neil in Boston; John at home; Misses Christy and Effie also at home and her aged bedfast mother well over 90 years. The pall bearers were her own cousins, Messrs Altek Gillis, Donald Gillis, Archibald Gillis, D. M. McLean, Angus Gillis, and A. A. Gillis. A dutiful loyal and well spent life must on reflection be sweet comfort to those who miss and mourn reminding us of the Scripture: "And they buried him in his own sepulchre which he had made for himself—filled with sweet odors and divers kinds of spices."

Persian Balm imparts a rare charm and distinction to the woman who uses it. Fragrant as a flower, deliciously cool to the skin, it always results in complexions delightfully young and lovely. Indispensable to every dainty woman. As a powder base for oily-textured skins or as a beautifying lotion, it is unrivalled. Tones and stimulates the skin. Recommended also to soften and make the hands flawlessly white.

BRISTOL, Va., Sept 21 (U. P.)—One of the heaviest 18 hole four-somes in the history of Bristol was scaled at 250 pounds; Harry, 230, and Dave, 205, while Godopasture came through with 215 pounds and Frank Goodpasture participated, Dave and Geore Parrish won, 3 up.

Brazil Facing Golden Age

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Brazil will soon experience another "golden age," according to a Department of Commerce report in which the opinion was expressed that the production of gold had started there again on an extensive basis.

The report stated that several abandoned mines were being re-worked and large production was promised the individuals who were conducting the operations. So excellent were the prospects, the report stated that it was expected individual mining would give way to large scale production which would bring the importation of machinery.

At present the mines are being worked almost entirely by peasant workers, who keep all the gold they mine for themselves. Thus, it was said, much gold was unreported as these individuals handled it discreetly and slipped it out of the country with the help of border smugglers.

The average yield per person, it was explained, amounted to about $1.25 a day—a sum well above the daily wage rate in the mining regions of Brazil.

ated. George Parrish tipped the scales at 250 pounds; Harry, 230, and Dave, 205, while Godopasture came through with 215 pounds and Frank Goodpasture participated, Dave and Geore Parrish won, 3 up.
